Such application must be executed before a clerk of a Federal court or a State court authorized, by the act of Congress of October 14, 1940 (54 Stat. 1137; 8 U. S. TITLE 30—MINERAL RESOURCES

Chapter I—Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior

Subchapter L—Interpretations

PART 45—TITLE II, FEDERAL COAL MINE SAFETY ACT OF 1952

ADDED INTERPRETATIONS

Part 45, Title II, Federal Coal Mine Safety Act is amended to include the following new sections:

Sec.
45.6 Statutory provisions (sec. 203 (a) (1)).
45.6–1 Drop-bottom cars used for man trips.
45.20–1 Coal-producing shift.
45.40–2 Application of rock dust wet.
45.44–4 Maintenance of permissible equipment.
45.46 Statutory provisions (sec. 209 (g) (1)).
45.46–1 Minimum requirements.
45.46–2 Fire classification.
45.46–3 Efficiency ratings.

AUTHORITY: §§ 45.6 to 45.46–3 issued under sec. 205, 66 Stat. 697; 30 U. S. C. 475.

If a duly authorized representative of the Bureau, upon making an inspection of a mine as authorized in section 203, finds danger that a mine explosion, mine fire, mine inundation, or man-trip or man-hoist accident will occur in such mine immediately or before the imminence of such danger can be eliminated, he shall also find the extent of the area of such mine throughout which such danger exists. Thereupon he shall immediately make an order requiring the operator of such mine to cause all persons, excepting persons referred to in paragraph (2) of this subsection, to be withdrawn from, and to be debarred from entering, such area. Such findings and order shall contain a detailed description of the conditions which such representative finds cause and constitute such danger, and a description of the area of such mine throughout which persons must be withdrawn and debarred.

§ 45.6–1 Drop-bottom cars used for man trips. Failure to provide special locking devices on drop-bottom cars used for transporting men on man trips shall be considered danger that a man-trip accident will occur immediately or before the imminence of such danger can be eliminated, within the meaning of section 203 (a) (1).

§ 45.20–1 Coal-producing shift. The term "coal-producing shift" as used in section 203 means any shift during which one or more of the following operations necessary in the production of coal are performed: Cutting, blasting, loading, or the haulage of coal from face areas, regardless of whether or not the coal is dumped at a tipple.

§ 45.40–2 Application of rock dust wet. So long as the percentages of incombustible content specified in section 209 (e) (5) are maintained, rock dust applied wet in the following manner shall be considered as compliance with said section: The application of wet rock dust should be limited to rib and roof surfaces in face areas, which means it should not be used on the floor or for redusting mine surfaces outby the immediate face areas. In such applications only limestone or marble dust which meets the specifications contained in section 201 (a) (11) should be used; the application should be at the rate of not less than 3 ounces (weight) of dust per square foot of surface, and should be by a mixture of not more than 6 to 8 gallons of water with 100 pounds of dust, whether by premixed slurry or by mixing at the nozzle of a hose, to assure that the mixture is not too fluid and that sufficient dust adheres to the surfaces. Wet rock-dusting of ribs and roof does not eliminate the necessity for dry rock-dusting the floor, which can be accomplished with shovels or otherwise without creating undesirable dust clouds. Whether or not additional dry rock dust will be required after wet dust dries, depends on certain factors such as the ready dispersibility of the rock dust after drying, and the rate of settling of fine float (coal) dust on surfaces that were dusted wet.

§ 45.44–4 Maintenance of permissible equipment. The exception in section 209 (f) (1) of the act permitting the use of nonpermissible electric face equipment in a gasey mine applies also to any permissible electric face equipment that was rendered nonpermissible by alteration of its electrical parts before the effective date of the act or before the mine in which it is used became gassy, whichever is later. Permissible equipment loses its permissibility if it is not maintained in permissible condition or if any change or any rebuilding or repair thereof does not conform with the requirements of §§ 18.36 and 18.37 of this chapter (Bureau of Mines Schedule 2F "Electric Motor-Driven Mine Equipment, Junction Boxes and Other Accessory Equipment" [Revised]).

Each mine shall be provided with suitable fire-fighting equipment, adequate for the size of the mine.

§ 45.46–1 Minimum requirements. The minimum requirements for providing "suitable fire-fighting equipment, adequate for the size of the mine", as these words are used in section 209 (g) (1) of the act, are here set forth with reference to "Class A", "Class B", and "Class C" fires as these terms are defined and explained in §§ 45.46–2 and 45.46–3. It is recognized, however, that fire control standards at some mines may be equivalent or superior to, although not the same as, the standards herein stated. In such instances the fire control system shall be considered as complying with said section 209 (g) (1).

(a) Unless fire extinguishers are carried on portable machines, two fire extinguishing units suitable for Class C fires and at least 240 pounds of rock dust or dry sand shall be located within 600 feet of any point where any mining machine, loading machine, or other self-propelled electrical equipment, except a locomotive, is being operated. Where fire extinguishers are carried on portable machines, only one fire extinguishing unit suitable for Class C fires is required for each machine. Wherever practicable, a chemical fire extinguisher suitable for Class C fires shall be provided on each locomotive.

(b) Unless a belt line is protected by a pipeline paralleling the belt, containing water under pressure, and with outlet valves and sufficient hose so that water will reach any point along the belt line, a fire extinguishing unit suitable for Class C fires, or some other extinguishing agent such as rock dust, dry sand, or water, shall be provided at each belt drive and tailpiece and at intervals of 300 feet along the belt. The joints of an articulated belt system are not considered to be drives or tailpieces for this purpose. Each such supply of rock dust or sand shall be in an amount of at least 240 pounds; and each such supply of water (other than in a parallel pipeline) shall be at least a barrel of water and three pails.

(c) A fire extinguishing unit suitable for Class C fires and another extinguishing agent, such as 240 pounds of rock dust or dry sand, shall be provided at each electrical installation, such as permanent pumping stations, battery-charging stations, and substations, and in shops.

(d) Two fire extinguishing units suitable for Class B fires and at least 240 pounds of rock dust or dry sand shall be provided at each permanent underground oil-storage station. Where 25 gallons or more of oil are stored on a working section, at least 240 pounds of rock dust or dry sand shall be provided.

(e) Rock dust or suitable fire extinguishers shall be immediately available during welding, cutting, or soldering with arc or flame in underground workings in other than a fireproof enclosure.

(f) Unless water lines, equipped with outlet valves at intervals of not more than 500 feet and capable of delivering 50 gallons of water per minute at a nozzle pressure of 50 pounds per square inch, are installed along main and secondary haulage roads and extend to the working sections; and unless 1,000 feet of fire hose with fittings suitable for connection with such water lines are available; two water-tank cars of at least 1,000 gallons capacity each, equipped with a high-pressure pump and not less than 300 feet of fire hose with nozzles, or two portable chemical cars containing or carrying equivalent protection, shall be provided in mines where the underground production is 300 tons or more per shift; provided, that a high-pressure rock-dusting machine fitted with at least 250 feet of hose, with at least 60 sacks of rock dust in good condition near it at all times, may be substituted for one water-tank car or chemical car. These units shall be stationed at strategic locations and ready for use at all times. Where two or more adjacent mines are connected by track, one of the two water tanks or chemical cars required for each mine may be a common unit.

(g) A fire extinguishing unit suitable for Class C fires or a minimum of 240 pounds of rock dust or dry sand shall be provided at each wooden door through which power lines pass.

(h) Unless water is piped to the faces of working places at a pressure and volume such that a hose will deliver at least 50 gallons of water a minute at a nozzle pressure of 50 pounds per square inch, a fire extinguishing unit suitable for Class A fires, or 240 pounds of rock dust or dry sand, or a barrel of water and three pails, shall be available within 600 feet of each working face. One such fire-prevention unit may serve for more than one working face provided it is within the 600-foot limit.

(i) Each underground stable shall be provided either with a water line fitted with a hydrant or hose tap near the entrance and fire hose of a minimum diameter of 1½ inches, long enough to reach the entire length of the stable, and fitted with a ½-inch nozzle; or a 500-gallon truck-mounted water tank stored near the entrance of the stable and provided with 200 feet of 1½-inch fire hose fitted with ½-inch nozzle.

(j) At every mine there shall be available for emergency use the following materials: 5 tons of rock dust, 1,000 board feet of brattice boards, 3 rolls of brattice cloth, 2 hand saws, 25 pounds 8^d nails, 25 pounds 10^d nails, 25 pounds 16^d nails, 3 claw hammers, 25 bags of wood fiber plaster or 10 bags of cement.

(k) Fire extinguishers and all auxiliary equipment shall be maintained in usable operative condition. Chemical fire extinguishers shall be examined every six months.

(l) All chemical fire extinguishers purchased after the date of the publication of these interpretations shall be approved by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc., or Factory Mutual Laboratories and carry appropriate labels.

§ 45.46–2 Fire classification. It is essential that the fire classification adopted by the National Fire Protection Association be thoroughly understood before an attempt is made to provide fire-fighting facilities; otherwise, fire-fighting equipment is likely to be inadequate and unsuitable. The following explains the N. F. P. A. classifications which have been modified slightly by the Bureau of Mines to permit the use of loaded stream extinguishers on Class C fires except where high voltage is likely to be encountered.

(a) Class A fires. Class A fires are defined as those in ordinary solid, combustible materials, such as coal, wood, rubber, textiles, paper, and rubbish. Fires of these materials can be best controlled through the quenching or cooling action of water or solutions containing large proportions of water. Chemical fire extinguishers, such as soda acid, foam, and loaded stream, also can be used successfully on fires in this class. Other types of chemical fire extinguishers are somewhat limited in their effectiveness when used on Class A fires. Rock dust and fine sand may be used, but in some instances, such as overhead fires, these agents are difficult to apply.

(b) Class B fires. Class B fires are defined as those flammable liquids, such as fuel or lubricating oils, grease, paint, varnish, and lacquer. Blanketing or smothering is essential for fighting this class of fire successfully. Chemical fire extinguishers, such as foam, dry chemical, liquid carbon dioxide, vaporizing liquid, and loaded stream, are suitable for Class B fires. Rock dust or fine sand may be used also. In no case should water be used unless a "spray," "mist," or "fog" nozzle is provided. Class B fires are considered by fire-fighting authorities to be the most difficult to control; they are likely to spread rapidly.

(c) Class C fires. Class C fires are defined as those in (live) electrical equipment, such as oil-filled transformers, generators, motors, switch panels, circuit breakers, insulated electrical conductors, and other electrical devices. A nonconducting extinguishing agent is essential for fighting fires of this class. Chemical fire extinguishers, such as liquid carbon dioxide, dry chemical, and vaporizing liquid, are suitable for fires in this class. Rock dust or fine sand may be used also, but either of these—the latter in particular—may damage electrical equipment. Loaded stream extinguishers may be used on Class C fires except where high voltages are likely to be encountered. When the electric circuit has been deenergized, the nonconducting recommendation previously mentioned may be ignored. However, when planning fire-fighting facilities for Class C fire hazards this exception should not be given weight. Where electricity is involved in a fire, it is advisable to deenergize the circuit as soon as possible, because, under certain conditions, a fire cannot be extinguished when a live circuit exists at the seat of the fire.

§ 45.46–3 Efficiency ratings. (a) The comparative efficiency ratings of various hand-type fire-fighting facilities commonly used are provided in the following tabulation and should be used in determining the size extinguisher required. The letters A, B, and C indicate suitability according to fire classification, and the numbers represent the quantity needed to provide a fire-fighting unit. The absence of any letter in a rating indicates that the facility should not be used for that particular class of fire or that its efficiency is too limited to be given a rating.

(b) A 12-quart fire pail has a rating of A–5 and a 2½-gallon pump tank has a rating of A–1, indicating that it will take 5 pails of water to equal a 2½-gallon pump tank on a Class A fire. In the case of a 10-pound liquid carbon dioxide extinguisher, having a rating of B–2 and C–1, it will take two of these to provide a fire-fighting unit for a Class B fire, but only one is needed for a Class C fire; this extinguisher can be used on an A fire but its efficiency is too limited to be given a rating for such. For example, a Class A rated extinguisher, in the absence of any other letter, should not be used on a Class B or C fire, but an extinguisher rated for Class B and C fires may be used on a Class A fire—the absence of the letter A in this case indicates that the efficiency for fighting a Class A fire is limited.

(Use should be supplemented by other equipment.)
Rock dust	Suitable for A, B, or C fires (see following note).

NOTE: Tests to determine the value of rock dust as a fire-extinguishing agent have not been extensive enough to establish a unit value in comparison with accepted standards of the N. F. P. A. Based on the information available, a reasonable value for mine use is that three 80-pound sacks be accepted as one unit for Class A, B, or C fires. A shovel with a long handle will assist greatly in applying the rock dust and reduce loss through waste.

[1] This extinguisher not recommended for use on Class C fires if high voltage is likely to be encountered.

[2] It has never been the policy of the Bureau of Mines to discourage the use of carbon tetrachloride fire extinguishers under all conditions. The Bureau has, however, consistently advised against their use in confined and unventilated places in mines. This type of extinguisher shall not be used where there is likelihood of dangerous concentrations of the fumes and gases evolved passing over workmen. Neither should they be used where there is no ready means of escape for the operator providing he is not properly equipped with respiratory protection.

Director,
Bureau of Mines.

SUBPART E—COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE ON WAGES (CHAPTER 24, INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1954)

§ 31.3401 (a) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

§ 31.3401 (a)–1 Wages—(a) In general. (1) The term "wages" means all remuneration for services performed by an employee for his employer unless specifically excepted under section 3401 (a) or excepted under section 3402 (e). See §§ 31.3401 (a) to 31.3401 (a) (12)–1, inclusive, and § 31.3402 (e)–1.

(2) The name by which the remuneration for services is designated is immaterial. Thus, salaries, fees, bonuses, commissions on sales or on insurance premiums, pensions, and retired pay are wages within the meaning of the statute if paid as compensation for services performed by the employee for his employer.

(3) The basis upon which the remuneration is paid is immaterial in determining whether the remuneration constitutes wages. Thus, it may be paid on the basis of piecework, or a percentage of profits; and may be paid hourly, daily, weekly, monthly, or annually.

(4) Generally the medium in which the remuneration is paid is also immaterial. It may be paid in cash or in something other than cash, as for example, stocks, bonds, or other forms of property. (See, however, § 31.3401 (a) (11)–1, relating to the exclusion from wages of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business.) If services are paid for in a medium other than cash, the fair market value of the thing taken in payment is the amount to be included as wages. If the services were rendered at a stipulated price, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, such price will be presumed to be the fair value of the remuneration received. If a corporation transfers to its employees its own stock as remuneration for services rendered by the employee, the amount of such remuneration is the fair market value of the stock at the time of the transfer.

(5) Remuneration for services, unless such remuneration is specifically excepted by the statute, constitutes wages even though at the time paid the relationship of employer and employee no longer exists between the person in whose employ the services were performed and the individual who performed them.

Example. A is employed by R during the month of January 1955 and is entitled to receive remuneration of $100 for the services performed for R, the employer, during the month. A leaves the employ of R at the close of business on January 31, 1955. On February 15, 1955 (when A is no longer an employee of R), R pays A the remuneration of $100 which was earned for the services performed in January. The $100 is wages within the meaning of the statute.

(b) Certain specific items—(1) Pensions and retirement pay. (i) In general, pensions and retired pay are wages subject to withholding. However, no withholding is required with respect to amounts paid to an employee upon retirement which are taxable as annuities under the provisions of section 72 or 403. So-called pensions awarded by one to whom no services have been rendered are mere gifts or gratuities and do not constitute wages. Those payments of pensions or other benefits by the Federal Government under Title 38 of the United States Code which are excluded from gross income are not wages subject to withholding.

(ii) Retirement pay for service in the Armed Forces of the United States, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, or the Public Health Service is subject to withholding unless such pay is excluded from gross income under section 104 (a) (4), or is taxable as an annuity under the provisions of section 72. Where such retirement pay (not excluded from gross income under section 104 (a) (4) and not taxable as an annuity under the provisions of section 72) is paid to a nonresident alien individual, withholding is required only in the case of such amounts paid to a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico.

(2) Traveling and other expenses. Amounts paid specifically—either as advances or reimbursements—for traveling or other bona fide ordinary and necessary expenses incurred or reasonably expected to be incurred in the business of the employer are not wages and are not subject to withholding. Traveling and other reimbursed expenses must be identified either by making a separate payment or by specifically indicating the separate amounts where both wages and expense allowances are combined in a single payment.

(3) Vacation allowances. Amounts of so-called "vacation allowances" paid to an employee constitute wages. Thus, the salary of an employee on vacation, paid notwithstanding his absence from work, constitutes wages.

(4) Dismissal payments. Any payments made by an employer to an employee on account of dismissal, that is, involuntary separation from the service of the employer, constitute wages regardless of whether the employer is legally bound by contract, statute, or otherwise to make such payments.

(5) Deductions by employer from remuneration of an employee. Any amount deducted by an employer from the remuneration of an employee is considered to be a part of the employee's remuneration and is considered to be paid to the employee as remuneration at the time that the deduction is made. It is immaterial that any act of Congress, or the law of any State or of Puerto Rico, requires or permits such deductions and the payment of the amounts thereof to the United States, a State, a Territory, Puerto Rico, or the District of Columbia, or any political subdivision of any one or more of the foregoing.

(6) Payment by an employer of employees' tax, or employee's contributions under a State law. The term "wages" includes the amount paid by an employer on behalf of an employee (without deduction from the remuneration of, or other reimbursement from, the employee) on account of any payment required from an employee under a State unemployment compensation law, or on account of any tax imposed upon the employee by any taxing authority, including the taxes imposed by sections 3101 and 3201.

(7) Remuneration for services as employee of nonresident alien individual or foreign entity. The term "wages" includes remuneration for services performed by a citizen or resident of the United States as an employee of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation whether or not such alien individual or foreign entity is engaged in trade or business within the United States. Any person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States (including Puerto Rico as if a part of the United States), is subject to all the provisions of law and regulations applicable with respect to an employer. See § 31.3401 (d)–1, relating to the term "employer", and § 31.3401 (a) (8) (C)–1, relating to remuneration paid for services performed by a citizen of the United States in Puerto Rico.

(8) Amounts paid under wage continuation plans—(i) Amounts paid before January 1, 1956 • • •.

NOTE: Regulations to be prescribed under this subdivision (i) will conform with the provisions of § 406.207 (1) (26 CFR (1939) 406.207 (1)) of Regulations 120 (26 CFR (1939) Part 406), Collection of Income Tax at Source on Wages, which section was added by Treasury Decision 6128, approved March 25, 1955 (20 F. R. 1973). Regulations 120 were made applicable to the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 by Treasury Decision 6091, signed August 16, 1954 (19 F. R. 5167).

(ii) Amounts paid after December 31, 1955 • • •.

NOTE: For regulations under this subdivision, see Treasury Decision 6155, approved December 27, 1955 (20 F. R. 10097).

(9) Value of meals and lodging. The value of any meals or lodging furnished to an employee by his employer is not subject to withholding if the value of the meals or lodging is excludable from the gross income of the employee. See the Income Tax Regulations (Part 1 of this chapter) under section 119.

(10) Facilities or privileges. Ordinarily, facilities or privileges (such as entertainment, medical services, or so-called "courtesy" discounts on purchases), furnished or offered by an employer to his employees generally, are not considered as wages subject to withholding if such facilities or privileges are of relatively small value and are offered or furnished by the employer merely as a means of promoting the health, good will, contentment, or efficiency of his employees.

(11) Tips or gratuities. Tips or gratuities paid directly to an employee by a customer of an employer, and not accounted for by the employee to the employer, are not subject to withholding.

(12) Remuneration for services performed by permanent resident of Virgin Islands—(i) Exemption from withholding. No tax shall be withheld for the United States under chapter 24 from a payment of wages by an employer, including the United States or any agency thereof, to an employee if at the time of payment it is reasonable to believe that the employee will be required to satisfy his income tax obligations with respect to such wages under section 28 (a) of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands. That section provides that all persons whose permanent residence is in the Virgin Islands "shall satisfy their income tax obligations under applicable taxing statutes of the United States by paying their tax on income derived from all sources both within and outside the Virgin Islands into the treasury of the Virgin Islands".

(ii) Claiming exemption. If the employee furnishes to the employer a statement in duplicate, that he expects to satisfy his income tax obligations under section 28 (a) of the Revised Organic Act of the Virgin Islands with respect to all wages subsequently to be paid to him by the employer during the taxable year to which the statement relates, the employer may, in the absence of information to the contrary, rely on such statement as establishing reasonable belief that the employee will so satisfy his income tax obligations. The employee's statement shall identify the taxable year to which it relates, and both the original and the duplicate copy thereof shall be signed and dated by the employee.

(iii) Disposition of statement. The original of the statement shall be retained by the employer. The duplicate copy of the statement shall be sent by the employer to the Director of International Operations, Washington 25, D. C., on or before the last day of the calendar year in which the employer receives the statement from the employee.

(iv) Applicability of subparagraph. This subparagraph has no application with respect to any payment of remuneration which is not subject to withholding by reason of any other provision of the regulations in this subpart.

§ 31.3401 (a)–2 Exclusions from wages—(a) In general. (1) The term "wages" does not include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for his employer which is specifically excepted from wages under section 3401 (a) (see paragraph (b) of this section and §§ 31.3401 (a) (1)–1 to 31.3401 (a) (12)–1, inclusive).

(2) The exception attaches to the remuneration for services performed by an employee and not to the employee as an individual; that is, the exception applies only to the remuneration in an excepted category.

Example. A is an individual who is employed part time by B to perform domestic service in his home (see § 31.3401 (a) (3)–1). A is also employed by C part time to perform services as a clerk in a department store owned by him. While no withholding is required with respect to A's remuneration for services performed in the employ of B (the remuneration being excluded from wages), the exception does not embrace the remuneration for services performed by A in the employ of C and withholding is required with respect to the wages for such services.

(3) For provisions relating to the circumstances under which remuneration which is excepted is nevertheless deemed to be wages, and relating to the circumstances under which remuneration which is not excepted is nevertheless deemed not to be wages, see § 31.3402 (e)–1.

(b) Fees paid a public official. (1) Authorized fees paid to public officials such as notaries public, clerks of courts, sheriffs, etc., for services rendered in the performance of their official duties are excepted from wages and hence are not subject to withholding. However, salaries paid such officials by the Government, or by a Government agency or instrumentality, are subject to withholding.

(2) Amounts paid to precinct workers for services performed at election booths in State, county, and municipal elections and fees paid to jurors and witnesses are in the nature of fees paid to public officials and therefore are not subject to withholding.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

(1) For active service as a member of the Armed Forces of the United States performed in a month for which such member is entitled to the benefits of section 112; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (1)–1 Remuneration of members of the Armed Forces of the United States for active service in combat zone or while hospitalized as a result of such service. Remuneration paid for active service as a member of the Armed Forces of the United States performed in a month during any part of which such member served in a combat zone (as determined under section 112) or is hospitalized at any place as a result of wounds, disease, or injury incurred while serving in such a combat zone is excepted from wages and is, therefore, not subject to withholding. The exception with respect to hospitalization is applicable, however, only if during all of such month there are combatant activities in some combat zone (as determined under section 112). See the Income Tax Regulations (Part 1 of this chapter) under section 112.

§ 31.3401 (a) (2) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration paid for agricultural labor.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

(2) For agricultural labor (as defined in section 3121 (g)); or

§ 31.3401 (a) (2)–1 Agricultural labor. The term "wages" does not include remuneration for services which constitute agricultural labor as defined in section 3121 (g). For regulations relating to the definition of the term "agricultural labor", see § 31.3121 (g)–1 in Subpart B of this part.

§ 31.3401 (a) (3) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration paid for domestic service.

(3) For domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (3)–1 Remuneration for domestic service—(a) In a private home. (1) Remuneration paid for services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about a private home of the person by whom he is employed is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. A private home is a fixed place of abode of an individual or family. A separate and distinct dwelling unit maintained by an individual in an apartment house, hotel, or other similar establishment may constitute a private home. If a dwelling house is used primarily as a boarding or lodging house for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to the public as a business enterprise, it is not a private home, and the remuneration paid for services performed therein is not within the exception.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about a private home include services performed by cooks, waiters, butlers, housekeepers, governesses, maids, valets, baby sitters, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, caretakers, handymen, gardeners, footmen, grooms, and chauffeurs of automobiles for family use.

(b) In a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. (1) Remuneration paid for services of a household nature performed by an employee in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or of a local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority by which he is employed is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. A local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority does not include an alumni club or chapter. If the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority is used primarily for the purpose of supplying board or lodging to students or the public as a business enterprise, the remuneration paid for services performed therein is not within the exception.

(2) In general, services of a household nature in or about the club rooms or house of a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority include services rendered by cooks, waiters, butlers, maids, janitors, laundresses, furnacemen, handymen, gardeners, housekeepers, and housemothers.

(c) Remuneration not excepted. Remuneration paid for services not of a household nature, such as services performed as a private secretary, tutor, or librarian, even though performed in the employer's private home or in a local college club or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority, is not within the exception. Remuneration paid for services of a household nature is not within the exception if performed in or about rooming or lodging houses, boarding houses, clubs, (except local college clubs), hotels, hospitals, eleemosynary institutions, or commercial offices or establishments.

§ 31.3401 (a) (4) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(4) For service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(A) On each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; or

(B) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (4)–1 Cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business. (a) Cash remuneration paid for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed by an employee for an employer in a calendar quarter is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding unless—

(1) The cash remuneration paid for such services performed by the employee for the employer in the calendar quarter is $50 or more; and

(2) Such employee is regularly employed in the calendar quarter by such employer to perform such services.

Unless the tests set forth in both subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are met, cash remuneration for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business is excluded from wages. (For provisions relating to the exclusion from wages of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, see § 31.3401 (a) (11)–1.)

(b) The term "services not in the course of the employer's trade or business" includes services that do not promote or advance the trade or business of the employer. As used in this section, the term does not include service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed on a farm operated for profit or domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. Accordingly, this exception does not apply with respect to remuneration which is excepted from wages under section 3401 (a) (2) or section 3401 (a) (3) (see §§ 31.3401 (a) (2)–1 and 31.3401 (a) (3)–1, respectively). Remuneration paid for service performed for a corporation does not come within the exception.

(c) The test relating to cash remuneration of $50 or more is based on the remuneration earned during a calendar quarter rather than on the remuneration paid in a calendar quarter. However, for purposes of determining whether the test is met, it is also required that the remuneration be paid, although it is immaterial when the remuneration is paid. Furthermore, in determining whether $50 or more has been paid for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business, only cash remuneration for such service shall be taken into account. The term "cash remuneration" includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any other medium, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, is disregarded in determining whether the cash-remuneration test is met.

(d) For purposes of this exception, an individual is deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(1) Such individual performs service not in the course of the employer's trade or business for such employer for some portion of the day on at least 24 days (whether or not consecutive) during such calendar quarter; or

(2) Such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph) by such employer in the performance of service not in the course of the employer's trade or business during the preceding calendar quarter.

(e) In determining whether an employee has performed service not in the course of the employer's trade or business on at least 24 days during a calendar quarter, there shall be counted as one day—

(1) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee actually performs such service; and

(2) Any day or portion thereof on which the employee does not perform service of the prescribed character but with respect to which cash remuneration is paid or payable to the employee for such service, such as a day on which the employee is sick or on vacation. An employee who on a particular day reports for work and, at the direction of his employer, holds himself in readiness to perform service not in the course of the employer's trade or business shall be considered to be engaged in the actual performance of such service on that day. For purposes of this exception, a day is a continuous period of 24 hours commencing at midnight and ending at midnight.

§ 31.3401 (a) (5) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services for foreign government or international organization.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration * * * for services performed by an employee for his employer * * *; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

* * * * *

(5) For services by a citizen or resident of the United States for a foreign government or an international organization; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (5)–1 Remuneration for services for foreign government or international organization—(a) Services for foreign government. (1) Remuneration paid for services performed as an employee of a foreign government is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. The exception includes not only remuneration paid for services performed by ambassadors, ministers, and other diplomatic officers and employees but also remuneration paid for services performed as a consular or other officer or employee of a foreign government or as a nondiplomatic representative of such a government. However, the exception does not include remuneration for services performed for a corporation created or organized in the United States or under the laws of the United States or any State (including the District of Columbia or the Territory of Alaska or Hawaii) or of Puerto Rico even though such corporation is wholly owned by such a government.

(2) The citizenship or residence of the employee and the place where the services are performed are immaterial for purposes of the exception.

(b) Services for international organization. (1) Subject to the provisions of section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act, remuneration paid for services performed within or without the United States by an employee for an international organization as defined in section 7701 (a) (18) is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. The term "employee" as used in the preceding sentence includes not only an employee who is a citizen or resident of the United States but also an employee who is a nonresident alien individual. The term "employee" also includes an officer. An organization designated by the President through appropriate Executive order as entitled to enjoy the privileges, exemptions, and immunities provided in the International Organizations Immunities Act may enjoy the benefits of the exclusion from wages with respect to remuneration paid for services performed for such organization prior to the date of the issuance of such Executive order, if (i) the Executive order does not provide otherwise and (ii) the organization is a public international organization in which the United States participates, pursuant to a treaty or under the authority of an act of Congress authorizing such participation or making an appropriation for such participation, at the time such services are performed.

(2) Section 7701 (a) (18) provides as follows:

SEC. 7701. Definitions. (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

* * * * *

(18) International organization. The term "international organization" means a public international organization entitled to enjoy privileges, exemptions, and immunities as an international organization under the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U. S. C. 288–288f).

(3) Section 1 of the International Organizations Immunities Act provides as follows:

SECTION 1. [International Organizations Immunities Act.] For the purposes of this title [International Organizations Immunities Act], the term "international organization" means a public international organization in which the United States Participates pursuant to any treaty or under the authority of any Act of Congress authorizing such participation or making an appropriation for such participation, and which shall have been designated by the President through appropriate Executive order as being entitled to enjoy the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided. The President shall be authorized, in the light of the functions performed by any such international organization, by appropriate Executive order to withhold or withdraw from any such organization or its officers or employees any of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities provided for in this title (including the amendments made by this title) or to condition or limit the enjoyment by any such organization or its officers or employees of any such privilege, exemption, or immunity. The President shall be authorized, if in his judgment such action should be justified by reason of the abuse by an international organization or its officers and employees of the privileges, exemptions, and immunities herein provided or for any other reason, at any time to revoke the designation of any international organization under this section, whereupon the international organization in question shall cease to be classed as an international organization for the purposes of this title.

§ 31.3401 (a) (6) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services of certain nonresident alien individuals.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration * * * for services performed by an employee for his employer * * *; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

* * * * *

(6) For services performed by a nonresident alien individual, other than—

(A) A resident of a contiguous country who enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals; or

(B) A resident of Puerto Rico if such services are performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (6)–1 Remuneration for services of certain nonresident alien individuals. (a) Except in the case of certain nonresident alien individuals who are residents of Canada, Mexico, or Puerto Rico, remuneration for services performed by nonresident alien individuals does not constitute wages subject to withholding under section 3402. For withholding of income tax on remuneration paid for services performed within the United States in the case of nonresident alien individuals generally, see the Income Tax Regulations (Part 1 of this chapter) under section 1441.

(b) Remuneration paid to nonresident aliens who are residents of a contiguous country (Canada or Mexico) and who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals is not excepted from wages under section 3401 (a) (6). See, however, § 31.3401 (a) (7)–1, relating to remuneration paid to such nonresident alien individuals when engaged in transportation service.

(c) Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual for services performed in Puerto Rico for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding, even though such alien individual is a resident of Puerto Rico at the time when such services are performed. Wages paid for services performed by a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico are subject to withholding if such services are performed as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof. The place of performance of such services is immaterial, provided such alien individual is a resident of Puerto Rico at the time of performance of the services. Wages representing retirement pay for service in the Armed Forces of the United States, the Coast and Geodetic Survey, or the Public Health Service are subject to withholding, under the limitations specified in § 31.3401 (a)–1 (b) (1) (ii), in the case of an alien resident of Puerto Rico.

§ 31.3401 (a) (7) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services performed by nonresident alien individuals who are residents of a contiguous country and who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration * * * for services performed by an employee for his employer * * *; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

* * * * *

(7) For such services, performed by a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of a contiguous country and who enters and leaves the United States at frequent intervals, as may be designated by regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (7)–1 Remuneration for services performed by nonresident alien individuals who are residents of a contiguous country and who enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals. (a) Remuneration paid to nonresident aliens who are residents of a contiguous country (Canada or Mexico) and who, in the performance of their duties in transportation service between points in the United States and points in a contiguous country, enter and leave the United States at frequent intervals is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. This exception applies to personnel engaged in railroad, bus, ferry, steamboat and aircraft services and applies alike whether the employer is a domestic or foreign entity. Thus, the remuneration of a nonresident alien individual who is a resident of Canada and an employee of a domestic railroad, for services as a member of the crew of a train operating between points in Canada and points in the United States, is not subject to withholding under section 3402. The exception, however, has no application to the remuneration of a resident of Canada who, for example, is employed at a fixed point in the United States, such as a factory, store, or office, and who commutes from his home in Canada in the pursuit of his employment within the United States; nor does it apply to the remuneration of an alien employee of a railroad corporation who is on duty within the United States, even though he enters and leaves the United States in reaching his place of employment from his home in a contiguous country.

(b) In order for the exception to apply, the non-resident alien employee must furnish his employer a statement showing the employee's name and address and certifying (1) that he is not a citizen of the United States, (2) that he is a resident of Canada or Mexico, as the case may be, and (3) the approximate period of time during which he has occupied such status. Such statement shall be dated, shall be signed by the employee, and shall contain, or be verified by, a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury. No particular form is prescribed for this statement.

(8) (A) For services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof)—

(i) Performed by a citizen of the United States if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under section 911; or

(ii) Performed in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by such a citizen if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, the employer is required by the law of any foreign country or possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration; or

[Sec. 3401 (a) (8) as amended by act of Aug. 9, 1955, 69 Stat. 617, which added "or in a possession of the United States" and "or possession of the United States" to subparagraph (A) (ii). Effective with respect to remuneration paid on or after August 9, 1955.]

§ 31.3401 (a) (8) (A)–1 Remuneration for services performed outside the United States by citizens of the United States—(a) Remuneration excluded from gross income under section 911—(1) Resident of a foreign country. (i) Remuneration paid for services performed outside the United States for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if at the time of payment it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1). The reasonable belief contemplated by the statute may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief, even though such evidence may be insufficient upon closer examination by the district director or the courts finally to establish that the remuneration is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1).

(ii) If an individual citizen of the United States establishes to the satisfaction of the district director that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year, amounts received by such individual from sources without the United States (except amounts paid by the United States or any agency thereof) are excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1), provided that such amounts constitute earned income, as defined in section 911 (b), which is attributable to such uninterrupted period. See the Income Tax Regulations (Part 1 of this chapter) under section 911.

(iii) The employer may, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, presume that remuneration for services performed outside the United States during the taxable year, or applicable portion thereof, will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) for each taxable year in respect of which the employee properly executes and furnishes in duplicate to the employer a statement in the following form:

Statement for claiming benefits of Section 911 (a) (1) for calendar year ------ or fiscal year beginning ------ and ending ------.

(A) My name is ---------- My present address is ---------- I am employed by ----------.

(B) My last address in the United States was ---------- The internal revenue district in which I filed my last income tax return is ----------.

(C) I ---------- file my income tax return on the calendar-year basis.
(Do or do not)

(D) I file my income tax return on the basis of the fiscal year beginning ----------, 19--, and ending ----------, 19--.

(E) I am a citizen of the United States.

(F) I have been a bona fide resident of the following foreign country or countries, namely, ----------, for an uninterrupted period which began on ----------, 19--.

(G) I expect to remain a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries from the date of this statement until the end of the taxable year in respect of which this statement is executed.

(H) On the basis of the facts in my case I have good reason to believe that, with respect to the above period of foreign residence falling within the taxable year, I will satisfy the bona fide foreign-residence requirement prescribed by section 911 (a) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

(I) I understand that any exemption from withholding of tax permitted by reason of the furnishing of this statement is not a determination by the district director of internal revenue that any remuneration paid to me for any services performed during the taxable year is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1).

I declare under the penalties of perjury that this statement has been examined by me and to the best of my knowledge and belief is true and correct.

(iv) If the employer was entitled to presume for the two consecutive taxable years immediately preceding an employee's current taxable year that such employee's remuneration for services performed outside the United States during such preceding taxable years would be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) (or section 116 (a) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939), he may, if such employee is residing in a foreign country on the first day of such current taxable year, presume that, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, the remuneration for services performed outside the United States during such current taxable year will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (1) without obtaining from the employee the statement prescribed in subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph.

(2) Physical presence in a foreign country. (i) Remuneration paid for services performed outside the United States for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if at the time of payment it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2). The reasonable belief contemplated by the statute may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief, even though such evidence may be insufficient upon closer examination by the district director or the courts finally to establish that the remuneration is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2).

(ii) If an individual citizen of the United States is present in a foreign country or countries during at least 510 full days during any period of 18 consecutive months, amounts received by such individual from sources without the United States (except amounts paid by the United States or any agency thereof) are excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2), provided that such amounts constitute earned income, as defined in section 911 (b), which is attributable to such period. However, the total amount so excluded from gross income under the provisions of such section may not exceed $20,000 for each taxable year if the 18-month period includes the entire taxable year. If the 18-month period does not include the entire taxable year, the amount excluded from gross income under such section for such taxable year may not exceed an amount which bears the same ratio to $20,000 as the number of days in the part of the taxable year within the 18-month period bears to the total number of days in such year. See the Income Tax Regulations (Part 1 of this chapter) under section 911.

(iii) The employer may, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, presume that remuneration for services performed outside the United States during the taxable year, or applicable portion thereof, will be excluded from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2) for each taxable year in respect of which the employee properly executes and furnishes in duplicate to the employer a statement in the form set forth below. The presumption shall not apply after the total payments made during the taxable year of the employee equal $20,000 or such lesser amount as may be allowable under section 911 (a) (2) on the basis of the facts shown in such statement.

Statement for claiming benefits of Section 911 (a) (2) for calendar year ------ or fiscal year beginning ------ and ending ------:

(A) My name is ----------. My present address is ----------. I am employed by ----------.

(B) My last address in the United States was ----------. The internal revenue district in which I filed my last income tax return is ----------.

(C) I ---------- file my income tax return on the calendar-year basis.
(Do or do not)

(D) I file my income tax return on the basis of the fiscal year beginning ----------, 19--, and ending ----------, 19--.

(E) I am a citizen of the United States.

(F) Except for occasional absences which have not disqualified me for the benefit of section 911 (a) (2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, I have been present in the following foreign country or countries, namely ----------, during the period of time which began on ----------, 19--.

(G) I expect to be present in a foreign country or countries, except for occasional absences not disqualifying me for the benefit of section 911 (a) (2), from the date of this statement until the end of the taxable year in respect of which this statement is executed, or, if not for such period, from the date of this statement until the following date within such taxable year, namely, ----------, 19--.

(H) On the basis of the facts in my case I have good reason to believe that, with respect to the above period of presence in a foreign country or countries falling within the taxable year, I will satisfy the 510 full-day requirement prescribed by section 911 (a) (2).

(I) In the event I become disqualified for the exclusion provided by section 911 (a) (2) in respect of all or part of the above period of presence in a foreign country or countries falling within the taxable year, I will immediately notify my employer, giving sufficient facts to indicate the part, if any, of such period falling within such year in respect of which I am qualified for such exclusion.

(J) I understand that any exemption from withholding of tax permitted by reason of the furnishing of this statement is not a determination by the district director of internal revenue that any remuneration paid to me for any services performed during the taxable year is excludable from gross income under the provisions of section 911 (a) (2).

I declare under the penalties of perjury that this statement has been examined by me and to the best of my knowledge and belief is true and correct.

Date: ----------, 19--.

(3) Disposition of statements for claiming benefits of section 911. The original of each statement furnished to the employer pursuant to subparagraph (1) (iii) or (2) (iii) of this paragraph shall be transmitted to the district director with the employer's return filed pursuant to the provisions of Subpart G of the regulations in this part for the tax-return period in which such statement is received by the employer. The duplicate copy of each such statement shall be retained by the employer.

(b) Remuneration subject to withholding of income tax under law of a foreign country or a possession of the United States. (1) Remuneration paid for services performed in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if at the time of the payment of such remuneration the employer is required by the law of any foreign country or of any possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration. This paragraph, insofar as it relates to remuneration paid for services performed in a possession of the United States, applies only with respect to remuneration paid on or after August 9, 1955.

(2) Remuneration is not exempt from withholding under this paragraph if the employer is not required by the law of a foreign country or of a possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration. Mere agreements between the employer and the employee whereby the estimated income tax of a foreign country or of a possession of the United States is withheld from the remuneration in anticipation of actual liability under the law of such country or possession will not suffice.

(3) The exemption from withholding provided by this paragraph does not apply by reason of withholding of income tax pursuant to the law of a territory of the United States, of a political subdivision of a possession of the United States, or of a political subdivision of a foreign state.

(4) For provisions relating to remuneration for services performed by a permanent resident of the Virgin Islands, see § 31.3401 (a)–1 (b) (12).

The reasonable belief contemplated by section 3401 (a) (8) (B) may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief.

§ 31.3401 (a) (8) (C)–1 Remuneration for services performed in Puerto Rico by citizen of the United States. (a) Remuneration paid for services performed within Puerto Rico for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) by a citizen of the United States does not constitute wages and hence is not subject to withholding, if it is reasonable to believe that during the entire calendar year the employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico. The reasonable belief contemplated by section 3401 (a) (8) (C) may be based upon any evidence reasonably sufficient to induce such belief.

(b) The employer may, in the absence of cause for a reasonable belief to the contrary, presume that an employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire calendar year—

(1) Unless the employee is known by the employer to have maintained his abode at a place outside Puerto Rico at some time during the current or the preceding calendar year; or

(2) In any case where the employee files with the employer a statement (containing a declaration under the penalties of perjury that such statement is true to the best of the empolyee's knowledge and belief) that such employee has at all times during the current calendar year been a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico and that he intends to remain a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire remaining portion of such current calendar year.

(c) This section has no application to remuneration paid to a citizen of the United States for services performed in Puerto Rico as an employee of the United States or any agency thereof.

§ 31.3401 (a) (9) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages, remunernation for services performed by a minister of a church or a member of a religious order.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(9) For services performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (9)–1 Remuneration for services performed by a minister of a church or a member of a religious order—(a) In general. Remuneration paid for services performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry, or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

(b) Service by a minister in the exercise of his ministry. Except as provided in paragraph (c) (3) of this section, service performed by a minister in the exercise of his ministry includes the ministration of sacerdotal functions and the conduct of religious worship, and the control, conduct, and maintenance of religious organizations (including the religious boards, societies, and other integral agencies of such organizations), under the authority of a religious body constituting a church or church denomination. The following rules are applicable in determining whether services performed by a minister are performed in the exercise of his ministry:

(1) Whether service performed by a minister constitutes the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions depends on the tenets and practices of the particular religious body constituting his church or church denomination.

(2) Service performed by a minister in the control, conduct, and maintenance of a religious organization relates to directing, managing, or promoting the activities of such organization. Any religious organization is deemed to be under the authority of a religious body constituting a church or church denomination if it is organized and dedicated to carrying out the tenets and principles of a faith in accordance with either the requirements or sanctions governing the creation of institutions of the faith. The term "religious organization" has the same meaning and application as is given to the term for income tax purposes.

(3) (i) If a minister is performing service in the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions, such service is in the exercise of his ministry whether or not it is performed for a religious organization.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is engaged to perform service as chaplain at N University. M devotes his entire time to performing his duties as chaplain which include the conduct of religious worship, offering spiritual counsel to the university students, and teaching a class in religion. M is performing service in the exercise of his ministry.

(4) (i) If a minister is performing service for an organization which is operated as an integral agency of a religious organization under the authority of a religious body constituting a church or church denomination, all service performed by the minister in the conduct of religious worship, in the ministration of sacerdotal functions, or in the control, conduct, and maintenance of such organization (see subparagraph (2) of this paragraph) is in the exercise of his ministry.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is engaged by the N Religious Board to serve as director of one of its departments. He performs no other service. The N Religious Board is an integral agency of O, a religious organization operating under the authority of a religious body constituting a church denomination. M is performing service in the exercise of his ministry.

(5) (i) If a minister, pursuant to an assignment or designation by a religious body constituting his church, performs service for an organization which is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization, all service performed by him, even though such service may not involve the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions, is in the exercise of his ministry.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is assigned by X, the religious body constituting his church, to perform advisory service to Y Company in connection with the publication of a book dealing with the history of M's church denomination. Y is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization. M performs no other service for X or Y. M is performing service in the exercise of his ministry.

(c) Service by a minister not in the exercise of his ministry. (1) Section 3401 (a) (9) does not except from wages remuneration for service performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church which is not in the exercise of his ministry.

(2) (i) If a minister is performing service for an organization which is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization and the service is not performed pursuant to an assignment or designation by his ecclesiastical superiors, then only the service performed by him in the conduct of religious worship or the ministration of sacerdotal functions is in the exercise of his ministry. See, however, subparagraph (3) of this paragraph.

(ii) The rule in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. M, a duly ordained minister, is engaged by N University to teach history and mathematics. He performs no other service for N although from time to time he performs marriages and conducts funerals for relatives and friends. N University is neither a religious organization nor operated as an integral agency of a religious organization. M is not performing the service for N pursuant to an assignment or designation by his ecclesiastical superiors. The service performed by M for N University is not in the exercise of his ministry. However, service performed by M in performing marriages and conducting funerals is in the exercise of his ministry.

(3) Service performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church as an employee of the United States, or a State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or a foreign government, or a political subdivision of any of the foregoing, is not considered to be in the exercise of his ministry for purposes of the collection of income tax at source on wages, even though such service may involve the ministration of sacerdotal functions or the conduct of religious worship. Thus, for example, service performed by an individual as a chaplain in the Armed Forces of the United States is considered to be performed by a commissioned officer in his capacity as such, and not by a minister in the exercise of his ministry. Similarly, service performed by an employee of a State as a chaplain in a State prison is considered to be performed by a civil servant of the State and not by a minister in the exercise of his ministry.

(d) Service in the exercise of duties required by a religious order. Service performed by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order includes all duties required of the member by the order. The nature or extent of such service is immaterial so long as it is a service which he is directed or required to perform by his ecclesiastical superiors.

§ 31.3401 (a) (10) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration for services in the delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(10) (A) For services performed by an individual under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution; or

(B) For services performed by an individual in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers, under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his compensation being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, whether or not he is guaranteed a minimum amount of compensation for such services, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (10)–1 Remuneration for services in delivery or distribution of newspapers, shopping news, or magazines. (a) Services of individuals under age 18. Remuneration for services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in the delivery or distribution of newspapers, or shopping news, not including delivery or distribution (as, for example, by a regional distributor) to any point for subsequent delivery or distribution, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. Thus, remuneration for services performed by an employee under the age of 18 in making house-to-house delivery or sale of newspapers or shopping news, including handbills and other similar types of advertising material, is excepted from wages. The remuneration is excepted irrespective of the form or method thereof. Remuneration for incidental services by the employee who makes the house-to-house delivery, such as services in assembling newspapers, is considered to be within the exception. The exception continues only during the time that the employee is under the age of 18.

(b) Services of individuals of any age. Remuneration for services performed by an employee in, and at the time of, the sale of newspapers or magazines to ultimate consumers under an arrangement under which the newspapers or magazines are to be sold by him at a fixed price, his remuneration being based on the retention of the excess of such price over the amount at which the newspapers or magazines are charged to him, is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. The remuneration is expected whether or not the employee is guaranteed a minimum amount of remuneration, or is entitled to be credited with the unsold newspapers or magazines turned back. Moreover, the remuneration is excepted without regard to the age of the employee. Remuneration for services performed other than at the time of sale to the ultimate consumer is not within the exception. Thus, remuneration for services of a regional distributor which are antecedent to but not immediately part of the sale to the ultimate consumer is not within the exception. However, remuneration for incidental services by the employee who makes the sale to the ultimate consumer, such as services in assembling newspapers or in taking newspapers or magazines to the place of sale, is considered to be within the exception.

§ 31.3401 (a) (11) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; remuneration other than in cash for services not in the course of employer's trade or business.

SEC. 3401. Definition—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(11) For services in the course of the employer's trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other than cash; or

§ 31.3401 (a) (11)–1 Remuneration other than in cash for service not in the course of employer's trade or business. (a) Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding. Cash remuneration includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute wages. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for other types of services does not come within this exception from wages. For provisions relating to cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business, see § 31.3401 (a) (4)–1.

(b) As used in this section, the term "services not in the course of the employer's trade or business" has the same meaning as when used in § 31.3401 (a) (4)–1.

§ 31.3401 (a) (12) Statutory provisions; definitions; wages; payments from or to certain tax-exempt trusts or under or to certain annuity plans.

SEC. 3401. Definitions—(a) Wages. For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration • • • for services performed by an employee for his employer • • •; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

• • • • •

(12) To, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary—

(A) From or to a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust; or

(B) Under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6).

§ 31.3401 (a) (12)–1 Payments from or to certain tax-exempt trusts or under or to certain annuity plans. The term "wages" does not include—

(a) Any payment made by an employer, on behalf of an employee or his beneficiary, into a trust or annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6); or

(b) Any payment made to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary from a trust or under an annuity plan, if at the time of such payment the trust is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) as an organization described in section 401 (a) or the annuity plan meets the requirements of section 401 (a) (3), (4), (5), and (6).

A payment made to an employee of a trust described in section 401 (a) which is exempt from tax under section 501 (a) for services rendered as an employee of such trust and not as a beneficiary of the trust is not within this exception from wages.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(b) Payroll period. For purposes of this chapter, the term "payroll period" means a period for which a payment of wages is ordinarily made to the employee by his employer, and the term "miscellaneous payroll period" means a payroll period other than a daily, weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, quarterly, semiannual, or annual payroll period.

§ 31.3401 (b)–1 Payroll period. (a) The term "payroll period" means the period of service for which a payment of wages is ordinarily made to an employee by his employer. It is immaterial that the wages are not always paid at regular intervals. For example, if an employer ordinarily pays a particular employee for each calendar week at the end of the week, but if for some reason the employee in a given week receives a payment in the middle of the week for the portion of the week already elapsed and receives the remainder at the end of the week, the payroll period is still the calendar week; or if, instead, that employee is sent on a 3-week trip by his employer and receives at the end of the trip a single wage payment for three weeks' services, the payroll period is still the calendar week, and the wage payment shall be treated as though it were three separate weekly wage payments.

(b) For the purpose of section 3402, an employee can have but one payroll period with respect to wages paid by any one employer. Thus, if an employee is paid a regular wage for a weekly payroll period and in addition thereto is paid supplemental wages (for example, bonuses) determined with respect to a different period, the payroll period is the weekly payroll period. For computation of tax on supplemental wage payments, see § 31.3402 (g)–1.

(c) The term "miscellaneous payroll period" means a payroll period other than a daily, weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, quarterly, semiannual, or annual payroll period.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(c) Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

§ 31.3401 (c)–1 Employee. (a) The term "employee" includes every individual performing services if the relationship between him and the person for whom he performs such services is the legal relationship of employer and employee. The term includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a State, Territory, Puerto Rico, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing.

(b) Generally the relationship of employer and employee exists when the person for whom services are performed has the right to control and direct the individual who performs the services, not only as to the result to be accomplished by the work but also as to the details and means by which that result is accomplished. That is, an employee is subject to the will and control of the employer not only as to what shall be done but how it shall be done. In this connection, it is not necessary that the employer actually direct or control the manner in which the services are performed; it is sufficient if he has the right to do so. The right to discharge is also an important factor indicating that the person possessing that right is an employer. Other factors characteristic of an employer, but not necessarily present in every case, are the furnishing of tools and the furnishing of a place to work to the individual who performs the services. In general, if an individual is subject to the control or direction of another merely as to the result to be accomplished by the work and not as to the means and methods for accomplishing the result, he is not an employee.

(c) Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, subcontractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are not employees.

(d) Whether the relationship of employer and employee exists will in doubtful cases be determined upon an examination of the particular facts of each case.

(e) If the relationship of employer and employee exists, the designation or description of the relationship by the parties as anything other than that of employer and employee is immaterial. Thus, if such relationship exists, it is of no consequence that the employee is designated as a partner, coadventurer, agent, independent contractor, or the like.

(f) All classes or grades of employees are included within the relationship of employer and employee. Thus, superintendents, managers, and other supervisory personnel are employees. Generally, an officer of a corporation is an employee of the corporation. However, an officer of a corporation who as such does not perform any services or performs only minor services and who neither receives nor is entitled to receive, directly or indirectly, any remuneration is not considered to be an employee of the corporation. A director of a corporation in his capacity as such is not an employee of the corporation.

(g) Although an individual may be an employee under this section, his services may be of such a nature, or performed under such circumstances, that the remuneration paid for such services does not constitute wages within the meaning of section 3401 (a).

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(d) Employer. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" means the person for whom an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person, except that—

(1) If the person for whom the individual performs or performed the services does not have control of the payment of the wages for such services, the term "employer" (except for purposes of subsection (a)) means the person having control of the payment of such wages, and

(2) In the case of a person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States, the term "employer" (except for purposes of subsection (a)) means such person.

§ 31.3401 (d)–1 Employer. (a) The term "employer" means any person for whom an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person.

(b) It is not necessary that the services be continuing at the time the wages are paid in order that the status of employer exist. Thus, for purposes of withholding, a person for whom an individual has performed past services for which he is still receiving wages from such person is an "employer."

(c) An employer may be an individual, a corporation, a partnership, a trust, an estate, a joint-stock company, an association, or a syndicate, group, pool, joint venture, or other unincorporated organization, group or entity. A trust or estate, rather than the fiduciary acting for or on behalf of the trust or estate, is generally the employer.

(d) The term "employer" embraces not only individuals and organizations engaged in trade or business, but organizations exempt from income tax, such as religious and charitable organizations, educational institutions, clubs, social organizations and societies, as well as the governments of the United States, the States, Territories, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia, including their agencies, instrumentalities, and political subdivisions.

(e) The term "employer" also means (except for the purpose of the definition of "wages") any person paying wages on behalf of a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States (including Puerto Rico as if a part of the United States).

(f) If the person for whom the services are or were performed does not have legal control of the payment of the wages for such services, the term "employer" means (except for the purpose of the definition of "wages") the person having such control. For example, where wages, such as certain types of pensions or retired pay, are paid by a trust and the person for whom the services were performed has no legal control over the payment of such wages, the trust is the "employer."

(g) It is a basic purpose to centralize in the employer the responsibility for withholding, returning, and paying the tax, and for furnishing the statements required under section 6051 (see Subpart G of the regulations in this part). The two special definitions of the term "employer" in paragraphs (e) and (f) of this section are designed solely to meet unusual situations. They are not intended as a departure from the basic purpose.

SEC. 3401. Definitions. • • •

(e) Number of withholding exemptions claimed. For purposes of this chapter, the term "number of withholding exemptions claimed" means the number of withholding exemptions claimed in a withholding exemption certificate in effect under section 3402 (f), or in effect under the corresponding section of prior law, except that if no such certificate is in effect, the number of withholding exemptions claimed shall be considered to be zero.

§ 31.3401 (e)–1 Number of withholding exemptions claimed. (a) The term "number of withholding exemptions claimed" means the number of withholding exemptions claimed in a withholding exemption certificate in effect under section 3402 (f) or in effect under section 1622 (h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. If no such certificate is in effect, the number of withholding exemptions claimed shall be considered to be zero. The number of withholding exemptions claimed must be taken into account in determining the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld under section 3402, whether the employer computes the tax in accordance with the provisions of subsection (a) or subsection (c) of section 3402.

(b) The employer is not required to ascertain whether or not the number of withholding exemptions claimed is greater than the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled. If, however, the employer has reason to believe that the number of withholding exemptions claimed by an employee is greater than the number to which such employee is entitled, the district director should be so advised.

(c) As to the number of withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled, see § 31.3402 (f) (1)–1.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source.

(a) Requirement of withholding. Every employer making payment of wages shall deduct and withhold upon such wages (except as provided in subsection (j)) a tax equal to 18 percent of the amount by which the wages exceed the number of withholding exemptions claimed, multiplied by the amount of one such exemption as shown in subsection (b) (1).

[Sec. 3402 (a) as amended by Act of Aug. 9, 1955, 69 Stat. 605, which added "(except as provided in subsection (j))". Effective only with respect to remuneration paid after August 9, 1955.]

(b) The employer is required to collect the tax by deducting and withholding the amount thereof from the employee's wages as and when paid, either actually or constructively. Wages are constructively paid when they are credited to the account of or set apart for an employee so that they may be drawn upon by him at any time although not then actually reduced to possession. To constitute payment in such a case, the wages must be credited to or set apart for the employee without any substantial limitation or restriction as to the time or manner of payment or condition upon which payment is to be made, and must be made available to him so that they may be drawn upon at any time, and their payment brought within his own control and disposition.

(c) Except as provided in section 3402 (j) (see § 31.3402 (j)–1, relating to noncash remuneration paid to retail commission salesmen), an employer is required to deduct and withhold the tax notwithstanding the wages are paid in something paid in stocks or bonds; see § 31.3401 other than money (for example, wages (a)–1) and to pay over the tax in money. If wages are paid in property other than money, the employer should make necessary arrangements to insure that the amount of the tax required to be withheld is available for payment in money.

(d) For provisions relating to the circumstances under which tax is not required to be deducted and withheld from certain wage payments, see § 31.3401 (a)–1 (b) (8) relating to amounts paid under wage continuation plans.

(e) As a matter of business administration, certain of the mechanical details of the withholding process may be handled by representatives of the employer. Thus, in the case of an employer having branch offices, the branch manager or other representative may actually, as a matter of internal administration, withhold the tax or prepare the statements required under section 6051. Nevertheless, the legal responsibility for withholding, paying, and returning the tax and furnishing such statements rests with the employer. For provisions relating to statements under section 6051, see the regulations under such section in Subpart G of this part.

(f) The amount of any tax withheld and collected by the employer is a special fund in trust for the United States. See section 7501.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • • (b) Percentage method of withholding. (1) The table referred to in subsection (a) is as follows:

PERCENTAGE METHOD WITHHOLDING TABLE

Payroll period:	Amount of one withholding exemption
Weekly	$13.00
Biweekly	26.00
Semimonthly	28.00
Monthly	56.00
Quarterly	167.00
Semiannual	333.00
Annual	667.00
Daily or miscellaneous (per day of such period)	1.80

(2) If wages are paid with respect to a period which is not a payroll period, the withholding exemption allowable with respect to each payment of such wages shall be the exemption allowed for a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

(3) In any case in which wages are paid by an employer without regard to any payroll period or other period, the withholding exemption allowable with respect to each payment of such wages shall be the exemption allowed for a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed since the date of the last payment of such wages by such employer during the calendar year, or the date of commencement of employment with such employer during such year, or January 1 of such year, whichever is the later.

(4) In any case in which the period, or the time described in paragraph (3), in respect of any wages is less than one week, the Secretary or his delegate, under regulations prescribed by him, may authorize an employer, in computing the tax required to be deducted and withheld, to use the excess of the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week over the withholding exemption allowed by this subsection for a weekly payroll period.

(5) In determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under this subsection, the wages may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar.

§ 31.3402 (b)–1 Percentage method of withholding—(a) In general. (1) The percentage method of computing the amount of tax to be withheld makes use of the percentage method withholding table contained in section 3402 (b) (1). This table shows with respect to each of the designated payroll periods the amount allowable for one withholding exemption. The amount of the withholding exemption allowable with respect to a particular payroll period depends upon the number of withholding exemptions claimed. The term "payroll period" is defined in section 3401 (b) (see § 31.3401 (b)–1). The term "number of witholding exemptions claimed" is defined in section 3401 (e) (see § 31.3401 (e)–1).

(2) The steps in computing the tax under the percentage method of withholding are summarized as follows:

Step 1. Determine the amount of one withholding exemption for the particular payroll period from the percentage method withholding table.

Step 2. Multiply the amount determined in Step 1 by the number of exemptions claimed by the employee.

Step 3. Subtract the amount determined in Step 2 from the employee's wages.

Step 4. Multiply the difference by the applicable percentage figure under section 3402 (a) (see § 31.3402 (a)).

The result is the amount of tax to be withheld.

Example. During a period in which the rate under the percentage method of withholding is 18 percent, an employee has a weekly payroll period, for which he is paid $75, and has in effect a withholding exemption certificate claiming three withholding exemptions. His employer, using the percentage method, computes the tax to be withheld as follows:

Step 1:
Amount of one withholding exemption	$13.00
Step 2:
Multiplied by number of exemptions claimed on Form W–4	×3
Total withholding exemption	39.00
Step 3:
Total wage payment	75.00
Less amount determined in Step 2	39.00
Balance subject to tax	36.00
Step 4:
Tax to be withheld (balance multiplied by 0.18)	6.48

(3) For provisions relating to the treatment of wages paid under wage continuation plans and wages paid other than in cash to retail commission salesmen, see §§ 31.3401 (a)–1 (b) (8) and 31.3402 (j)–1, respectively.

(b) Established payroll periods, other than daily or miscellaneous, as shown in percentage method withholding table. The amount of one withholding exemption, allowable with respect to each of the established payroll periods contained in the percentage method withholding table, is determined by reference to the line applicable to such payroll period and without reference to the time the employee is actually engaged in the performance of services during such payroll period.

Example (1). During 1955 employee C has a semimonthly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by C is two. C's wages are determined at the rate of $1.20 per hour. During a certain payroll period he works only 40 hours and earns $48. Although C worked only 40 hours during the semimonthly payroll period, the applicable withholding exemption is $28, and the amount of two withholding exemptions, or $56, is allowable. Since the amount of the wages paid for the semimonthly payroll period is less than the amount allowed for two withholding exemptions for such period, the employer is not required to withhold any tax.

Example (2). During 1955 employee D has a weekly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by D is two. D's wages are determined at the rate of $1.20 per hour. During a certain payroll period D works 30 hours and earns $36. Although D worked only 30 hours during the weekly payroll period, the applicable withholding exemption is $18, and the amount of two withholding exemptions, or $36, is allowable. The balance of $10 is subject to withholding.

(c) Periods to which the daily or miscellaneous withholding exemption is applicable—(1) In general. The percentage method withholding table shows for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period the amount of one withholding exemption allowable with respect to one day. For the purpose of determining the amount of tax to be withheld with respect to wages paid for a particular miscellaneous payroll period (see § 31.3401 (b)–1 (c)), the amount of one withholding exemption shown in the table for one day of such period and the wages paid for the period must be placed on a comparable basis. The amount of tax to be withheld may be determined by either of the following methods:

(i) Under the first method the following steps are taken:

Step 1. Multiply the amount shown in the percentage method withholding table as applicable per day of a miscellaneous payroll period by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in such period.

Step 2. Multiply the amount determined in Step 1 by the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee.

Step 3. Subtract the amount determined in Step 2 from the employee's wages.

Step 4. Multiply the difference by the applicable percentage figure under section 3402 (a) (see § 31.3402 (a)).

(ii) Under the second method the following steps are taken:

Step 1. Divide the wages paid to the employee for the period by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period.

Step 2. Multiply the amount shown in the percentage method withholding table as applicable per day of a miscellaneous payroll period by the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee.

Step 3. Subtract the amount determined in Step 2 from the amount determined in Step 1.

Step 4. Multiply the difference by the applicable percentage figure under section 3402 (a) (see § 31.3402 (a)).

Step 5. Multiply the amount determined in Step 4 by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period.

(2) Period not a payroll period. If wages are paid for a period which is not a payroll period, the withholding exemption allowable with respect to each payment of such wages shall be the exemption allowable for a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

Example. During 1955 an individual is hired by a contractor to perform services in connection with a building project. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by such individual is two. Wages are fixed at the rate of $9 per day, to be paid upon completion of the project. The project is completed during 1955 in 12 consecutive days, at the end of which period the individual is paid wages of $90 for 10 days' services performed during the period. For the purpose of computing the tax amount of the withholding exemption allowable for the 12-day period is $43.20 (12×(2×$1.80)). Tax is required to be withheld with respect to $46.80 ($90 minus $43.20).

(3) Wages paid without regard to any period. In the case of wages paid to an employee without regard to any particular period, as, for example, commissions paid to a salesman upon completion of a sale, the withholding exemption is measured by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed, beginning with the latest of the following days:

(i) The first day after the last payment of wages to such employee by such employer in the calendar year, or

(ii) The date on which such individual's employment with such employer began in the calendar year, or

(iii) January 1 of such calendar year, and ending with (and including) the date on which such wages are paid.

Example. On April 2, 1955, A is employed by the X Real Estate Co. to sell real estate on a commission basis, commissions to be paid only upon consummation of sales. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by A is one. On May 21, 1955, A receives a commission of $300. Again, on June 16, 1955, A receives a commission of $400. The amount of the withholding exemption with respect to the commission paid on May 21 is $90 ($1.80×50). With respect to the commission paid on June 16, the amount of the withholding exemption is $46.80 ($1.80×26).

(d) Period or elapsed time less than one week. (1) It is the general rule that if wages are paid for a payroll period or other period of less than one week, the withholding exemption allowable shall be the exemption allowable for a daily payroll period, or a miscellaneous payroll period containing the same number of days (including Sundays and holidays) as the payroll period or other period for which such wages are paid. The same rule is applicable in the case of wages paid without regard to a payroll period or other period, where the elapsed time as determined in accordance with the rule prescribed in paragraph (c) of this section is less than 1 week.

Example (1). During 1955 an employee having a daily payroll period is paid wages of $12 per day. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by such employee is one. The amount of each such daily wage payment subject to withholding is $10.20 ($12.00–$1.80).

Example (2). During 1955 an employee works for a certain employer on four consecutive days, for which he is paid wages of $36. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee is two. The amount of the withholding exemption allowable is $14.40 (4×$3.60).

(2) Under certain conditions, if the payroll period, other period, or elapsed time where wages are paid without regard to any period, is less than one week, the employer may, at his election, compute the tax to be withheld as if the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week were paid for a weekly payroll period. Such election may be made by the employer only if he is the only employer for whom the employee works for wages during the calendar week. Any employer electing to compute the tax upon the excess of the wages paid during the calendar week over the weekly exemption must secure a statement in writing from the employee, stating that he works for wages for such employer only, and that if he should thereafter secure additional employment for wages, he will within 10 days after the beginning of such additional employment, notify such employer of that fact. Such statement shall be signed by the employee and shall contain or be verified by a written declaration that it is made under the penalties of perjury. No particular form is prescribed for the statement.

Example. During 1955 an employee works for a certain employer on four consecutive days, for which he is paid wages of $36. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee is two. The employer elects to use the weekly withholding exemption after securing the proper statement from the employee. In such case, the amount of the withholding exemption allowable is $26 (2×$13).

(3) If such employee secures additional employment for wages, the daily or miscellaneous exemption will take effect as of the beginning of the first payroll period ending, or the first payment of wages made without regard to a payroll period, on or after the thirtieth day following the date on which such employee notifies such employer that he has secured additional employment for wages. After the daily or miscellaneous exemption takes effect the employer may not thereafter use the weekly exemption in computing the amount of tax to be withheld from the wages of such employee.

(4) As used in this paragraph the term "calendar week" means a period of 7 consecutive days beginning with Sunday and ending with Saturday.

(e) Rounding off of wage payment. In determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under the percentage method, the last digit of the wage amount may, at the election of the employer, be reduced to zero, or the wage amount may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar. For the purpose of the computation to the nearest dollar, the payment of a fractional part of a dollar shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half dollar or more, in which case it shall be increased to $1.00 Thus, if the weekly wage is $45.37, the employer may, in determining the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld, determine the tax on the basis of a wage payment of $45.30 or on the basis of a wage payment of $45. If the weekly wage is $45.50, the employer may determine the tax to be deducted and withheld on the basis of a wage payment of $46.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • • (c) Wage bracket withholding. (1) At the election of the employer with respect to any employee, the employer shall deduct and withhold upon the wages paid to such employee a tax determined in accordance with the following tables, which shall be in lieu of the tax required to be deducted and withheld under subsection (a):

(2) If wages are paid with respect to a period which is not a payroll period, the amount to be deducted and withheld shall be that applicable in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

(3) In any case in which wages are paid by an employer without regard to any payroll period or other period, the amount to be deducted and withheld shall be that applicable in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed since the date of the last payment of such wages by such employer during the calendar year, or the date of commencement of employment with such employer during such year, or January 1 of such year, whichever is the later.

(4) In any case in which the period, or the time described in paragraph (3) in respect of any wages is less than one week, the Secretary or his delegate, under regulations prescribed by him, may authorize an employer to determine the amount to be deducted and withheld under the tables applicable in the case of a weekly payroll period, in which case the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week shall be considered the weekly wages.

(5) If the wages exceed the highest wage bracket, in determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under this subsection, the wages may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar.

§ 31.3402 (c)–1 Wage bracket withholding—(a) In general. (1) The employer may elect to use the wage bracket method provided in section 3402 (c) instead of the percentage method with respect to any employee. The tax computed under the wage bracket method shall be in lieu of the tax required to be deducted and withheld under section 3402 (a). Wage bracket withholding tables for weekly, biweekly, semimonthly, monthly, and daily or miscellaneous payroll periods are contained in section 3402 (c).

(2) For provisions relating to the treatment of wages paid under wage continuation plans and wages paid other than in cash to retail commission salesmen, see §§ 31.3401 (a)–1 (b) (8) and 31.3402 (j)–1, respectively.

(b) Established payroll periods, other than daily or miscellaneous, covered by wage bracket withholding tables. The wage bracket withholding tables contained in section 3402 (c) for established payroll periods other than daily or miscellaneous should be used in determining the tax to be withheld for any such period without reference to the time the employee is actually engaged in the performance of services during such payroll period.

Example (1). During 1955 employee C has a semimonthly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by C is two. During a certain payroll period C works only 40 hours and earns $48. Although C worked only 40 hours during the semimonthly payroll period, the wage bracket withholding table for a semimonthly payroll period should be used in determining the tax to be withheld. Under this table it will be found that no tax is required to be withheld from a wage payment of $48 when two withholding exemptions are claimed.

Example (2). During 1955 employee D has a weekly payroll period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by D is two. D's wages are determined at the rate of $1.20 per hour. During a certain payroll period D works 30 hours and earns $36. Although D worked only 30 hours during the weekly payroll period, the wage bracket withholding table for a weekly payroll period should be used in determining the tax to be withheld. Under this table it will be found that $2.00 is the amount of tax to be withheld from a wage payment of $36 when two withholding exemptions are claimed.

(c) Periods to which the table for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period is applicable—(1) In general. The table applicable to a daily or miscellaneous payroll period shows the tax on the amount of wages for one day. Where the withholding is computed under the rules applicable to a miscellaneous payroll period, the wages and the amounts shown in the table must be placed on a comparable basis. This may be accomplished by reducing the wages paid for the period to a daily basis by dividing the total wages by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period. The amount of the tax shown in the table as the tax required to be withheld from the wages, as so reduced to a daily basis, should then be multiplied by the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period.

(2) Period not a payroll period. If wages are paid for a period which is not a payroll period, the amount to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method shall be the amount applicable in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) in the period with respect to which such wages are paid.

Example. During 1955, an individual is hired by a contractor to perform services in connection with a construction project. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the individual is two. Wages are fixed at the rate of $9 per day, to be paid upon completion of the project. The project is completed during 1955 in 12 days, at the end of which period the individual is paid wages of $90 for ten days' services performed during the period. Under the wage bracket method the amount to be deducted and withheld from such wages is determined by dividing the amount of the wages ($90) by the number of days in the period (12), the result being $7.50. The amount of tax required to be withheld is determined under the table applicable to a miscellaneous payroll period. Under this table the tax required to be withheld is $8.40 (12×$0.70).

(3) Wages paid without regard to any period. If wages are paid to an employee without regard to any particular period, as, for example, commissions paid to a salesman upon consummation of a sale, the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld shall be determined in the same manner as in the case of a miscellaneous payroll period containing a number of days (including Sundays and holidays) equal to the number of days (including Sundays and holidays) which have elapsed, beginning with the latest of the following days:

(i) The first day after the last payment of wages to such employee by such employer in the calendar year, or

(ii) The date on which such individual's employment with such employer began in the calendar year, or

(iii) January 1 of such calendar year, and ending with (and including) the date on which such wages are paid.

Example. On April 2, 1955, A is employed by the X Real Estate Co. to sell real estate on a commission basis, commissions to be paid only upon consummation of sales. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by A is one. On May 21, 1955, A receives a commission of $300. Again, on June 16, 1955, A receives a commission of $400. Under the wage bracket method, the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld in respect of the commission paid on May 21, is $37.50, which amount is obtained by multiplying $0.75 (tax under wage bracket table for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period where wages are at least $6 but less than $6.25 a day) by 50 (number of days elapsed); and the amount of tax to be withheld with respect to the commission paid on June 16 is $62.40, which amount is obtained by multiplying $2.40 (tax under wage bracket table for a daily or miscellaneous payroll period where wages are at least $15 but less than $15.50 a day) by 26 (number of days elapsed).

(d) Period or elapsed time less than one week. (1) It is the general rule that if wages are paid for a payroll period or other period of less than one week, the tax to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method shall be the amount computed for a daily payroll period, or for a miscellaneous payroll period containing the same number of days (including Sundays and holidays) as the payroll period, or other period, for which such wages are paid. In the case of wages paid without regard to any period, if the elapsed time computed as provided in paragraph (c) of this section is less than 1 week, the same rule is applicable.

Example (1). During 1955 an employee having a daily payroll period is paid wages of $7 per day. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee is one. Under the table applicable to a daily payroll period the amount of tax to be deducted and withheld from each such payment of wages is $0.95.

Example (2). During 1955 an individual is employed for four days, for which he is paid wages of $36. The number of withholding exemptions claimed by him is two. The amount of tax to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method is $4.00 (4×$1.00).

(2) If the payroll period, other period, or elapsed time where wages are paid without regard to any period, is less than one week, the employer may, under certain conditions, elect to deduct and withhold the tax determined by the application of the wage table for a weekly payroll period to the aggregate of the wages paid to the employee during the calendar week. The election to use the weekly wage table in such cases is subject to the limitations and conditions prescribed in § 31.3402 (b)–1 (d) with respect to employers using the percentage method in similar cases.

(3) As used in this paragraph the term "calendar week" means a period of seven consecutive days beginning with Sunday and ending with Saturday.

(e) Rounding off of wage payment. In determining the amount to be deducted and withheld under the wage bracket method the wages may, at the election of the employer, be computed to the nearest dollar, provided such wages are in excess of the highest wage bracket of the applicable table. For the purpose of the computation to the nearest dollar, the payment of a fractional part of a dollar shall be disregarded unless it amounts to one-half dollar or more, in which case it shall be increased to $1.00. Thus, if the payroll period of an employee is weekly and the wage payment of such employee is $255.49, the employer may compute the tax on the excess over $200 as if the excess were $55 instead $55.49. If the weekly wage payment is $255.50, the employer may, in computing the tax, consider the excess over $200 to be $56 instead of $55.50.

(d) Tax paid by recipient. If the employer, in violation of the provisions of this chapter, fails to deduct and withhold the tax under this chapter, and thereafter the tax against which such tax may be credited is paid, the tax so required to be deducted and withheld shall not be collected from the employer; but this subsection shall in no case relieve the employer from liability for any penalties or additions to the tax otherwise applicable in respect of such failure to deduct and withhold.

§ 31.3402 (d)–1 Failure to withhold. If the employer in violation of the provisions of section 3402 fails to deduct and withhold the tax, and thereafter the income tax against which the tax under section 3402 may be credited is paid, the tax under section 3402 shall not be collected from the employer. Such payment does not, however, operate to relieve the employer from liability for penalties or additions to the tax applicable in respect of such failure to deduct and withhold. The employer will not be relieved of his liability for payment of the tax required to be withheld unless he can show that the tax against which the tax under section 3402 may be credited has been paid. See § 31.3403–1, relating to liability for tax.

(e) Included and excluded wages. If the remuneration paid by an employer to an employee for services performed during one-half or more of any payroll period of not more than 31 consecutive days constitutes wages, all the remuneration paid by such employer to such employee for such period shall be deemed to be wages; but if the remuneration paid by an employer to an employee for services performed during more than one-half of any such payroll period does not constitute wages, then none of the remuneration paid by such employer to such employee for such period shall be deemed to be wages.

§ 31.3402 (e)–1 Included and excluded wages. (a) If a portion of the remuneration paid by an employer to his employee for services performed during a payroll period of not more than 31 consecutive days constitutes wages, and the remainder does not constitute wages, all the remuneration paid the employee for services performed during such period shall for purposes of withholding be treated alike, that is, either all included as wages or all excluded. The time during which the employee performs services, the remuneration for which under section 3401 (a) constitutes wages, and the time during which he performs services, the remuneration for which under such section does not constitute wages, determine whether all the remuneration for services performed during the payroll period shall be deemed to be included or excluded.

(b) If one-half or more of the employee's time in the employ of a particular employer in a payroll period is spent in performing services the remuneration for which constitutes wages, then all the remuneration paid the employee for services performed in that payroll period shall be deemed to be wages.

(c) If less than one-half of the employee's time in the employ of a particular employer in a payroll period is spent in performing services the remuneration for which constitutes wages, then none of the remuneration paid the employee for services performed in that payroll period shall be deemed to be wages.

(d) The application of the provisions of paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Employer B, who operates a store and a farm, employs A to perform services in connection with both operations. The remuneration paid A for services on the farm is excepted as remuneration for agricultural labor, and the remuneration for services performed in the store constitutes wages. Employee A is paid on a monthly basis. During a particular month, A works 120 hours on the farm and 80 hours in the store. None of the remuneration paid by B to A for services performed during the month is deemed to be wages, since the remuneration paid for less than one-half of the services performed during the month constitutes wages. During another month A works 75 hours on the farm and 120 hours in the store. All of the remuneration paid by B to A for services performed during the month is deemed to be wages since the remuneration paid for one-half or more of the services performed during the month constitutes wages.

Example (2). Employee C is employed as a maid by D, a physician, whose home and office are located in the same building. The remuneration paid C for services in the home is excepted as remuneration for domestic service, and the remuneration paid for her services in the office constitutes wages. C is paid on a weekly basis. During a particular week C works 20 hours in the home and 20 hours in the office. All of the remuneration paid D to C for services performed during that week is deemed to be wages, since the remuneration paid for one-half or more of the services performed during the week constitutes wages. During another week C works 22 hours in the home and 15 hours in the office. None of the remuneration paid by D to C for services performed during that week is deemed to be wages, since the remuneration paid for less than one-half of the services performed during the week constitutes wages.

(e) The rules set forth in this section do not apply (1) with respect to any remuneration paid for services performed by an employee for his employer if the periods for which remuneration is paid by the employer vary to the extent that there is no period which constitutes a payroll period within the meaning of section 3401 (b) (see § 31.3401 (b)–1), or (2) with respect to any remuneration paid for services performed by an employee for his employer if the payroll period for which remuneration is paid exceeds 31 consecutive days. In any such case withholding is required with respect to that portion of such remuneration which constitutes wages.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source.

(f) Withholding exemptions—(1) In general. An employee receiving wages shall on any day be entitled to the following withholding exemptions:

(A) An exemption for himself;

(B) One additional exemption for himself if, on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of such day, there may reasonably be expected to be allowable an exemption under section 151 (c) (1) (relating to old age) for the taxable year under subtitle A in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld under this chapter in the calendar year in which such day falls are allowed as a credit;

(C) One additional exemption for himself if, on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of such day, there may reasonably be expected to be allowable an exemption under section 151 (d) (1) (relating to the blind) for the taxable year under subtitle A in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld under this chapter in the calendar year in which such day falls are allowed as a credit;

(D) If the employee is married, any exemption to which his spouse is entitled, or would be entitled if such spouse were an employee receiving wages, under subparagraph (A), (B), or (C), but only if such spouse does not have in effect a withholding exemption certificate claiming such exemption; and

(E) An exemption for each individual with respect to whom, on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of such day, there may reasonably be expected to be allowable an exemption under section 151 (e) for the taxable year under subtitle A in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld under this chapter in the calendar year in which such day falls are allowed as a credit.

§ 31.3402 (f) (1)–1 Withholding exemptions—(a) In general. (1) An employee receiving wages shall on any day be entitled to withholding exemptions as provided in section 3402 (f) (1). In order to receive the benefit of such exemptions, the employee must file with his employer a withholding exemption certificate as provided in section 3402 (f) (2). See § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1.

(2) The number of exemptions to which an employee is entitled on any day depends upon his status as single or married, upon his status as to old age and blindness, upon the number of his dependents, and, if married, upon the number of exemptions claimed by his spouse.

(b) Withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled in respect of himself. An employee is entitled to one withholding exemption for himself. An employee shall on any day be entitled to an additional withholding exemption for himself if he will have attained the age of 65 before the close of his taxable year which begins in, or with, the calendar year in which such day falls. If the employee is blind, he may claim an additional exemption for blindness. For purposes of claiming a withholding exemption for blindness, an individual shall be considered blind only if his central visual acuity does not exceed 20/200 in the better eye with correcting lenses or if his visual acuity is greater than 20/200 but is accompanied by a limitation in the fields of vision such that the widest diameter of the visual field subtends an angle no greater than 20 degrees. For definition of the term "blindness", see section 151 (d) (3).

(c) Withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled in respect of his spouse. (1) A married employee, whose spouse is an employee receiving wages, is entitled to claim any withholding exemption to which his spouse is entitled under paragraph (b) of this section, unless the spouse has in effect a withholding exemption certificate claiming such withholding exemption. A married employee, whose spouse is not an employee receiving wages, is entitled to claim any withholding exemption to which his spouse would be entitled under paragraph (b) of this section if the spouse were an employee receiving wages.

Example (1). Assume that both the husband and wife have attained the age of 65 and are employees receiving wages. Each spouse is entitled under paragraph (b) of this section to claim 2 withholding exemptions in respect of himself or herself. Either spouse may claim, in addition to the withholding exemptions to which he or she is entitled in respect of himself or herself, any withholding exemption to which the other spouse is entitled under such paragraph (b) but does not claim on a withholding exemption certificate.

Example (2). Assume the same facts as in Example (1) except that only the husband is an employee receiving wages. The husband is entitled to claim 4 withholding exemptions, that is, the 2 withholding exemptions to which he is entitled in respect of himself and the 2 withholding exemptions to which his spouse would be entitled under paragraph (b) of this section if she were an employee receiving wages.

(2) In determining the number of withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled for himself and his spouse on any day, the employee's status as a single person or a married person and, if married, whether a withholding exemption is claimed by his spouse shall be determined as of such day. However, in the case of an employee whose spouse dies in the taxable year of the employee which begins in, or with, the calendar year in which the spouse dies, any withholding exemption which would be allowable to the employee in respect of such spouse, if living and not an employee receiving wages, may be claimed by the employee for that portion of the calendar year which occurs after his spouse's death. For provisions applicable in the case of an employee whose taxable year is not a calendar year, and whose spouse dies in that portion of the calendar year which precedes the first day of the taxable year of the employee which begins in the calendar year, see § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1 (b).

(d) Withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled in respect of dependents. Subject to the limitations stated in this paragraph, an employee shall be entitled on any day to a withholding exemption for each individual who may reasonably be expected to be his dependent for his taxable year beginning in, or with, the calendar year in which such day falls. For purposes of the withholding exemption for an individual who may reasonably be expected to be a dependent, the following rules shall apply:

(1) The determination that an individual may or may not reasonably be expected to be a dependent shall be made on the basis of facts existing at the beginning of the day for which a withholding exemption for such individual is to be claimed. The individual in respect of whom an exemption is claimed by an employee must, on the day in question, be in existence and be within one of the categories listed in section 152 (a), which defines the term "dependent". However, a withholding exemption for a dependent who dies continues for the portion of the calendar year which occurs after the dependent's death, except that, in the case of an employee whose taxable year is not a calendar year, the withholding exemption does not continue for a dependent, within the meaning of section 152 (a) (9) or (10), whose death occurs before the first day of the employee's taxable year beginning in the calendar year of death.

(2) The determination that an individual may or may not reasonably be expected to be a dependent shall be made for the taxable year of the employee in respect of which amounts deducted and withheld in the calendar year in which the day in question falls are allowed as a credit. In general, amounts deducted and withheld during any calendar year are allowed as a credit against the tax imposed by chapter 1 of the Code for the taxable year which begins in, or with, such calendar year. Thus, in order for an employee to be able to claim for a calendar year a withholding exemption with respect to a particular individual as a dependent there must be a reasonable expectation that the employee will be allowed an exemption with respect to such individual under section 151 (e) for his taxable year which begins in, or with, such calendar year.

(3) For the employee to be entitled on any day of the calendar year to a withholding exemption for an individual as a dependent, such individual must on such day—

(i) Be an individual referred to in one of the numbered paragraphs in section 152 (a),

(ii) Reasonably be expected to receive over one-half of his support, within the meaning of section 152, from the employee in the calendar year, and

(iii) Either (a) reasonably be expected to receive less than $600 of gross income in the calendar year or (b) be a child (son, stepson, daughter, stepdaughter, adopted son, or adopted daughter) of the employee who (1) will not have attained the age of 19 at the close of the calendar year or (2) is a student as defined in section 151.

(4) An employee is not entitled to claim a withholding exemption for an individual otherwise reasonably expected to be a dependent of the employee if such individual is not a citizen of the United States, unless such individual (i) is at any time during the calendar year a resident of the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Canal Zone, or the Republic of Panama, or (ii) is a child of the employee born to him, or legally adopted by him, in the Philippine Islands before January 1, 1956, and the child is a resident of the Republic of the Philippines, and the employee was a member of the Armed Forces of the United States at the time the child was born to him or legally adopted by him.

(f) Withholding exemptions—• • •

(2) Exemption certificates—(A) On commencement of employment. On or before the date of the commencement of employment with an employer, the employee shall furnish the employer with a signed withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which he claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled.

(B) Change of status. If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is less than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee on the withholding exemption certificate then in effect with respect to him, the employee shall within 10 days thereafter furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which the employee then claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled on such day. If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is greater than the number of withholding exemptions claimed, the employee may furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which the employee then claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled on such day.

(C) Change of status which affects next calendar year. If on any day during the calendar year the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee will be, or may reasonably be expected to be, entitled at the beginning of his next taxable year under subtitle A is different from the number to which the employee is entitled on such day, the employee shall, in such cases and at such times as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe, furnish the employer with a withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which he claims with respect to such next taxable year, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he will be, or may reasonably be expected to be, so entitled.

§ 31.3402 (f) (2)–1 Withholding exemption certificates—(a) On commencement of employment. On or before the date on which an individual commences employment with an employer, the individual shall furnish the employer with a signed withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which he claims, which shall in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled. For form and contents of such certificate, see § 31.3402 (f) (5)–1. The employer is required to request a withholding exemption certificate from each employee, but if the employee fails to furnish such certificate, such employee shall be considered as claiming no withholding exemptions.

(b) Change in exemptions which affects calendar year. (1) If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is less than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by him on the withholding exemption certificate then in effect, the employee must within 10 days after the change occurs furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate relating to the number of withholding exemptions which the employee then claims, which must in no event exceed the number to which he is entitled on such day. The number of withholding exemptions to which an employee is entitled decreases, for example, for any one of the following reasons:

(i) The employee's wife (or husband) for whom the employee has been claiming a withholding exemption (a) is divorced or legally separated from the employee, or (b) claims her (or his) own withholding exemption on a separate certificate.

(ii) In the case of an employee whose taxable year is not a calendar year, the employee's wife (or husband) for whom the employee has been claiming a withholding exemption dies in that portion of the calendar year which precedes the first day of the taxable year of the employee which begins in the calendar year in which the spouse dies.

(iii) The employee finds that no exemption for his taxable year which begins in, or with, the current calendar year will be allowable to him under section 151 (e) in respect of an individual claimed as a dependent on the employee's withholding exemption certificate.

(2) If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of withholding exemptions to which the employee is entitled is more than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by him on the withholding exemption certificate then in effect, the employee may furnish the employer with a new withholding exemption certificate on which the employee must in no event claim more than the number of withholding exemptions to which he is entitled on such day.

(c) Change in exemptions which affects next calendar year. (1) If, on any day during the calendar year, the number of exemptions to which the employee will be, or may reasonably be expected to be, entitled under section 151 for his taxable year which begins in, or with, the next calendar year is different from the number to which the employee is entitled on such day, the following rules shall be applicable:

(i) If such number is less than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee on a withholding exemption certificate in effect on such day, the employee must, on or before December 1 of the year in which the change occurs, unless such change occurs in December, furnish his employer with a new withholding exemption certificate reflecting the decrease in the number of withholding exemptions. If the changes occurs in December, the new certificate must be furnished within 10 days after the change occurs. The number of exemptions to which an employee is entitled for his taxable year which begins in, or with, the next calendar year decreases, for example, for any of the following reasons:

(a) The spouse or a dependent of the employee dies.

(b) The employee finds that it is not reasonable to expect that an individual claimed as a dependent on the employee's withholding exemption certificate will qualify as a dependent of the employee for such taxable year.

(ii) If such number is greater than the number of withholding exemptions claimed by the employee on a withholding exemption certificate in effect on such day, the employee may, on or before December 1 of the year in which such change occurs, unless such change occurs in December, furnish his employer with a new withholding exemption certificate reflecting the increase in the number of withholding exemptions. If the change occurs in December, the certificate may be furnished on or after the date on which the change occurs.

(2) Before December 1 of each year, every employer should request each of his employees to file a new withholding extemption certificate for the ensuing calendar year, in the event of change in the employee's exemption status since the filing of his latest certificate.

(f) Withholding exemptions—• • •

(3) When certificate takes effect—(A) First certificate furnished. A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in cases in which no previous such certificate is in effect shall take effect as of the beginning of the first payroll period ending, or the first payment of wages made without regard to a payroll period, on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished.

(B) Furnished to take place of existing certificate. A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in cases in which a previous such certificate is in effect shall take effect with respect to the first payment of wages made on or after the first status determination date which occurs at least 30 days from the date on which such certificate is so furnished, except that at the election of the employer such certificate may be made effective with respect to any payment of wages made on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished; but a certificate furnished pursuant to paragraph (2) (C) shall not take effect, and may not be made effective, with respect to any payment of wages made in the calendar year in which the certificate is furnished. For purposes of this subparagraph the term "status determination date" means January 1 and July 1 of each year.

§ 31.3402 (f) (3)–1 When withholding exemption certificate takes effect. (a) A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in any case in which no previous withholding exemption certificate is in effect with such employer, shall take effect as of the beginning of the first payroll period ending, or the first payment of wages made without regard to a payroll period, on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished.

(b) A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer in any case in which a previous withholding exemption certificate is in effect with such employer shall, except as hereinafter provided, take effect with respect to the first payment of wages made on or after the first status determination date which occurs at least 30 days after the date on which such certificate is so furnished. However, at the election of the employer, except as hereinafter provided, such certificate may be made effective with respect to any payment of wages made on or after the date on which such certificate is so furnished and before such status determination date.

(c) A withholding exemption certificate furnished the employer pursuant to section 3402 (f) (2) (C) (see § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1 (c)) which effects a change for the next calendar year, shall not take effect, and may not be made effective, with respect to the calendar year in which the certificate is furnished.

(d) For purposes of this section the term "status determination date" means January 1 and July 1 of each year.

(f) Withholding exemptions—• • •

(4) Period during which certificate remains in effect. A withholding exemption certificate which takes effect under this subsection, or which on December 31, 1954, was in effect under the corresponding subsection of prior law, shall continue in effect with respect to the employer until another such certificate takes effect under this subsection.

§ 31.3402 (f) (4)–1 Period during which withholding exemption certificate remains in effect. A withholding exemption certificate which takes effect under section 3402 (f), or which on December 31, 1954, was in effect under section 1622 (h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, shall continue in effect with respect to the employee until another withholding exemption certificate takes effect under section 3402 (f).

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(f) Withholding exemptions—• • •

(5) Form and contents of certificate. Withholding exemption certificates shall be in such form and contain such information as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe.

§ 31.3402 (f) (5)–1 Form and contents of withholding exemption certificate. Form W–4 is the form prescribed for the withholding exemption certificate required to be filed under section 3402 (f) (2). See § 31.3402 (f) (2)–1. A withholding exemption certificate on Form W–4 shall be prepared in accordance with the instructions and regulations applicable thereto, and shall set forth fully and clearly the data therein called for. Blank copies of Form W–4 will be supplied employers upon request to the district director. In lieu of the prescribed form of certificate, employers may prepare and use a form the provisions of which are identical with those of the prescribed form.

§ 31.3402 (g) Statutory provisions; income tax collected at source; overlapping pay periods, and payment by agent or fiduciary.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(g) Overlapping pay periods, and payment by agent or fiduciary. If a payment of wages is made to an employee by an employer—

(1) With respect to a payroll period or other period, any part of which is included in a payroll period or other period with respect to which wages are also paid to such employee by such employer, or

(2) Without regard to any payroll period or other period, but on or prior to the expiration of a payroll period or other period with respect to which wages are also paid to such employee by such employer, or

(3) With respect to a period beginning in one and ending in another calendar year, or

(4) Through an agent, fiduciary, or other person who also has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays, the wages payable by another employer to such employee, the manner of withholding and the amount to be deducted and withheld under this chapter shall be determined in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate under which the withholding exemption allowed to the employee in any calendar year shall approximate the withholding exemption allowable with respect to an annual payroll period.

§ 31.3402 (g)–1 Supplemental wage payments—(a) In general. (1) An employee's remuneration may consist of wages paid for a payroll period and supplemental wages, such as bonuses, commissions, and overtime pay, paid for the same or a different period, or without regard to a particular period. When such supplemental wages are paid (whether or not at the same time as the regular wages) the amount of the tax required to be withheld under section 3402 (a) (the percentage method) or under section 3402 (c) (the wage bracket method) shall be determined in accordance with this paragraph or paragraph (b) of this section.

(2) The supplemental wages, if paid concurrently with wages for a payroll period, shall be aggregated with the wages paid for such payroll period. If not paid concurrently, the supplemental wages shall be aggregated with the wages paid or to be paid within the same calendar year for the last preceding payroll period or for the current payroll period. The amount of tax to be withheld shall be determined as if the aggregate of the supplemental wages and the regular wages constituted a single wage payment for the regular payroll period.

Example (1). A is employed as a salesman at a monthly salary of $100 plus commissions on sales made during the month. The number of withholding exemptions claimed is one. During January 1955 A earns $275 in commissions, which together with the salary of $100 is paid on February 10, 1955. Under the wage bracket method the amount of the tax required to be withheld is shown in the table applicable to a monthly payroll period. Under this table it will be found that the amount of tax required to be withheld is $57.00.

Example (2). B is employed at a salary of $3,000 per annum paid semimonthly on the 15th day and the last day of each month, plus a bonus and commission determined at the end of each 3-month period. The number of withholding exemptions claimed is four. The bonus and commission for the 3-month period ending on March 31, 1955, amount to $250, which is paid on April 10, 1955. Under the wage bracket method, the amount of tax required to be withheld on the aggregate of the bonus of $250 and the last preceding semimonthly wage payment of $125, or $375, is $46.60. Since tax in the amount of $2.70 was withheld on the semimonthly wage payment of $125, the amount to be withheld on April 10, 1955, is $43.90.

If, however, supplemental wages are paid and tax has been withheld from the employee's regular wages, the employer may determine the tax to be withheld from supplemental wages by using the applicable rate under section 3402 (a) without allowance for exemption and without reference to any regular payment of wages.

(3) For provisions relating to the treatment of wages paid other than in cash to retail commission salesmen, see: § 31.3402 (j)–1.

(b) Special rule where aggregate withholding exemption exceeds wages paid. (1) If supplemental wages are paid to an employee during a calendar year for a period which involves two or more consecutive payroll periods, for which other wages also are paid during such calendar year, and the aggregate of such other wages is less than the aggregate of the amounts determined under the table provided in section 3402 (b) (1) as the withholding exemptions applicable for such payroll periods, the amount of the tax required to be withheld on the supplemental wages shall be computed as follows:

Step 1. Determine an average wage for each of such payroll periods by dividing the sum of the supplemental wages and the wages paid for such payroll periods by the number of such payroll periods.

Step 2. Determine a tax for each payroll period as if the amount of the average wage constituted the wages paid for such payroll period.

Step 3. From the sum of the amounts of tax determined in Step 2 subtract the total amount of tax withheld, or to be withheld, from the wages, other than the supplemental wages, for such payroll periods. The remainder, if any, shall constitute the amount of the tax to be withheld upon the supplemental wages.

Example. An employee has a weekly payroll ending on Saturday of each week, the wages for which are paid on Friday of the succeeding week. On the 10th day of each month he is paid a bonus based upon production during the payroll periods for which wages were paid in the preceding month. The employee is paid a weekly wage of $64 on each of the five Fridays occurring in April 1955. On May 10, 1955, the employee is paid a bonus of $125 based upon production during the five payroll periods covered by the wages paid in April. On the date of payment of the bonus, the employee, who is married and has three children, has a withholding exemption certificate in effect claiming five withholding exemptions. The amount of the tax to be withheld from the bonus paid on May 10, 1955, is computed as follows:

Wages paid in April 1955 for 5 payroll periods (5×$64)	$320.00
Bonus paid May 10, 1955	125.00
Aggregate of wages and bonus	445.00
Average wage per payroll period ($445÷5)	89.00
Computation of tax under percentage method: Withholding exemptions (5×$13)	65.00
Remainder subject to tax	24.00
Tax on average wage for 1 week (18 percent of $24)	4.32
Tax on average wage for 5 weeks	21.60
Less: Tax previously withheld on weekly wage payments of $64	None
Tax to be withheld on supplemental wages	21.60
Computation of tax under wage bracket method:
Tax on $89 wage under weekly wage table ($4.50 per week for 5 weeks)	22.50
Less: Tax previously withheld on weekly wage payments of $64 ($0.20 per week for 5 weeks)	1.00
Tax to be withheld on supplemental wages	21.50

(2) The rules prescribed in this paragraph shall, at the election of the employer, be applied in lieu of the rules prescribed in paragraph (a) of this section except that this paragraph shall not be applicable in any case in which the payroll period of the employee is less than one week.

(c) Vacation allowances. Amounts of so-called "vacation allowances" shall be subject to withholding as though they were regular wage payments made for the period covered by the vacation. If the vacation allowance is paid in addition to the regular wage payment for such period, the rules applicable with respect to supplemental wage payments shall apply to such vacation allowance.

§ 31.3402 (g)–2 Wages paid for payroll period of more than one year. If wages are paid to an employee for a payroll period of more than one year, for the purpose of determining the amount of tax required to be deducted and withheld in respect of such wages—

(a) Under the percentage method, the amount of the tax shall be determined as if such payroll period constituted an annual payroll period, and

(b) Under the wage bracket method, the amount of the tax shall be determined as if such payroll period constituted a miscellaneous payroll period of 365 days.

§ 31.3402 (g)–3 Wages paid through an agent, fiduciary, or other person on behalf of two or more employers. (a) If a payment of wages is made to an employee by an employer through an agent, fiduciary, or other person who also has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays the wages payable by another employer to such employee, the amount of the tax required to be withheld on each wage payment made through such agent, fiduciary, or person shall, whether the wages are paid separately on behalf of each employer or paid in a lump sum on behalf of all such employers, be determined upon the aggregate amount of such wage payment or payments in the same manner as if such aggregate amount had been paid by one employer. Hence, under either the percentage method or the wage bracket method the tax shall be determined upon the aggregate amount of the wage payment.

(b) In any such case, each employer shall be liable for the return and payment of a pro rata portion of the tax so determined, such portion to be determined in the ratio which the amount contributed by the particular employer bears to the aggregate of such wages.

(c) For example, three companies maintain a central management agency which carries on the administrative work of the several companies. The central agency organization consists of a staff of clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers, etc., who are the common employees of the three companies. The expenses of the central agency, including wages paid to the foregoing employees, are borne by the several companies in certain agreed proportions. Company X pays 45 percent, Company Y pays 35 percent and Company Z pays 20 percent of such expenses. The amount of the tax required to be withheld on the wages paid to persons employed in the central agency should be determined in accordance with the provisions of this section. In such event, Company X is liable as an employer for the return and payment of 45 percent of the tax required to be withheld, Company Y is liable for the return and payment of 35 percent of the tax and Company Z is liable for the return and payment of 20 percent of the tax. (See § 31.3504–1, relating to acts to be performed by agents.)

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(h) Withholding on basis of average wages. The Secretary or his delegate may, under regulations prescribed by him, authorize employers—

(1) To estimate the wages which will be paid to any employee in any quarter of the calendar year,

(2) To determine the amount to be deducted and withheld upon each payment of wages to such employee during such quarter as if the appropriate average of the wages so estimated constituted the actual wages paid, and

(3) To deduct and withhold upon any payment of wages to such employee during such quarter such amount as may be necessary to adjust the amount actually deducted and withheld upon the wages of such employee during such quarter to the amount required to be deducted and withheld during such quarter without regard to this subsection.

§ 31.3402 (h)–1 Withholding on basis of average wages. The Commissioner may authorize the employer to withhold the tax under section 3402 on the basis of the employee's average estimated wages, with necessary adjustments, for any quarter. Before using such method the employer must receive authorization from the Commissioner. Applications to use such method must be accompanied by evidence establishing the need for the use of such method.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. • • •

(i) Additional withholding. The Secretary or his delegate is authorized by regulations to provide, under such conditions and to such extent as he deems proper, for withholding in addition to that otherwise required under this section in cases in which the employer and the employee agree (in such form as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulations prescribe) to such additional withholding. Such additional withholding shall for all purposes be considered tax required to be deducted and withheld under this chapter.

§ 31.3402 (i)–1 Additional withholding. (a) In addition to the tax required to be deducted and withheld in accordance with the provisions of section 3402, the employer and employee may agree that an additional amount shall be withheld from the employee's wages. The agreement shall be in writing and shall be in such form as the employer may prescribe. The agreement shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually agree upon. However, unless the agreement provides for an earlier termination, either the employer, or the employee, by furnishing a written notice to the other, may terminate the agreement effective with respect to the first payment of wages made on or after the first "status determination date" (January 1 and July 1 of each year) which occurs at least 30 days after the date on which such notice is furnished.

(b) The amount deducted and withheld pursuant to an agreement between the employer and employee shall be considered as tax required to be deducted and withheld under section 3402. All provisions of law and regulations applicable with respect to the tax required to be deducted and withheld under section 3402 shall be applicable with respect to any amount deducted and withheld pursuant to the agreement.

SEC. 3402. Income tax collected at source. * * * (j) Noncash remuneration to retail commission salesman. In the case of remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services performed by an individual as a retail salesman for a person, where the service performed by such individual for such person is ordinarily performed for remuneration solely by way of cash commission an employer shall not be required to deduct or withhold any tax under this subchapter [chapter] with respect to such remuneration, provided that such employer files with the Secretary or his delegate such information with respect to such remuneration as the Secretary or his delegate may by regulation prescribe.

[Sec. 3402 (j) as added by Act of Aug. 9, 1955, 69 Stat. 605, effective with respect to remuneration paid after the date of enactment.]

§ 31.3402 (j)–1 Remuneration other than in cash for service performed by retail commission salesman—(a) In general. (1) An employer, in computing the amount to be deducted and withheld as tax in accordance with section 3402, may, at his election, disregard any wages paid, after August 9, 1955, in a medium other than cash for services performed for him by an employee if (i) the noncash remuneration is paid for services performed by the employee as a retail commission salesman and (ii) the employer ordinarily pays the employee remuneration solely by way of cash commissions for services performed by him as a retail commission salesman.

(2) Section 3402 (j) and this section are not applicable with respect to noncash wages paid to a retail commission salesman for services performed by him in a capacity other than as such a salesman. Such sections are not applicable with respect to noncash wages paid by an employer to an employee for services performed as a retail commission salesman if the employer ordinarily pays the employee remuneration other than by way of cash commissions for such services. Thus, noncash remuneration may not be disregarded in computing the amount to be deducted and withheld in a case where the employee, for services performed as a retail commission salesman, is paid both a salary and cash commissions on sales, or is ordinarily paid in something other than cash (stocks, bonds, or other forms of property) notwithstanding that the amount of remuneration paid to the employee is measured by sales.

(b) Retail commission salesman. For purposes of section 3402 (j) and this section, the term "retail commission salesman" includes an employee who is engaged in the solicitation of orders at retail, that is, from the ultimate consumer, for merchandise or other products offered for sale by his employer. The term does not include an employee salesman engaged in the solicitation on behalf of his employer of orders from wholesalers, retailers, or others, for merchandise for resale. However, if the salesman solicits orders for more than one principal, he is not excluded from the term solely because he solicits orders from wholesalers or retailers on behalf of one or more principals. In such case the salesman may be a retail commission salesman with respect to services performed for one or more principals and not with respect to services performed for his other principals.

(c) Noncash remuneration. The term "noncash remuneration" includes remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as goods or commodities, stocks, bonds, or other forms of property. The term does not include checks or other monetary media of exchange.

(d) Cross reference. For provisions relating to records required to be kept and statements which must be furnished an employee with respect to wage payments, see sections 6001 and 6051 and the regulations thereunder in Subpart G of this part.

§ 31.3403 Statutory provisions; liability for tax.

SEC. 3403. Liability for tax. The employer shall be liable for the payment of the tax required to be deducted and withheld under this chapter, and shall not be liable to any person for the amount of any such payment.

§ 31.3403–1 Liability for tax. Every employer required to deduct and withhold the tax under section 3402 from the wages of an employee is liable for the payment of such tax whether or not it is collected from the employee by the employer. If, for example, the employer deducts less than the correct amount of tax, or if he fails to deduct any part of the tax, he is nevertheless liable for the correct amount of the tax. See, however, § 31.3402 (d)–1. The employer is relieved of liability to any other person for the amount of any such tax withheld and paid to the district director or deposited with a duly designated depositary of the United States.

§ 31.3404 Statutory provisions; return and payment by governmental employer.

SEC. 3404. Return and payment by governmental employer. If the employer is the United States, or a State, Territory, or political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, the return of the amount deducted and withheld upon any wages may be made by any officer or employee of the United States, or of such State, Territory, or political subdivision, or of the District of Columbia, or of such agency or instrumentality, as the case may be, having control of the payment of such wages, or appropriately designated for that purpose.

§ 31.3404–1 Return and payment by governmental employer. If the United States, or a State, Territory, Puerto Rico, or a political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing, is an employer required to deduct and withhold tax under chapter 24, the return of the amount deducted and withheld as such tax may be made by the officer or employee having control of the payment of the wages or other officer or employee appropriately designated for that purpose. (For provisions relating to the execution and filing of returns, see Subpart G of the regulations in this part.)

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Indianapolis, Indiana, on November 15–19, 1954, pursuant to notice thereof issued on October 28, 1954 (19 F. MILK IN GREATER WHEELING AND CLARKSBURG MARKETING AREAS (WEST VIRGINIA-OHIO)

NOTICE OF HEARING ON PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENTS AND TO ORDERS, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held in the Hotel Waldo, Pike and Fourth Street, Clarksburg, West Virginia, beginning at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., March 26, 1957, and in the Hotel Windsor, Main and 12th Street, Wheeling, West Virginia, beginning at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., March 27, 1957, for the purposes of receiving evidence with respect to the proposed amendments hereinafter set forth, or appropriate modification thereof, to the tentative marketing agreements heretofore approved by the Secretary of Agriculture and to the orders, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Greater Wheeling and Clarksburg marketing areas (7 CFR 1002 and 1009 et seq.). Consideration will be given to the question of whether market conditions, as presented in the record, require emergency action with respect to any amendments deemed necessary as the result of this hearing. The proposed amendments have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Any proposal listed herein may be considered as opening for consideration the amendment of both of the orders in the manner set forth in the proposal, or appropriate modification thereof, unless the proposal is specifically indicated as applying to only one of the orders.

The proposals relative to the enlargement of the Greater Wheeling marketing area raise the issue whether the provisions of the present order (No. 102) would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, if they are applied to the marketing area as proposed to be enlarged, and, if not, what modifications of the provisions of the order, as amended, should be made to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

Amendments to the orders, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Greater Wheeling and Clarksburg marketing areas have been proposed as follows:

By the Snyder-Crogan Dairy:

1. Delete Kingwood, West Virginia, from the marketing area under the Clarksburg order.

By The Woodsfield Ice and Creamery Company:

2. That the Greater Wheeling marketing area be enlarged to include Monroe County, Ohio.

By Ohio Valley Dairy and Products, Inc., and Broughton's Farm Dairy:

3. That the marketing area described in Federal Order No. 102 for the Greater Wheeling marketing area be amended to include all municipalities (including all cities, boroughs and townships) in the County of Guernsey, Ohio, which are not now included in the marketing area, and in addition thereto the township of Union in Muskingum County, Ohio.

By Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales Association:

4. In section 8 of both orders, raise the minimum percentages in Class I for distributing plants to 55 percent in April, May and June, and 65 percent in the other months.

By Clarksburg Dairy and Imperial Ice Cream Division of Fairmont Foods Company:

5. Amend pool plant definition in Clarksburg order (see §§ 1009.7, 1009.8, 1009.9 and 1009.10) to provide that plants to be exempted from full regulation shall be those plants disposing of less than 5 percent of their total fluid product sales or an average during the month of 600 pounds of Class I products per day within the marketing area.

6. Amend § 1009.41 (b) of the Clarksburg order to provide for Class II classification on butterfat contained in milk disposed of as livestock feed.

7. Amend the necessary sections in the Clarksburg order to provide for separate classification and pricing of the skim milk equivalent of concentrated milk products which are added to Class I fluid milk products.

By Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales Association:

8. Clarify provisions of the orders (Nos. 102 and 109) including section 6 of both orders, relating to transfers between handlers and diversion of producers between handlers in each market.

9. Review the Class I pricing so as to establish differentials to insure maintenance of supplies and proper class price relationships between adjacent markets. Increase each Class I differential 35 cents per hundredweight.

10. Consider the adoption of a new supply-demand formula, and to section 51 (a) of both orders, add the following proviso: "Provided, That no supply-demand factor shall be operative to reduce the price whenever producers supply less than 115 percent of Class I sales, nor shall any addition be made if producer supply exceeds 145 percent of Class I sales."

By J. D. Anderson, Morgantown, West Virginia:

11. Amend Clarksburg order (No. 109) as follows: Increase Class I prices by eliminating the differential of 45 cents for the months of February and succeeding months and by adding the sum of 45 cents to the base price established for the entire 12-month period.

By Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales Association:

12. Consider a seasonal price plan for Class II milk.

By Clarksburg Dairy and Imperial Ice Cream Division of Fairmont Foods Company:

13. Amend §1009.52 of the Clarksburg order to provide a lower Class II butterfat differential.

By Dairymen's Co-Operative Sales Association:

14. Review location differentials and allocation of direct shipped milk to highest classes.

15. Amend section 19 of both orders to include the months of February and August in the definition of base milk.

16. Provide additional base rules to accomodate cases of disaster and involuntary retirement.

By J. D. Anderson, Morgantown, West Virginia:

17. In § 1009.91 (a), delete "September through December" and substitute "September through February."

Proposed by the Dairy Division, Agricultural Marketing Service:

18. Clarify order language with respect to:

(a) In §§ 1002.19 and 1009.19, definition of base milk is applied to number of days of milk production delivered;

(b) In §§ 1002.54 and 1009.54, the computation of the volume of Class I sales affecting whether compensatory payments are applicable in the month;

(c) In § 1002.71 (c) and § 1009.71 (c), the reference to location differentials;

(d) In § 1002.45 (a) (3) and § 1009.45 (a) (3), allocation of milk from other Federal order plants;

(e) In § 1009.5, spelling of "Weston"; and

(f) In § 1002.41 and § 1009.41, make specific reference to classification of fluid milk products sold to bakeries and other food processors who have no fluid sales.

19. Make such changes as may be required to make the entire marketing agreements and orders conform with any amendments thereto which may result from this hearing.

Copies of this notice of hearing and of the orders now in effect may be procured from the Market Administrator, 703 Hawley Building, 1025 Main Street, Wheeling, West Virginia, or from the Hearing Clerk, Room 112, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or may be there inspected.

Dated: March 6, 1957.

EXTRA LONG STAPLE COTTON

NOTICE OF FORMULATION OF REGULATIONS RELATING TO DETERMINATION OF FARM MARKETING QUOTA AND FARM MARKETING EXCESS, MARKETING, COLLECTION OF MARKETING PENALTIES, AND RECORDS AND REPORTS FOR 1957 CROP AND 1957–58 MARKETING YEAR

A national marketing quota proclamation for the 1957 crop of extra long staple cotton was issued by the Secretary of Agriculture on October 15, 1956 (21 F. R. 7931), and the quota was approved by extra long staple cotton producers voting in a referendum on December 11, 1956. Farm acreage allotments for the 1957 crop of extra long staple cotton were established pursuant to sections 344 and 347 (c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended; and notices thereof were mailed to farm operators prior to the date of the referendum in accordance with section 362 of the act.

Pursuant to the authority contained in the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1301–1376), the Secretary of Agriculture is preparing to formulate and issue marketing quota regulations covering the identification of farms; the amount, adjustment and review of the farm marketing quota and farm marketing excess; the issuance of marketing cards and marketing certificates; the identification of extra long staple cotton which is marketed as being subject to or not subject to the penalty and lien for the penalty; the rate of the penalty and the manner in which penalties shall be paid by producers and buyers; the refunding of penalty overpayments; the records and reports required to be made by extra long staple cotton producers, ginners, buyers and others, and other miscellaneous provisions regarding the production and marketing of extra long staple cotton.

It is proposed that the regulations be substantially the same as the regulations in effect for the 1956–57 marketing year (21 F. R. 5173), except that a provision is to be included which will require warehousemen, processors (including compressmen), and common carriers, in conformity with section 373 (a) of the act, to keep available, for examination and inspection, records normally made in connection with the handling of cotton from, for, or on behalf of the producer thereof, until Decmebr 31, 1959, and for such longer period of time as may be requested in writing by the Director of the Cotton Division, Commodity Stabilization Service.

Prior to the issuance of such regulations, consideration will be given to any data, views, or information pertaining thereto which are submitted in writing to the Director, Cotton Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, United States Department of Agriculutre, Washington 25, D. C. All submissions must be postmarked not later than 15 calendar days from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER in order to be considered. CHILD LABOR REGULATIONS, ORDERS AND STATEMENTS OF INTERPRETATIONS

OCCUPATIONS INVOLVING EXPOSURE TO RADIOACTIVE SUBSTANCES AND IONIZING RADIATIONS

In accordance with the procedure governing determinations of hazardous occupations (29 CFR Part 4, Subpart D), an investigation has been conducted into the need for amending Hazardous Occupation Order No. 6 (29 CFR Part 4, § 4.57) for the purpose of controlling the extent of exposure to radiation in the light of current knowledge regarding the hazards of, and maximum permissible exposures to, radiation. The proposed amendment adds a new subdivision (v) to subparagraph (1) of paragraph (a) of § 4.57, for the purpose of incorporating permissible limits into the order. A new subparagraph (2) is added for the purpose of extending coverage of the order to include radiation from sealed sources of radioactivity.

A report of the investigation entitled, "Report of Investigation of the Advisability of Amending Hazardous Occupations Order No. 6" has been submitted. The report recommends that the Order be amended by incorporating the permissible exposure limits recommended by the National Committee on Radiation Protection, and by limiting the permissible exposure of minors to ten percent of the maximum permissible limits. Copies of this report are available to interested persons upon request to the Bureau of Labor Standards, United States Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

On the basis of such conclusions and pursuant to authority conferred by section 3 (l) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060, as amended; 29 U. S. C. 201 et seq.) and Reorganization Plan No. 2 (60 Stat. 1095) effective July 16, 1946, it is proposed to issue a finding and order in the form set forth below.

Accordingly, notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held April 12, 1957, commencing at 10 a. m., in Room No. 5223, United States Department of Labor Building; 14th Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington 25, D. C., before a presiding officer to be hereafter designated, at which hearing interested parties may appear and be heard with respect to said proposed finding and order. All interested persons desiring to appear at the hearing are requested to notify the Secretary of Labor at least five days prior to the date fixed for the hearing. Any interested person who is unable to appear in person may file a written comment or brief with the Secretary of Labor not later than the day prior to the hearing in order that the same may be made a part of the record at the hearing.

Proposed finding and order:

§ 4.57 Occupations involving exposure to radioactive substances and to ionizing radiations (Order 6)—(a) Finding and declaration of fact. The following occupations involving exposure to radioactive substances and to ionizing radiations are particularly hazardous and detrimental to health for minors between 16 and 18 years of age:

(2) Any other work which involves exposure to ionizing radiations in excess of one-tenth the maximum permissible dose recommended by the National Committee on Radiation Protection, as set forth in National Bureau of Standards Handbook number 59, "Permissible Dose from External Sources of Ionizing Radiation", issued September 24, 1954.

(b) Definitions. As used in this section:

(1) The term "self-luminous compound" shall mean any mixture of phosphorescent material and radium, mesothorium, or other radioactive element.

(2) The term "workroom" shall include the entire area bounded by walls of solid material and extending from floor to ceiling.

(3) The term "ionizing radiations" shall mean alpha and beta particles, electrons, protons, neutrons, gamma and X-ray and all other radiations which produce ionizations directly or indirectly, but does not include electromagnetic radiations other than gamma and X-ray.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 2d day of March 1957.

§ 205.13 Quarterly reports of Class II carriers of property. Each Class II common and contract motor carrier of propertly subject to provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act, as the same are defined for accounting and reporting purposes, shall file duly verified quarterly reports commencing with the period January 1, 1957 to March 31, 1957 (both dates inclusive), in accordance with the Quarterly Report of Revenues, Expenses, and Statistics—Class II Motor Carriers of Property form,[1] including the reporting of total man-hours actually worked by drivers and helpers in Report of Man-Hours Paid For and Compensation of Drivers and Helpers, which is hereby approved and made a part of this section. Each such quarterly report shall be filed, in triplicate, in the office of the Bureau of Motor Carriers, Interstate Commerce Commission, for the District in which the carrier is domiciled, within 30 days after the close of the period to which it relates.

[Docket No. AO-252-A4]

MILK IN CENTRAL MISSISSIPPI MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposals to amend the tentative marketing agreement and the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Central Mississippi marketing area. Interested persons may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., not later than the close of business the seventh day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing, on the record of which the proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, were formulated, was conducted at Jackson, Mississippi, on January 25, 1957 (22 F. R. 417). The material issues of record related to:

1. A revision of the producer-handler definition.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on the evidence introduced at the hearing, and the record thereof:

1. The definition of "producer-handler" should be amended. The Mississippi Milk Producers' Association proposed that the present definition of producer-handler be amended so as to limit the status of producer-handler to persons whose sole source of supply is their own production.

Testimony in support of the proposal was also submitted by a regulated handler. An unregulated handler and a producer-handler tesified in favor of the proposal, except as it pertained to a proposed specified volume limit on Class I distribution in the marketing area by a producer-handler. Otherwise, no opposition testimony was offered.

The producers' association contended that the present language of the producer-handler definition results in price inequities among producer-handlers who are not regulated by Order No. 87, and handlers who are regulated. Proponents testified that a producer-handler should be exempt from regulation if he bottles and distributes milk only of his own-farm production.

The present producer-handler definition permits a person who bottles and distributes own-farm production to receive milk from a pool plant without relinquishing producer-handler status; but he loses such status if he uses other source milk. Proponents testified that such restriction should be retained in the definition. To do otherwise would afford producer-handlers a decided advantage over fully regulated handlers. It would permit unpriced and reconstituted milk to displace producer milk in the Class I utilization of the market. It would permit a disparity in costs for milk to exist among plants supplying the Central Mississippi market. Such disparity would encourage market instability.

The association maintains that producers who supply pool plants must carry the seasonal surplus for producer-handlers who purchase supplemental milk from such plants.

Producers also suggested a volume limitation for the status of producer-handlers, of 3,440 pounds per day of Class I milk distributed in the marketing area. Distribution of any volume in excess of the proposed limit would disqualify a distributor for producer-handler status. The volume limitation on distribution was one of several ways suggested by proponents to achieve the stated purpose. Presumably, all producer-handlers who bottle and distribute own-farm production at the present time would continue to qualify as producer-handlers if the proposed limitation on volume distribution were adopted. The intent of the proposed order amendments can be achieved without the suggested volume limitation.

There is no evidence that the volume of own-farm production now being distributed by producer-handlers is disrupting marketing conditions in the Central Mississippi area. Rather, the disruptive conditions complained of are due primarily to purchases by producer-handlers of supplemental supplies of milk from pool plants, without pooling all of their Class I utilization. The market instability complained of became acute when certain handlers who had been regulated adjusted their operations to acquire producer-handler status under the order.

The present provisions permit a person who bottles and distributes fluid milk to regulate his purchases of milk in such a way that own-farm production, supplemented by purchases from pool plants is approximately equal to his Class I utilization. Under such circumstances, producers who ship milk to a pool plant carry the entire burden of surplus milk from the producer-handlers operation without sharing in the entire Class I utilization of such plant. In other words, the only producer-handler Class I utilization presently shared by all producers is limited to the quantity of supplemental milk which the producer-handler purchases from a pool plant. If a producer-handler produces all of his own milk needs, he carries his own surplus.

If the present definition, which provided that a producer-handler may not retain his exemption from the pooling requirements of the order and use other source milk were expanded so as to put a similar limit on the use of milk from pool plants, then bottling plants in the Central Mississippi area which have recently acquired producer-handler status would be placed on a more competitive basis with fully regulated milk plants. It would also distribute the burden of surplus milk among producers more equitably.

The proponent suggested that the distributing plant definition be amended to require the operator of such plant to claim producer-handler status if he chose to do so, prior to the monthly date for computing the pool. The market administrator could then verify such status prior to the time for computing the pool and paying producers.

In this connection, it should be noted that the market administrator already has sufficient latitude to request reports from producer-handlers at whatever time he deems it desirable to do so. Consequently, it is unnecessary to change the definition of the distributing plant to achieve the stated objective.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. A number of briefs were filed which contained statement of fact, proposed findings and conclusions and arguments with respect to the provisions of the proposed amendments. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in the recommended decision.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Recommended marketing agreement and order, amending the order, as amended. The following order amending the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Central Mississippi marketing area is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The recommended marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended.

1. Delete § 987.16 and substitute the following:

TOLERANCES AND EXEMPTIONS FROM TOLERANCES FOR PESTICIDE CHEMICALS IN OR ON RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES

NOTICE OF PROPOSAL TO ESTABLISH TOLERANCE FOR RESIDUES OF ETHYLENE OXIDE IN OR ON COPRA

October 20, 1956, there appeared in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 8089) a notice of filing of a petition by Procter and Gamble Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, proposing the establishment of an exemption from the requirement of a tolerance for residues of ethylene oxide in or on copra. This notice erroneously stated that it was being issued pursuant to section 408 (d) (1) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (68 Stat. 512; 21 U. S. C. 346a (d) (1)), whereas the petitioner had requested that the Commissioner of Food and Drugs propose, pursuant to section 408 (e) (68 Stat. 514; 21 U. S. C. 346a (e)) of the act the issuance of an exemption or, in the alternative, a tolerance for ethylene oxide when used as a fumigant for copra.

It appears from the data in the petition that the residues in or on copra from fumigation with ethylene oxide as proposed do not exceed 50 parts per million. These residues in or on copra will not constitute a hazard to health.

By virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 408 (b), (e), 68 Stat. 511, 514; 21 U. S. C. 346a (b), (e)) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (21 CFR 120.29 (a)), it is proposed by the Commissioner of Food and Drugs, in accordance with the request set forth above, that the regulations for tolerances for pesticide chemicals in or on raw agricultural commodities (21 CFR Part 120; 22 F. R. 931) be amended by changing § 120.151 to read as follows:

§ 120.151 Tolerances for residues of ethylene oxide. A tolerance of 50 parts per million is established for residues of ethylene oxide in or on each of the following raw agricultural commodities: Whole spices, copra.

A person who has registered or who has submitted an application for the registration of an economic poison under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act containing ethylene oxide may request, within 30 days from publication of this proposal, that the proposal be referred to an advisory committee in accordance with section 408 (e) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

Any interested person is invited at any time prior to the thirtieth day from the date of publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER to file with the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D. C., written comments on the proposal. Comments may be accompanied by a memorandum or brief in support thereof. All documents shall be filed in quintuplicate.

Dated: March 5, 1957.

ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

SPENT REACTOR FUELS

COMMISSION SERVICES IN CHEMICAL PROCESSING

This notice concerns the services the Commission renders in providing for chemical processing of spent fuel or blanket materials from nuclear reactors.

1. The Commission will undertake under contracts individually negotiated with persons licensed pursuant to sections 103 or 104 of the act, and possessing spent reactor fuel or blanket materials, to provide for processing of these materials in facilities owned by the Commission. Such processing will include the mechanical, metallurgical, and chemical treatment of these materials to recover the source and special nuclear materials remaining therein, and the storage of resulting wastes.

2. A firm charge for such a service will be part of each contract, subject to escalation in accordance with an appropriate recognized price index. The term of the contracts will be from the respective dates of execution until June 30, 1967. However, each contract will reserve the right to AEC to terminate the agreement, without cost, upon a determination by the Commission that the required services will be commercially available at reasonable prices.

3. The charge for chemical processing will depend upon, among other things, the form, content, and other specifications of the spent fuel or blanket material in question. It will be expressed in terms of a daily charge, fixed by AEC, to apply over the time required to process the fuel in question.

4. The establishment of the firm charge by AEC will be based upon the costs associated with an assumed chemical-processing plant. Copies of the assumed processing-plant design will be available for distribution at an early date. Briefly, the plant consists of "tail-end" (extraction and recovery) equipment capable of handling one (1) ton per day of normal and slightly enriched uranium, but having a reduced capacity for fuels of higher enrichments or high diluent contents, as determined by the criticality and other processing considerations set on the assumed plant. "Head-end" (handling, mechanical treatment, dissolution and feed storage) equipment is designed to handle the variety of fuels for which the contractual arrangement is expected to be requested.

5. The estimated installed cost of the assumed plant, upon which firm daily processing charges will be based, is $20,570,000. The AEC has determined that the total annual cost for the operation of this assumed plant, including waste storage, amortization and allowance for AEC overhead and other intangible expenses is $4,592,000. Based on this estimated annual cost, a daily cost of $15,300 (based on 300 days of operation per year) will be the basis for the charge for those fuels which can be processed in the assumed plant as presently conceived.

6. The individual contracts will provide for (1) a fixed unit charge per gram or kilogram of material delivered for processing, (2) the specifications of the fuel element to be processed and, (3) the batch size or sizes upon which the unit charges are based. In arriving at the unit charge, the following factors will be used:

(a) The daily cost of $15,300 for plant operation (this cost is based on fuel elements which this plant as presently conceived can process. The daily cost applicable to other fuels which the AEC determines involve significantly different costs or additions or modifications to the assumed facility or processes will be established with due consideration for these differences in cost.)

(b) The estimated processing rate for the particular fuel element, which will be determined from the extraction portion of the process flow charts used in establishing the conceptual design.

(c) Batch size determination: (1) For licensees paying use charge: as specified by licensee, provided that licensee will pay use charges until entire batch specified is delivered, plus normal processing period. (2) For licensees not paying use charge: one year's output, or actual batch size discharged, if reactor is discharged less frequently than yearly.

(d) Time required to cover start-up, shutdown, and clean-up of the process system between batches which will be not less than three days nor more than eight days, and will equal the processing time determined under subparagraph 6 (b) and (c), when between these limits.

7. An additional charge to cover process losses will be made at the rate of 1 percent of the value of the government-owned source or special nuclear materials to be processed. Unless waived by the AEC, a use charge on leased source and special nuclear material will also be made to cover the normal processing time after delivery of fuel to the AEC. The charges referred to above apply to processing of irradiated fuels to yield purified nitrate salts of uranium and plutonium. Additional charges, to be established, will be made to cover conversion of these products to forms for which AEC prices have been established.

8. Persons who have contracted with the AEC for these processing services will be credited with the value of government-owned source and special nuclear material contained in the fuel in accordance with the appropriate AEC price schedules for such materials, less the processing charges as determined in the above manner. The AEC will acquire title, without additional cost, to all waste materials contained in the fuel which were not previously the property of the United States.

9. Additional information may be obtained from the Division of Civilian Application, U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, 1901 Constitution Avenue NW., Washington 25, D. C.

Dated at Washington, D. C., this 27th day of February 1957.

For the Atomic Energy Commission.

General Manager.

NORTHERN NATURAL GAS CO.

ORDER SUSPENDING PROPOSED REVISED TARIFF SHEETS AND PROVIDING HEARING

On February 5, 1957, Northern Natural Gas Company (Northern), tendered for filing Second Revised Sheets Nos. 4, 5 and 6, pertaining to Rate Schedule CD-1, Second Revised Sheets Nos. 9, 10 and 11, pertaining to Rate Schedule CD-2, and Second Revised Sheets Nos. 14, 15 and 16, pertaining to Rate Schedule CD-3 to its FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1. Northern proposes an effective date of March 7, 1957, for such proposed rates which would increase its charges to jurisdictional sales in the amount of $6,467,000.

In support of such proposed increased rates, Northern states, among other reasons, that "* * * as a result of increasing costs, the present rates fail to recover the cost of service notwithstanding added revenues from increased sales." In the design of the rates Northern has proposed that the commodity charges in the demand-commodity form of rate be retained at the level in the existing rates, and Northern has increased the demand charges to provide the required revenue. Northern also proposes the allowance of a 6.25 percent rate of return in lieu of the 6 percent rate of return heretofore accepted in settlement of previous rate increase applications.

The proposed rates and charges are based upon plant estimated to be in service at the end of the "test year", a 6¼ percent rate of return on rate base, increased operating expenses and a cost allocation not in accordance with accepted methods. It also appears that the company has departed from previously established Commission practice with respect to determination of plant in service. Further, the claimed increases in operating expenses, particularly purchased gas costs, are questionable as is the company's estimate of sales during the test period.

The increased rates and charges proposed in the foregoing revised sheets tendered by Northern have not been shown to be justified and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory or preferential, or otherwise unlawful. In addition, protests to the filing have been received from the Kansas Corporation Commission, the City of St. Paul, Minnesota, various individuals, and 19 companies and municipalities distributing gas purchased from Northern.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing, pursuant to the authority contained in Section 4 of such Act, concerning the lawfulness of the rates, charges, classifications and services of Northern's FPC Gas Tariff and contracts related thereto, as proposed to be amended by Second Revised Sheets 4, 5, and 6 pertaining to Rate Schedule CD-1, Second Revised Sheets 9, 10 and 11, pertaining to Rate Schedule CD-2, and Second Revised Sheets 14, 15 and 16, pertaining to Rate Schedule CD-3 and that these foregoing designated Second Revised Sheets be suspended as hereinafter ordered, and the use thereof be deferred pending hearing and decision thereon, except as they may become effective as provided by the Natural Gas Act.

The Commission orders:

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-3556]

SOUTHERN CO. ET AL.

ORDER AUTHORIZING ISSUANCE AND SALE OF COMMON STOCK

In the matter of The Southern Company, Alabama Power Company, Georgia Power Company; File No. 70-3556.

The Southern Company ("Southern"), a registered holding company, and Alabama Power Company ("Alabama"), and Georgia Power Company ("Georgia"), both public-utility subsidiaries of Southern, have jointly filed an application-declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to sections 6 (a), 6 (b), 7, 9 (a), 10, 12 (c) and 12 (f) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and Rules U-42, U-43 and U-50 promulgated thereunder with respect to the following proposed transactions:

Southern proposes to issue and sell 1,507,304 shares of its authorized but unissued common stock, par value $5 per share ("Additional Common Stock"), and to offer to the holders of its outstanding common stock the right to subscribe for such shares on the basis of one share of Additional Common Stock for each 13 shares of common stock held on the record date. Rights to subscribe will be evidenced by transferable registered Subscription Warrants and no fractional shares of Additional Common Stock are to be issued. Southern will provide facilities through its subscription agent so that rights (not exceeding 12) may be sold or purchased.

The offer of the Additional Common Stock will be underwritten. Southern proposes publicly to invite bids and such invitation will request prospective underwriters, among other things, to agree to purchase any shares not subscribed for as a result of the offering to stockholders and to buy shares purchased by Southern, if any, in connection with stabilizing activities referred to below.

The subscription price per share at which the company proposes to offer the Additional Common Stock to its common stockholders and to underwriters will be determined by Southern. Prospective underwriters who have qualified to bid on the shares of Additional Common Stock will be notified of the price per share at least 20 hours prior to the time for the submission of bids. Such price will not be more than the last reported sale price on the New York Stock Exchange prior to the fixing thereof and not less than such last reported sale price less 15 percent.

Southern proposes, if it considers it necessary or desirable, to effect transactions which stabilize or maintain the market price of its common stock for the purpose of facilitating the offering and distribution of the Additional Common Stock. In connection therewith, Southern may, during the period commencing with the first business day prior to the date when the price per share is to be determined and continuing until the acceptance of a bid for the Additional Common Stock from underwriters, purchase not in excess of 150,730 shares of its stock through regular brokerage channels.

Southern proposes to apply the proceeds from the sale of the Additional Common Stock to the purchase during 1957 at $100 per share of up to 92,500 additional shares of common stock to be issued by Alabama and up to 197,500 additional shares of common stock to be issued by Georgia. Alabama and Georgia propose to use the proceeds from the sales of their stock to provide a portion of the funds required to complete their initial aggregate $2,000,000 investment in the capital stock of Southern Electric Generating Company, to finance improvements, extensions and additions to their respective utility plants, and, in case of Georgia, to pay off any bank loans of up to $11,000,000 which may be made in connection with its contemplated purchase of the assets of Georgia Power and Light Company and a transmission line of Florida Power Corporation.

The fees and expenses to be incurred in connection with the transactions are estimated as follows:

Federal original issue tax	$15,080
Filing fee, this Commission	3,040
Listing on New York Stock Exchange	3,775
Services of transfer agent and registrar	60,000
Services of warrant agent including preparation and mailing of warrants	158,000
Printing and engraving	76,750
Legal services, Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts	12,500
Accounting services, Arthur Andersen & Co	10,000
Services of Southern Services, Inc.	10,000
Miscellaneous, including blue sky expense	9,000
Total	350,145

The expenses to be incurred by Alabama and Georgia will consist of the cost of documentary tax stamps, estimated at $3,500 and $6,990, respectively.

The fee of Reid & Priest, independent counsel to the underwriters, which will be paid by the successful bidders, is estimated at $7,500.

The Alabama Public Service Commission and the Georgia Public Service Commission have authorized the issuances and sales of common stock by Alabama and Georgia, respectively. No other State commission, and no Federal commission other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

Due notice having been given of the filing of said application-declaration in the manner prescribed by Rule U-23 (Holding Company Act Release No. 13379) and no hearing having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable standards of the act and the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, that no adverse findings are necessary, and that the estimated fees and expenses are not unreasonable; and the Commission deeming it appropriate in the public interest and the interest of investors and consumers that said application-declaration as amended be granted and permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that said application-declaration as amended be, and hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rules U-24 and U-50.

UNION ELECTRIC CO.

NOTICE OF FILING OF DECLARATION AND NOTICE OF AND ORDER FOR HEARING THEREON

MARCH 8, 1957.

Notice is hereby given that Union Electric Company ("Union"), a registered holding company, has filed with this Commission a declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and has designated section 12 (e) of the act and Rule U-62 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

On February 27, 1957, this Commission issued a notice and order under section 12 (e) of the act (Holding Company Act Release No. 13399) prohibiting Union and all other persons from soliciting any proxy or other form of authorization regarding the voting of any security of Union in connection with the annual meeting of Union's stockholders scheduled to be held April 20, 1957, unless pursuant to a declaration permitted to become effective by order of this Commission. Union has now filed a declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to Rule U-62.

Union states that it proposes to make three solicitations of its stockholders in connection with Union's annual meeting to be held on April 20, 1957. It further states that the initial solicitation material to be sent out will include a notice of the meeting, a proxy statement, a form of proxy and a one page communication entitled "The Union Electric Record of a Decade." According to the filing, in addition to the initial material, it is the present intention of Union's management to include a short statement with the checks for the quarterly dividend on its common stock to be mailed on March 29, 1957, which statement would simultaneously be mailed to preferred stockholders, and, on or about April 5, 1957, to send out a follow up letter and proxy, to be accompanied by a short statement. Copies of such solicitation material have been submitted as part of the aforesaid declaration.

Union states that the cost of soliciting proxies by the management will be borne by the company to the extent permitted by Rule U-65 (b) promulgated under the Act and estimates that such expense will be $22,850. Additional expense, estimated to be $3,950, will be paid by those directors of the company, who are not and who have not been officers or employees of the company, from their personal funds without reimbursement by the company.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that a hearing be held with respect to the declaration as amended and that such declaration shall not be permitted to become effective except pursuant to the further order of the Commission:

It is ordered, That a hearing on said declaration pursuant to the applicable provisions of the act and the rules of the Commission be held on March 13, 1957 at 10 a. m., e. s. t., at the offices of the Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington, D. C. On such date the hearing room clerk in room 193 will advise as to where such hearing will be held.

Any person desiring to be heard or otherwise wishing to participate in this proceeding shall prior to the commencement of the hearing file with the hearing officer hereinafter designated a request relative thereto as provided by Rule XVII of the Commission's rules of practice and shall state the reasons for wishing to participate, the nature and extent of his interest in the proceeding, and the issues of fact or law raised by the declaration which he desires to controvert.

The Division of Corporate Regulation has advised the Commission, upon the basis of its examination of the declaration as amended that the following matters and questions are presented for consideration, without prejudice, however, to the presentation of additional matters and questions upon further examination:

(1) Whether the proposed solicitations are in accordance with the standards of section 12 (e) of the act and Rule U-62 promulgated thereunder, and, specifically, whether it is appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers to permit any solicitation of proxies to be voted in connection with a resolution submitted by a common stockholder of Union which resolution, if approved by Union's stockholders, would authorize Union's Board of Directors to reimburse expenses of any directors who might be elected in opposition to Union's slate of candidates.

(2) Whether the expenses proposed to be expended by Union are appropriate and in accordance with the applicable standards of section 12 (e) of the act and Rule U-65 promulgated thereunder.

(3) Whether all the transactions proposed in Union's declaration are in accordance with the applicable standards of the act, and whether, in the event the declaration should be permitted to become effective, it is necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers to impose any terms or conditions.

It is further ordered, That particular attention be directed at said hearing to the foregoing matters and questions.

It is further ordered, That James G. Ewell or any other hearing officer or hearing officers of the Commission designated by it for that purpose shall preside at the hearing in such matter. The hearing officer so designated to preside at any such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (e) of the act and to a hearing officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

It is further ordered, That the Secretary of the Commission give telegraphic notice of the hearing ordered herein to Union, J. Raymond Dyer and Nancy Corrine Dyer, serve copies of this notice and order by registered mail on such persons and that notice shall be given to all other persons by general release of this Commission, which shall be distributed to the press and mailed to the mailing list for releases issued under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and by publication of this notice and order in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

By the Commission.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

[Navel Orange Reg. 108, Amdt. 1]

PART 914—NAVEL ORANGES GROWN IN ARIZONA AND DESIGNATED PART OF CALIFORNIA

LIMITATION OF HANDLING

Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 14, as amended (7 CFR Part 914; 21 F. R. 4707), regulating the handling of navel oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California, effective September 22, 1953, under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Navel Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of handling of such navel oranges, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this amendment until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this amendment is based became available and the time when this amendment must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and this amendment relieves restrictions on the handling of navel oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California.

Order, as amended. The provisions in paragraph (b) (1) (i) and (ii) of § 914.408 (Naval Orange Regulation 108, 22 F. R. 1315) are hereby amended to read as follows:

(i) District 1: 341,880 cartons;
(ii) District 2: 720,720 cartons.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

Dated: March 8, 1957.

[SEAL] S. R. SMITH,
Director, Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service.

[F. R. Doc. 57-1869; Filed, Mar. 12, 1957; 8:46 a. m.]

c. The following premises are deleted from the list, contained in paragraph (b) of such instructions, of premises in which infestations of the khapra beetle have been determined to exist, and their designation as regulated areas is hereby revoked, it having been determined by the Director of the Plant Pest Control Division that adequate sanitation measures have been practiced for a sufficient length of time to eradicate the khapra beetle in and upon such premises:

ARIZONA

Acme Bag & Burlap Co., 3200 South Seventh Street, Phoenix.

Delinting & Seed Treating Co., 3100 South Seventh Street, Phoenix.

Valley Feed & Seed, 1918 West Van Buren, Phoenix.

CALIFORNIA

Niland Food Market (store), west side of 200 block, east side of Highway 111, Niland.

Snyder's Termite Control property, 4428 Magnolia Avenue, Riverside.

This amendment shall become effective March 13, 1957.

This amendment revokes the designation as regulated areas of certain premises, it having been determined by the Director of the Plant Pest Control Division that adequate sanitation measures have been practiced for a sufficient length of time to eradicate the khapra beetle in and upon such premises. It also adds premises to the list of premises in which khapra beetle infestations have been determined to exist, and designates such premises as regulated areas under the khapra beetle quarantine and regulations.

The amendment revokes the designation as regulated areas of certain premises in Arizona and California where the approved fumigation treatment has been applied to the portion of the premises in which live khapra beetles were found and where repeated inspections covering a period of one year have failed to show any recurrence of infestation on the premises.

This amendment in part imposes restrictions supplementing khapra beetle quarantine regulations already effective. It also relieves restrictions insofar as it revokes the designation of presently regulated areas. It must be made effective promptly in order to carry out the purposes of the regulations and to permit the interstate movement, without restriction under the quarantine, of regulated products from the premises being removed from designation as regulated areas. Accordingly, under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), it is found upon good cause that notice and other public procedure with respect to the foregoing amendment are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and good cause is found for making the effective date thereof less than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Sec. 9, 37 Stat. 318; 7 U. S. C. 162. Interprets or applies sec. 8, 37 Stat. 318, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 161)

DELEGATIONS OF AUTHORITY

(The purpose of this amendment is to delegate authority to Regional Administrators to release electric, water, gas, heating, sewerage, aircraft fuel, and other similar utility systems and the component parts thereof from the terms and conditions of Surplus Property Instruments of Disposal.)

Pursuant to the authority under section 301 of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended (52 Stat. 973, 54 Stat. 1233, 1235, 1236; 49 U. S. C. 401, 451), the Surplus Property Act of 1944 (58 Stat. 765) as amended by the act of July 30, 1947 (61 Stat. 678) and the act of October 1, 1949 (63 Stat. 700), § 565.5 of the regulations of the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics is amended to read as follows:

§ 565.5 Delegations of authority. (a) Authority is hereby delegated to the Regional Administrators to:

(1) Execute such instruments of release or correction or other instruments as may be necessary to effect the removal of record of any restriction against use of structures for industrial purposes contained in any instrument of disposal;

(2) Consent to or approve, conditionally or unconditionally, the leasing or use of any real or personal property for other than the airport use or purpose contemplated by the instrument of disposal to which such property is subject, as provided in § 565.4 (g), when in the opinion of the Regional Administrator such property is not needed for such airport use or purpose and the use or the exercise of the rights granted by the lease will not materially and adversely affect the use, operation, maintenance, development, or improvement of the airport;

(3) Execute such instruments of release or correction or other instruments as may be necessary to release from any or all of the terms, conditions, reservations, and restrictions of instruments of disposal, (i) any structures, facilities or items of personal property which, in the opinion of the Regional Administrator, have outlived their useful life or deteriorated beyond economical repair, notwithstanding the performance of such maintenance work by the airport owner as it could reasonably have been expected to perform in maintaining the property in accordance with the applicable instrument of disposal, (ii) any structures or facilities which, in the opinion of the Regional Administrator, must be removed to permit the accomplishment of needed airport improvement or expansion, (iii) any equipment such as machinery, machine tools, and vehicular equipment which, in the opinion of the Regional Administrator, is no longer needed for the purpose for which it was conveyed or, because of size, type or other reason, is uneconomical to use for the purpose for which it was conveyed, and (iv) any electric, water, gas, heating, sewerage, aircraft fuel and other similar utility system and the component parts thereof when, in the opinion of the Regional Administrator, such system cannot economically be maintained and operated by the airport owner because of the lack of qualified operating personnel or for other reason and the release is necessary to assure accomplishment of the purpose for which the system was conveyed to such owner;

(4) Consent to or approve, conditionally or unconditionally, the conveyance or grant of rights-of-way (easements) and licenses for streets, roadways, utility lines and other pipe, pole and wire lines and drainage and irrigation facilities on, over and under lands subject to an instrument of disposal: Provided, That in each case the Regional Administrator first determines that exercise of the rights granted by the right-of-way or license will not adversely and materially interfere with the use, operation, maintenance, development, or improvement of the airport.

(b) Except as set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, all authority contained in Public Law 311 is reserved to the Administrator and will be exercised only by the Administrator.

(Sec. 4, 63 Stat. 700; 50 U. S. C. App. 1622c)

This amendment shall become effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Agricultural Marketing Service

[7 CFR Part 930]

[Docket No. AO-72-A21]

MILK IN TOLEDO, OHIO, MARKETING AREA

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was conducted at Toledo, Ohio, on July 31–August 2, 1956, pursuant to notice thereof which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5293), upon proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, regulating the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area.

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on January 24, 1957, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision. Said decision containing notice of opportunity to file written exceptions thereto was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 29, 1957 (22 F. R. 556).

Within the period reserved therefor, interested parties filed exceptions to certain of the findings, conclusions and actions recommended by the Deputy Administrator. In arriving at the findings, conclusions, and regulatory provisions of this decision, each of such exceptions was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that findings, conclusions and actions decided upon herein are at variance with any of the exceptions, such exceptions are overruled.

To the extent that suggested findings and conclusions proposed by interested persons are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the specific or implied requests to make such findings and reach such conclusions are denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions herein set forth.

The material issues relate to:

(1) An expansion in the marketing area;

(2) Changes in the Class I price differential and a revision of the supply-demand price adjustment factor;

(3) The establishment of a separate class for cottage cheese and the application of the basic formula price to Class II milk;

(4) A provision for premiums for bulk farm tank milk deliveries;

(5) A provision for location adjustments on milk received at country plants;

(6) Provisions for separate pricing of Class I milk disposed of outside the marketing area; and

(7) The revision of a number of definitions and clarification of the order language with respect to the reporting and accounting for milk.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based upon the evidence in the record of hearing:

1. The marketing area should be expanded.

Producers proposed that the present marketing area be extended to cover all of the territory of Monroe County, except the townships of Ash and Berlin; the townships of Riga, Deerfield, Blissfield, Palmyra and Ogden in Lenawee County; all in the State of Michigan; the counties of fulton, Wood and Lucas; the town of Elmore and the townships of Allen and Clay in Ottawa County; the town of Gibsonburg, and the townships of Madison and Woodville in Sandusky County; all in the State of Ohio.

Producers stated that the bulk of the Class I sales in the proposed expanded area are made by regulated handlers and that expansion of the marketing area is necessary (1) to protect the present fluid milk market outlets for producer milk; and (2) to assure that all distributors who compete for sales in this area buy milk on an equal basis.

Certain handlers opposed the extension of the marketing area into Lenawee County, Michigan, in their brief. No testimony was presented by these handlers, including the operator of the principal plant which might be directly affected. Other parties opposed the inclusion in the expanded marketing area of the townships of Exeter, London, Milan, and Dundee in Monroe County, Michigan.

The present marketing area includes the territory within the city limits of Toledo, Ohio, and Monroe, Michigan and fifteen adjoining townships. Seven of these townships are in Lucas County, Ohio, two in Wood County, Ohio, and six in Monroe County, Michigan. These townships comprise only a small portion of the total sales area serviced by handlers subject to regulation under the Toledo order. It is not necessary or feasible to extend the regulation to all areas where handlers may sell some milk.

It is concluded that the marketing area should be expanded to include: all of the territory in Lucas County and in Fulton County; the territory north of the northern boundaries of the townships of Montgomery, Portage, Liberty, Milton (including all of the town of Weston) in Wood County; all of the territory within the townships of Woodville and Madison in Sandusky County; all in the State of Ohio; all of the territory within the boundaries of the townships of Riga, Ogden, Palmyra, Blissfield, and Deerfield in Lenawee County; and all of the territory in Monroe County except the territory within the township of Ash, Berlin, Exeter, London, Milan, and Dundee; all in the State of Michigan.

The area recommended to be added to the marketing area is contiguous to the present marketing area. Recent expansion in industry and housing of the Toledo metropolitan area has extended into many of the townships recommended to be included and has been accompanied by a substantial increase in population. Toledo regulated handlers have extended their routes to supply the milk requirements of these areas. In each of the townships more than seventy-five percent of the fluid milk sales are supplied by handlers regulated by the Toledo order. Thus, the handling of milk to supply this area is closely identified with that in the present marketing area.

The health requirements for milk produced for fluid consumption in each of the townships recommended to be added to the present marketing area are substantially the same and similar to those in the present marketing area, "Grade A" milk, or the equivalent thereof, is required for milk for fluid consumption by the health departments in all areas.

A substantial portion of the fluid milk sales in Fulton County are made by handlers now regulated under the Toledo order. Some milk is supplied in this area from a plant located at Napoleon, Ohio, and another at New Bremen, Ohio, Neither of these plants is presently subject to regulation. A plant located at Wauseon, the county seat of Fulton County, distributes milk in this area, but is regulated by virtue of sales made within the present marketing area.

The fluid milk requirements for Wood County, Ohio, are supplied primarily by handlers regulated under the Toledo, Cleveland, and Lima orders. Sales by Toledo handlers are more predominant in the territory north of Milton, Liberty, Portage and Montgomery townships while distributors regulated by the Lima order are principal suppliers of the southern portion of the county. The territory south of the northern boundary of these townships should not be included in the marketing area.

More than 85 percent of the fluid milk requirements for the proposed Madison and Woodville townships of Sandusky County, Ohio, are supplied from Toledo plants and a plant located near Woodville which is also subject to the Toledo order. Sales by an unregulated plant, located in Tiffin, Ohio, in Madison and Woodville townships represent approximately eight percent of the total fluid milk sales of this last plant. The milk supply at this plant is procured from local producers at from 15 to 20 cents per hundredweight less than the Toledo marketwide average blend price. No objection was expressed to the extension of the marketing area to include these townships.

The townships of Allen and Clay (including the town of Elmore) in Ottawa County should not be added to the marketing area because there is no health ordinance applying to milk sold for fluid consumption in these townships.

The present marketing area includes that portion of Monroe County, Michigan, within the boundaries of Whiteford, Bedford, Erie, LaSalle, Monroe and Frenchtown townships. The proposal also would include Rasinville, Ida, Summerfield, Milan, London, Exeter and Dundee townships. The major portion of the milk supply for the first three townships is supplied by Toledo handlers while the last four townships are supplied primarily by Detroit regulated handlers. There is no need to extend the Toledo marketing area to include these last four townships.

Recent developments in the procurement and sale of milk centered in Lenawee County, Michigan, is of much concern to producers and threatens to disrupt the orderly marketing of producer milk. A distributing plant located in Palmyra township, Lenawee County, is operated by a handler who operates a pool plant in Toledo. The Palmyra plant is approximately 30 miles from Toledo. Milk is distributed from this plant outside of the present marketing area throughout a considerable portion, if not all of the proposed extended area in Michigan. This milk is sold primarily in competition with milk fully regulated under the Toledo and Detroit orders. Some milk also is disposed of outside of this area.

The Palmyra plant has been operated for a number of years, but it was remodeled and its facilities were expanded in 1954. A portion of the raw milk requirements at this plant is received from a herd maintained by the operator of the plant. Starting in 1956, milk also has been received directly from dairy farmers who deliver their milk in bulk farm pick-up tanks as diverted milk from Toledo. Milk, at times, also is received from a plant located at Defiance, Ohio. Packaged milk and other dairy products are moved from the Toledo plant to the Palmyra plant for disposition.

Because under the present provisions of the order milk transferred or diverted from a Toledo pool plant to an unregulated plant may be assigned to Class II utilization to the extent of such utilization at the nonpool plant, producers contended that it is possible they are not getting the full utilization value of their milk. No Class II operations of any consequence, however, are conducted in the Palmyra plant. The evidence fails to show that significant quantities of producer milk have been classified as Class II milk through diversion or transfer of milk to this plant from the Toledo market. However, because of the proximity of this plant to the Toledo plant and the ease of transfer of milk and milk products between these plants, it is possible that producer milk devoted to Class II uses, such as cottage cheese, butter, ice cream and the like, associated with the over-all milk business of this handler, may be manufactured in the Toledo plant and supplied to the Palmyra plant while at the same time, all of the fluid milk received at the Palmyra plant is disposed of as Class I milk. Thus, the business can be conducted in such a manner that the handler's own production and the other fluid milk which is packaged at the Palmyra plant has an exclusive Class I outlet throughout the year, while producers of milk for the Toledo market bear the cost of maintaining the necessary daily and seasonal reserve supplies of milk associated with the over-all operation of the two plants.

The procurement, handling, and sales of milk in the Palmyra plant and the Toledo pool plant of this handler are conducted primarily in competition with the corresponding operations of handlers under the order. The effective regulation of the handling of milk for the over-all Toledo distribution area, therefore, compels the extension of the marketing area to include the proposed townships in Lenawee County.

Provisions should be made for distributors of milk in the recommended contiguous area to pay the same price for milk used in a given class as that paid by handlers in the presently regulated area. This may be accomplished by extending the marketing area as heretofore stated. This extension of the marketing area is necessary to safeguard and make more effective the classified pricing plan of the order and to insure and promote orderly marketing conditions.

2. The Class I price differential should be increased and the supply-demand provisions should be revised.

Producers proposed that the Class I price differential be modified to reflect a closer and appropriate relationship with the Class I differentials in competing markets, both on an annual level basis and in the seasonal pattern of changes in Class I prices. They also proposed that the supply-demand adjustment provisions of the order be changed to reflect more adequately the present seasonal relationship of producer milk receipts to fluid milk sales.

Handlers under the Toledo order compete in the procurement and sales of milk principally with handlers regulated by the Cleveland, Lima, and Detroit orders. The basic formula price in the Toledo order is similar to that contained in the orders for these neighboring markets. There is considerable difference, however, in the Class I price differentials. On an annual basis, the differentials at the marketing area are $1.43 for Detroit, $1.63 for Cleveland and $1.14 for Toledo. The Class I price under the Lima order is established, through a location adjustment, at 34 cents below the Cleveland Class I price. Part of this difference in Class I differentials reflect the need for drawing milk supplies from greater distances to supply the requirements of the larger consuming centers of Detroit and Cleveland. For example, the Cleveland Class I differential adjusted to plants located at the fringe of the Toledo marketing area is $1.41.

Some of the additional differences in the Class I price differentials, between the Toledo and other markets, have been offset by additions to the Class I price provided by the supply-demand adjuster for the Toledo market and minus adjustments in the Class I prices in the other markets. During the 12-month period, immediately preceding the hearing, July 1955–June 1956, an average of 15 cents per hundredweight was added to the Class I price for Toledo. This compares with a reduction in Cleveland of seven cents and approximately four cents in Detroit during this same period. Based on the supply-demand adjustments under the Toledo order, during the first six months of 1956 and estimates for the remainder of the year, an average of between 20 and 25 cents per hundredweight is expected to be added by supply-demand adjustments for the year 1956.

From 1953 to 1955, the average monthly producer receipts of milk for the Toledo market increased 15 percent as compared with an increase of 16 percent in Class I sales. From 1954 to 1955, receipts increased 7 percent while sales increased almost 10 percent. During the first six months of 1956, receipts of producer milk increased 5 percent over those for the first half of 1955 as compared with an 11 percent increase in fluid milk sales.

One reason for the decline in producer receipts of milk in relation to sales during the past year or so is the stricter enforcement by the Toledo Health Department of temperature requirements on milk received from the farm. This has entailed purchase by farmers of additional cooling equipment, and in some cases, remodeling of milk houses to meet these more difficult requirements. For this reason, some producers have shifted from supplying the Toledo market to supplying the other markets.

The annual level of producer milk receipts in relation to sales is relatively low in the Toledo market. In 1955, producer receipts was 1.13 times Class I utilization as compared with 1.36 for Cleveland and 1.37 for Detroit. In addition, during the past two years, the Toledo market has become increasingly short of producer receipts in relation to Class I sales in the fall months. In the September–November period of 1955, producer milk receipts were 2.5 percent short of supplying Class I milk requirements as compared with a shortage of 0.2 percent for the same period a year earlier.

Through the action of the supply-demand adjuster in these markets, Class I prices have tended toward a more reasonable relationship than otherwise would have prevailed. Marketwide averages of blend prices to producers supplying the Toledo market have been relatively favorable in relation to the blend prices in competing markets. Nevertheless, the receipts of producer milk in the Toledo marketing area have not kept pace with increased sales of fluid milk products. Under the present pricing arrangement, however, any increase in producer milk receipts in relation to Class I sales would have the effect of immediately reducing the Toledo Class I price and widening the differnece in Class I prices among the competing markets. The seasonal characteristics of the adjustments under the present supply-demand adjuster have aggravated the problem of differences in Class I prices complained about, particularly by Detroit handlers. Even more important, however, uniform prices to producers would be lowered under the present supply-demand adjuster before an adequate supply of milk is attracted to the market.

The Toledo, Detroit, Cleveland, and Lima markets are affected by common or very similar economic conditions affecting the procurement and sales of fluid milk. Because of the close competitive relationships there should be a reasonable and "normal" alignment of Class I prices over a period of time. It is basic, therefore, that price alignment among these markets be achieved by establishing more similar Class I differentials over basic formula prices. This is not to say that changes in supply-demand relationships in an individual market do not require adjustments in the "normal" or longer term alignment of prices to reflect these changed local conditions. It is only through such adjustments in class prices in the individual markets that the available supplies of milk will be attracted to the different markets in accordance with their needs.

For the above stated reasons, the Class I differential should be increased 25 cents per hundredweight on an annual basis and corresponding adjustments should be made in the supply-demand adjustment provisions of the order. The present seasonal difference in the Class I differential should be maintained until such time as some other method to encourage a production pattern more nearly in accord with sales of fluid milk products is adopted. It is therefore concluded that the following Class I price differential pattern should be adopted:

April, May, and June	$1.00
February, March, and July	1.25
August through January	1.65

The above differentials will result in an average annual Class I price differential of slightly less than $1.39 per hundredweight. As previously stated, the seasonal differences resulting from the supply-demand adjuster should be eliminated. The proposed changes, therefore, will result in somewhat less seasonal movements in the Class I price and smaller differences in Class I prices among the competing markets.

Analysis of the receipts and sales relationships in the Toledo market and the operation of the supply-demand adjuster for the past several years shows the need for revising the supply-demand adjustment factor in the order to modernize the seasonal pattern in the standard utilization percentages. During the past three years, the pattern of producer milk receipts to sales has changed so that receipts in relation to sales are lowest in September as compared with November in former years. The supply-demand adjuster should be revised, therefore, so as to reflect more current seasonality patterns.

Because the Class I differential is being increased as previously discussed, the supply-demand adjuster should not operate until the supply of milk has increased to a more "normal" or desired level in relation to Class I sales.

The present method of determining utilization percentage, based on the receipts of producer milk and sales in the first and second months immediately preceding the month for which prices are announced, should be continued. The supply-demand adjustment factor should become effective when the supply-demand ratio equals or exceeds the standard utilization percentage, as set forth in the following schedule, for each of three successive months (i. e., the supply-demand adjustment will be operative for the third month and for each month thereafter):

Month for which the price is being computed:	Standard utilization percentage
January	115
February	123
March	129
April	130
May	130
June	137
July	138
August	127
September	116
October	108
November	105
December	108

The standard utilization percentages heretofore set forth are expressed in terms of the ratio of producer receipts to gross Class I utilization for all pool plants (excluding transfers between pool plants). The current order applies the ratio of Class I utilization to producer milk receipts. Industry representatives more frequently refer to supply-demand relationships on the basis of the former ratios. It is more natural and meaningful to express supply conditions in terms of the relationship of producer milk receipts to Class I sales.

The standard utilization percentages, incorporated herein, provide for an up-to-date seasonal pattern. The schedule was developed through the analysis of relationships during the past two years with allowances for trend in the relationship and with consideration of a need for a 5 percent reserve supply of milk during the two months when receipts are lowest in relation to sales, September and October. Based upon past history, a 5 percent reserve for the months of September and October, is necessary and adequate under present conditions in this market.

It is necessary to make appropriate changes in the present brackets providing monetary adjustments in the Class I price as a result of expressing the utilization percentages as ratios of receipts to sales. The recommended method of expressing the supply-demand ratio results in greater percentage point deviations under a given supply-demand condition than under the present method of computation. Therefore, to accommodate this change without altering the responsiveness of the spuply-demand adjuster, the "no adjustment" deviation bracket should be widened from (+1 or −1) to (+2 or −2) and other minor alterations. Thus, the amount of the supply-demand adjustment should be determined by the following schedule:

+16 or over	−50
+13 or +14	−40
+10 or +11	−30
+7 or +8	−20
+4 or +5	−10
+2 or −2	0
−4 or −5	+10
−7 or −8	+20
−10 or −11	+30
−13 or −14	+40
−16 or under	+50

Producers' proposal to incorporate separate "contra-seasonal factors" in Class I pricing mechanism should be denied. By continuation of seasonal Class I price differentials, as recommended, contra-seasonal changes in Class I prices are less likely than under more uniform differentials from month-to-month, as proposed by producers. Changes in Class I prices, resulting from the supply-demand adjuster should be permitted to operate regardless of the season of the year. Once supplies and sales are in proper balance, prices should be adjusted as soon as a change in the trend in the relationship of producer milk receipts to fluid milk sales becomes evident. It is essential that price changes be reflected as quickly as possible to bring about appropriate sales and production responses in accordance with changes in the market situation. The adoption of a contra-seasonal provision would partly nullify the effectiveness of the supply-demand adjustment factor.

3. The Class II price should be the basic formula price during the months of July through February.

It was proposed by producers that the order basic formula price be used as the Class II price during each month of the year. At the present time, the Class II price is the average of the basic or field prices announced for 3.5 percent butterfat content milk for the month by three manufacturing plants located in or near the Toledo production area. The order basic formula price is the highest of the average of prices reported by 13 representative midwestern condenseries for 3.5 percent milk and the prices resulting from two formulas applying central market quotations for manufactured products including butter, nonfat dry milk, and cheese.

In recent years, it has been the practice of the manufacturing plants, presently used in computing the Class II price, to pay premiums to farmers above the announced field prices. Such premiums or bonuses are paid to such farmers for using certain equipment and supplies in the production of their milk and for delivering certain minimum volumes of milk per day. Producers supplying the Toledo market unquestionably would meet the requirements for all of such premiums. The premiums paid by these plants amounted to between 30 and 40 cents per hundredweight at the time of the hearing. Such plants are alternative sources of skim milk and butterfat for Class II products made by handlers in their pool plants. The present basis of establishing Class II prices, therefore, fails to reflect the competitive value of producer milk for manufacturing uses or prices in relation to the cost of manufactured products from alternative sources of supply.

Because of a lack of information on the portion of the milk on which the premiums are paid and the delay which would be experienced, it would not be feasible to attempt to use a weighted average price received by all farmers at the local manufacturing plants. The basic formula price provided in the order is more representative of the competitive value of manufacturing milk than the field or basic prices announced by these local plants.

During the months of July 1954 through February 1955, the average field prices announced by the three manufacturing plants was $2.99 per hundredweight as compared with an average of $3.09 for the order basic formula prices. From July 1955 through February 1956, the corresponding figures are $2.99 and $3.08, respectively. During March through June of each year, the difference between the basic formula and local plant prices was greater. Nevertheless, it is during this same period of the year that it is necessary for seasonal reserve supplies of milk from the Toledo market to be moved to the listed or other nearby manufacturing outlets. It is difficult, if not unusual, for handlers or the cooperative association to be able to secure premiums above the field prices announced by these manufacturing plants when it is necessary to dispose of Toledo seasonal reserve supplies of milk. It is possible that the application of the basic formula price as the Class II price, during the season of the year that seasonal reserve supplies must be disposed of to such plants, could very well disrupt the orderly marketing of such milk. It is concluded, therefore, that the adoption of the basic formula price for the pricing of Class II milk should be limited to the months of July through February.

Producers also proposed that skim milk and butterfat used to produce cottage cheese, presently classified as Class II milk, be priced at 30 cents per hundredweight above the basic formula price. Cottage cheese is produced from producer milk in a number of pool plants. Cottage cheese distributed by other pool plants is procured from outside sources. Cottage cheese also is disposed of directly to retail and wholesale outlets by nonpool plants which produce cottage cheese from milk which is not required to be produced under "Grade A" milk or equivalent health standards. Some of the cottage cheese disposed of in the Toledo marketing area is produced from milk which is priced under the Detroit Federal order. The health departments of the various cities and communities in the marketing area do not require cottage cheese to be made from inspected milk. This is also true of milk used for the production of cottage cheese for disposition in the Detroit market. Even though the production of a good quality cottage cheese requires a high quality raw milk, under the prevailing competitive conditions in the Toledo marketing area, producer milk used to produce cottage cheese should be priced at the Class II price the same as milk for other manufacturing uses.

4. The proposal to establish in the order premiums for bulk farm tank milk deliveries should be denied.

Producers proposed that premiums of 15 cents per hundredweight be established in the order for milk from producers using bulk farm tanks. They argued that some producers are being asked to make considerable investments in farm bulk tanks and improved milk house facilities to maintain their market outlets for milk.

The conversion to bulk tank operations in the Toledo area is in its early stage of development. About five percent of the producers supplying the market have farm bulk tanks. Most handlers are paying premiums to producers for bulk tank deliveries on a voluntary basis. Such premiums are about equivalent to the reduction in hauling costs from the farm to the milk plant which is experienced by most producers when they change from "can" to "bulk" shippers.

Bulk tank handling of milk has potentials for increased efficiency, both on the farm and in transportation and handling beyond the farm. The adoption of more efficient methods of producing, transporting, handling or processing milk affords no economic basis for increasing milk prices. The establishment of order price premiums for bulk farm tank milk could be discriminatory in effect to producers who deliver their milk in cans. Order provisions should not be such as to constitute artifical economic incentives, either for expansion or restriction of bulk tank pickup operations. Any premiums to producers for conversion to bulk tank handling can best be resolved on an economic basis in accordance with local conditions by negotiation between producers and handlers. It is therefore concluded, that producers' proposal should be denied.

5. Provision should be made for location adjustments on milk received at pool plants located more than 60 miles from the City Hall in Toledo.

Proposals were made to include location adjustments on producer milk at country pool plants. One proposal would allow location adjustments to handlers on such milk disposed of as Class I milk. Another proposal would permit location adjustments to handlers on all of the producer milk received at country pool plants regardless of its classification.

The handler formally submitting the proposal for location adjustments, operates a distributing plant in Toledo where a substantial portion of the fluid milk requirements for this plant is received directly from producers. This handler also operates plants at Angola, Indiana and at Bluffton, Ohio, where producer milk is handled. These plants are located approximately 80 and 65 miles, respectively, from Toledo. No processing facilities are operated at the Angola plant and nearly all of the milk received at this plant is moved as bulk milk to the Toledo bottling plant. At times, transfers of bulk milk are made to the Bluffton plant. The Bluffton plant has facilities for receiving "Grade A" milk and for the production of condensed milk and spray dried skim milk. Some or all of the milk transferred from the Angola plant to the Bluffton plant, at certain times, is separated into skim milk and cream and moved to the Toledo plant. In the past, milk received at the Bluffton plant directly from Toledo producers has been diverted producer milk from the Toledo distributing plant. The producers supplying all of these plants with milk for the Toledo market hold "Grade A" permits issued by the Toledo Health Department. The Bluffton plant also assembles "Grade A" milk from local producers which is moved regularly to a plant in Mansfield, Ohio, for fluid disposition in Mansfield and Findlay, Ohio. Milk assembled at the Bluffton plant for Mansfield and Findlay is required by the Health Departments to be kept physically separate from the Toledo milk. Separate storage facilities are provided for the Mansfield milk, although the same receiving equipment is used for all of the milk received at this plant. The milk received at the Bluffton plant for the Mansfield and Findlay markets is subject to the pricing and payment provisions of the Federal order for the Lima, Ohio, marketing area.

Because milk is transferred regularly from the Angola plant to the Toledo distributing plant, the Angola plant is subject to full regulation under the Toledo order. The Bluffton plant has not been subject to regulation under the Toledo order. However, it is quite possible that this plant could be subject to regulation in the future by virtue of transfers of milk, fluid skim milk and fluid cream to the Toledo bottling plant on more than the minimum number of days provided for exemption from regulation under the proposed order. This not only poses the problem of pricing milk at such plants but also the problem of providing appropriate provisions in this order and in other orders for ascertaining which order the handling of milk at such plants will be subject to regulation. This latter problem is discussed further under issue 7 of this decision.

The other proponent of location adjustments operates a distributing plant located in Tiffin, Ohio, from which milk is disposed of in the proposed extended marketing area in Sandusky County, Ohio. This plant is located between 50 and 55 miles from Toledo and about 25 miles from the center of the proposed extended marketing area in Sandusky County. There are other distributing plants which will be subject to regulation which are located within or near the proposed extended marketing area but more than 30 miles from Toledo.

Without a provision for location adjustments in the order, handlers are required to pay for milk received from producers at pool plants located at considerable distances from the marketing area, the same price as that paid for milk received at plants located in or near this consuming area. On the milk received from producers at distant pool plants, the handler assumes the cost of moving the milk from the plant to marketing area distributing plants or in packaged form to retail and wholesale outlets in the marketing area. In contrast, the entire cost of moving milk from farms directly to plants in the marketing area is borne by producers. Therefore, milk at farms or at plants has a progressively lower value to the market as such farms or plants are located farther and farther away from the market. The difference in value is related directly to the cost of transporting the milk from the respective locations to the market. It is economically sound and necessary to recognize such differences in value under the order by providing location adjustments in the pricing of milk at distant pool plants.

It is not necessary or sound, however, to apply location adjustments to milk at plants located within or near this marketing area, if the milk can be handled more economically by hauling it directly from the farm to plants in the marketing area. To do so would permit and even encourage uneconomic handling of the milk supply for the market, primarily at the expense of producers, and at the same time, result in differences in prices at distributing plants similarly situated with respect to the marketing area outlets for their milk.

As previously indicated, the only plant which regularly assembles milk for movement in bulk form to marketing area plants is located approximately 85 miles from Toledo. A substantial portion of the balance of the milk supply for the marketing area originates on farms within a 60-mile radius of Toledo and is moved directly from the farm to plants located in or near the marketing area.

In determining the appropriate application of location adjustments in this market, consideration also should be given to the resulting Class I prices applicable at plants at various locations in the production area as compared with the corresponding prices which would result at such locations under the orders for other markets which compete for the same milk supplies. In areas to the east and south of Toledo, milk is procured in competition with plants regulated under the Cleveland and Lima orders. In the area around Angola, Indiana, competition is experienced with the regulated Fort Wayne, Indiana, and Detroit, Michigan, markets and to the north of the marketing area with the Detroit market.

In view of all of these considerations, it is concluded that location adjustments should not be applied in the pricing of milk at plants which are located less than 60 miles from the City Hall of Toledo. Under present conditions, this would result in identical Class I prices at all distributing plants supplying retail and wholesale outlets in the marketing area.

The schedule of location adjustments proposed by the proponent was patterned after location adjustments contained in the Cleveland order at the time of the hearing. The location adjustments in the Cleveland order were amended since the hearing. These adjustments to handlers on Class I and Class II milk now are made at the rate of 13 cents for plants located 40–60 miles from Cleveland, 20 cents for plants located 61–74 miles distant and an additional two cents for each additional 14 miles that the plant is located from Cleveland. Under the Detroit order, an adjustment of 14 cents is applied to Class I milk in the 34 to 50-mile zone with an additional one cent for each additional 20 miles or fraction thereof that such plant is located from Detroit. No adjustment, however, is applied at distributing plants which are located less than 34 miles from the boundary of the Detroit marketing area. Under both orders, the uniform price to producers is adjusted at the same rate as the location adjustments to handlers on Class I milk. Because all producers supplying the pool plants of a handler share equally in the Class I utilization of such handler, prices paid producers supplying plants to which location differentials apply, should be reduced to reflect the lower value of such milk f. o. b. the plant to which it is delivered.

The proponent handler testified that the cost of hauling tank bulk milk from his Bluffton plant to Toledo, approximates $36 per trip or 15 cents per hundredweight and from Angola to Toledo approximates $45 per trip or 18 cents per hundredweight.

In view of all of these facts, it is concluded that the rate of adjustment under the Toledo order should be 15 cents per hundredweight for milk received at plants located more than 60 but less than 75 miles from the City Hall in Toledo and an additional 2 cents per hundredweight should be allowed for each additional 15 miles or fraction thereof that the pool plant is located from the City Hall. It is expected that the recomended location adjustment to handlers will generally approximate the cost of moving milk from a pool plant to the center of consumption in the marketing area. The Toledo City Hall is an appropriate point from which to measure the distance to the pool plant for the purpose of computing the applicable location differential.

Under present conditions and operating methods, it is likely that location adjustments would apply only to milk received at the pool supply plant located at Angola, Indiana. At other plants located in this general area and which are potential supply plants for the Toledo marketing area, the resulting Class I prices at such locations will be about the same as the levels prevailing for such locations under the orders regulating the handling of milk in the neighboring markets.

No adjustment should be made in the Class II (manufacturing milk) price to handlers because of the location of the plant to which the milk is delivered. There is little difference in the value of milk for manufacturing uses associated with the location of the plant receiving the milk. This is true because of the low cost per hundredweight of milk involved in transporting manufactured products and because of the widespread or national market for such products. The prices paid for ungraded milk received at various sections of the milkshed do not indicate any differences in value associated with location. After a handler receives milk for use in Class II products, he should be expected to handle and dispose of the milk in the manner most advantageous to himself. The prices paid by handlers for such milk should not be dependent upon the method or manner employed by the handler in disposing of the milk. To do otherwise, would remove part of the incentive for keeping marketing cost at a minimum.

To assure that milk will not be moved unnecessarily at the expense of producers, the order should provide a method for determining whether milk transferred between plants may or may not receive a location differential credit. This should be accomplished by assigning the Class I utilization at the transferee plant first to the milk received directly from producers and from plants at which no location differential applies. In view of the fact that distributing plants must carry some reserve supplies of milk to meet day to day variations in receipts of producer milk and sales of fluid milk products, it is reasonable to make some provision in the assignment procedure to accommodate this need for reserve milk. This should be accomplished by assigning to the Class I sales at the transferee plant 95 percent of the direct producer receipts and any balance of Class I sales to transferring plants, in sequence, according to their location beginning with the plant having the smallest location adjustment.

6. Proposals for separate pricing of Class I milk disposed of outside the marketing area should be denied.

The hearing notice included a proposal by two Toledo handlers to price Class I milk disposed of outside the marketing area at prices lower than minimum prices prescribed for in-area Class I sales. No testimony on this proposal was given by the proponent handlers at the hearing and the proposal therefore is denied.

Producers proposed that Class I sales by a Toledo handler within the marketing area governed by another Federal order should be priced at the higher of the prices paid for Class I milk in the two areas involved. Several Detroit handlers, on the other hand, proposed that Class I sales made in any other Federal order area should be priced under the order in which the Class I sales are made. As an alternative, they proposed that Toledo and Detroit Class I pricing should be brought into closer alignment.

Both producers and handlers testified to the effect that the solution to the problems prompting these proposals could be solved satisfactorily by bringing about proper Toledo Class I price alignment with the competing markets. Inasmuch as the conclusions reached with respect to pricing of Class I milk under Issue No. 2 will ameliorate the problem complained of, it is concluded that no further affirmative action is necessary with respect to these proposals at this time.

7. The entire order should be redrafted to change several definitions, add a number of new definitions, add more specificity in the provisions with respect to the reporting and accounting for milk, and to incorporate a number of conforming and clarifying changes throughout the order.

A number of changes should be made in the order to designate more clearly what milk and what plants would be subject to the regulation and the application of the order provisions to them. This can best be done by providing a number of new definitions to set forth the categories of persons, plants, milk and milk products. New definitions should be added for "distributing plant", "supply plant", "pool plant", "nonpool plant", "fluid milk product", "Chicago butter price" and the definitions of "producer", "producer milk", "handler", "producer-handler" and "other source milk" should be modified accordingly.

The term "distributing plant" should include all plants where milk is processed and packaged and from which fluid milk products are disposed of in the marketing area to wholesale and retail stops, including milk disposed of to such outlets through vendors. The term "supply plant" should mean a plant from which milk, skim milk or cream is transferred to a distributing plant.

The term "pool plant" should include all distributing plants and all supply plants which are to be fully subject to regulation under the order and whose receipts of milk from producers will be subject to the pricing and payment provisions of the order. A "pool plant" should be defined to include a distributing plant from which more than 10,000 pounds of fluid milk products are disposed of in the marketing area during the month. The term "pool plant" should also include supply plants from which shipments of milk, skim milk or cream are made to a distributing plant(s) on 15 days or more during any of the months of September through December or during any other month on 7 days or more, as provided by the present order. The present provision should be continued also to exclude from the pool plant definition a supply plant from which no transfers of such products are classified as Class I milk. With the proposed expansion in the marketing area, as heretofore discussed, it is possible that there may be a few plants which would be subject to full regulation under the present definitions of the order even though the sales of milk from such plants in the proposed marketing area are a very minor portion of the total sales in the area. It is not necessary to extend full regulation to the handlers of such milk. This may be accomplished by excluding from full regulation, distributing plants which dispose of 10,000 pounds or less of fluid milk products in the marketing area during the month. In view of the individual handler type pool provided by the order, the 10,000-pound minimum is reasonable in this market.

Provision should be made also for the exclusion under the pool plant definition of supply plants or distributing plants which would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act, if a lesser volume of fluid milk products classified as Class I milk is furnished from such a plant for disposition in the Toledo marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order. Plants which dispose of fluid milk products in more than one marketing area need not be subject to duplicate regulation to accomplish the the declared purpose of the act. It is reasonable and economically sound to regulate a plant under the order regulating the handling of milk for the marketing area where the largest proportion of the plant's Class I milk is disposed of. This should be determined on the basis of disposition during the current month and each of the immediately preceding three months. The addition of the current month to the three preceding months, which were previously recommended, will provide a standard for order status consistent with the corresponding provisions of orders for nearby regulated markets. The longer period also will reduce the possibility of a plant becoming temporarily subject first to one order and then to another as a result of minor monthly variations or seasonal shifts in sales between regulated markets. Under the provision decided upon, a plant which is subject to another Federal order must supply more milk to the Toledo market than to the other order market for four consecutive months before it will become subject to regulation under the Toledo order.

"Handler" should be defined to include any person who operates a distributing plant or a supply plant. By defining the operators of such plants as handlers, such persons will be required to report to the market administrator with respect to such plants at such time and in such manner as the market administrator finds necessary to establish their status as partially or fully regulated plants and to assemble the necessary market information essential to the proper administration of the order. The foregoing plant definitions will include as fully regulated persons and plants the same persons and the same plants as are now regulated by the order.

The present order in some instances refers to plants operated by a nonhandler. A more explicit term for such references is the term "nonpool plant". Definitions also have been included in the order for "fluid milk product" and "Chicago butter price". The addition of these proposed new definitions is not intended to change the intent of the present order but their application will facilitate the drafting of other order provisions.

Definitions of "producer", "producer milk" and "producer-handler" should be modified to incorporate the necessary references to the other new definitions. Producer-handlers and the milk produced by them should be excluded from the producer and producer milk definitions. Under the present order, milk received from a producer-handler is treated the same as other source milk and this may be accomplished by merely excluding a producer-handler from the producer definition.

Milk is sometimes diverted directly from the farm to nonpool plants. The privilege for handlers to divert milk during the months of seasonally high production facilitates the economical disposal of seasonal reserve supplies. In order to distinguish between the milk of producers who may be temporarily diverted and those who are no longer associated with this market, some limitation on the length of time that milk may be diverted and still be considered as producer milk under the order is desirable. It was previously recommended that unlimited diversion be permitted during the months of March through June and limited to not more than one-third of the days of delivery during any of the months of July through February.

It was pointed out in the exceptions that because of the customary method of handling the milk of certain Toledo producers the recommended limitation on diversion would disrupt the normal method of handling this milk without any advantage and possibly to the disadvantage of producers and the market. This milk frequently is moved directly from the farm to a nonpool plant, converted to skim milk and cream and moved to a Toledo distributing plant. The nonpool plant also serves as a supply plant under another order.

Under the individual handler pool in this market, a diversion limitation serves principally as a basis for determining whether the dairy farmer is to be considered as a producer under this order or in the case in point under another order. It is concluded, therefore, that in order for the milk of a producer to be considered as producer milk in the current month of the period July through February under the Toledo order, it must be received at a pool plant on at least four days during such month. As provided by the present order, unlimited diversion should be permitted during the months of March through June. In view of the recommendation to include location adjustments in the order, provision should be made to consider milk which is diverted to have been received at a pool plant at the same location as the plant from which it was diverted for the account of a cooperative or a proprietary handler.

The definition of "other source milk" should be modified to clarify its meaning and to specify in the definition that it includes all milk utilized in the operations at a pool plant except producer milk, fluid milk products received from other pool plants and inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning of the month. Other source milk represents all skim milk and butterfat used in a pool plant which is not subject to the pricing provisions of the order during the month. It will include all fluid milk products from plants other than pool plants and all manufactured dairy products from any source which are repackaged, reprocessed or converted into another product in the pool plant during the month. It will include those manufactured products from a pool plant's own production which are reprocessed or converted into another product during the same or a later month.

Some handlers in the market produce condensed milk, nonfat dry milk and other manufactured milk products. Some of these products are reused in the pool plant where produced or are disposed of to other pool plants. Operators of other pool plants may purchase solids from outside sources. Condensed solids or nonfat dry milk may be used for reconstituting certain fluid milk products or to fortify skim milk drinks. Such solids are required by the health regulations to be made from Grade A milk and should be classified as Class I milk when disposed of in a fluid milk product the same as all other skim milk in Class I milk. There appears to be no reason why one portion of the solids nonfat contained in Class I products should be classified differently from another portion in this market. The pounds of skim milk disposed of in any reconstituted or fortified fluid milk product, therefore, should be accounted for as an amount equal to the nonfat milk solids contained in such product plus the water content normally associated with such solids in the form of whole milk.

To promote uniformity in the cost of milk among handlers and to effectuate the established principle of allocating current receipts of producer milk to Class I utilization to the fullest extent, the skim milk in other source milk in the form of a manufactured product, likewise, must be accounted for on the basis of the nonfat solids plus the water normally associated with such solids in the form of whole milk. This accounting procedure will have no effect on the net classification of other source milk used in Class II milk products.

The change in definition of other source milk and its application to all manufactured products on a milk equivalent basis, whether such products come from milk from producers or from other sources, necessitates providing that shrinkage be determined on the basis of other source milk received in the form of fluid milk products. The two percent limitation on the amount of shrinkage classified as Class II milk should apply only to other source milk received in the form of fluid milk products the same as that applicable to producer milk. Because skim milk and butterfat is accounted for in Class II milk products on a used-to-produce basis, any shrinkage is included in the amount of skim milk and butterfat reported in the manufactured products used for such manufacturing purposes. Furthermore, to allow unlimited shrinkage on other source milk, both in the form of fluid milk and manufactured products, and limit shrinkage on producer milk, would provide a basis for inequality in the cost of milk among handlers who use other source milk and those who do not. Thus, it is reasonable to preclude this possibility of inequality by the use of other source milk. Furthermore, without such provision, producer milk could be assigned inequitably to a lower classification under circumstances where substantial amounts of milk are unaccounted for and the handler has received other source milk.

By incorporating the proposed definition of other source milk together with conforming changes, the order will be more specific with respect to the method of accounting for such milk. Identical accounting procedures will be followed by all handlers whether or not manufactured products (Class II) which are used in the handler's pool plant are converted from producer milk or purchased from outside sources. The skim milk and butterfat used to produce manufactured products are now and should continue to be considered as disposed of when so utilized and therefore not enter into the monthly classification and allocation procedure again, unless such products are repackaged or reused. Records of sales and stocks of such products, however, must be maintained by the handler to facilitate the auditing program of the market administrator and substantiate current usage of such products. Any other source milk, including that derived from manufactured products will continue to be allocated first to the available Class II utilization. The application of the new definition of other source milk in conjunction with other provisions of the order will provide for the allocation of producer milk to Class I in each month to the fullest extent that producer milk is available from current receipts or beginning inventory of fluid milk products.

Because handlers may have inventories of milk and milk products on hand at the beginning and end of each month, such inventories must enter into the accounting procedure for current receipts and utilization of producer milk. Although the order is silent in this respect inventory variations are classified in Class II milk under current practice. Month-end inventories of fluid milk products whether in bulk or packaged form should continue to be classified as Class II milk. Manufactured milk products (Class II) will not be included in inventory accounting because the skim milk and butterfat used for such products are accounted for in the month when such products are manufactured.

Because handlers frequently use other source milk in their operations, the inventory accounting procedure should provide for producer milk from inventory to have prior claim on Class I utilization over receipts of other source milk in the same manner as current receipts of producer milk. Because inventories of fluid milk items are to be accounted for at the end of the month in Class II milk, as a temporary classification, it is necessary, therefore, to provide a method for handling producer milk in inventory which is allocated to Class I milk in the current month but which the handler accounted for in Class II milk at the end of the preceding month. The higher use value of any fluid milk product from beginning inventory of producer milk which is disposed of as Class I milk should be reflected in returns to producers. Such milk should be priced the same as a current receipt of producer milk. These goals may be accomplished, through the accounting procedure, by considering the opening inventory as a receipt in that month and subtracting such receipt, under the allocation procedure, in series, starting with Class II milk, following the subtraction of other source milk and receipts from other pool plants. To the extent that the opening inventory is allocated to Class I milk and there was an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat in producer milk classified in Class II milk in the previous month (after allocating allowable producer milk shrinkage and other source milk), a reclassification charge should be made at the difference between the Class II price in the previous month and the Class I price in the current month. Handled in this manner, milk from inventory will be priced to handlers identically with milk derived from current receipts of producer milk during the month. This method of accounting for inventory will result in equality in the cost per hundredweight of milk among handlers and returns to producers irrespective of whether or not such milk is from opening inventory or is a current receipt.

By incorporating the proposed changes, receipts of milk will fall within four categories as follows:

(1) Producer milk;
(2) Milk from pool plants;
(3) Inventory of fluid milk products; and
(4) Other source milk.

The order should be changed to incorporate references to these categories of milk. The use of these terms will add a desired degree of specificity to the reporting and accounting procedure of the order.

General findings. (a) The marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the marketing agreement and the order, as amended and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest;

(c) The order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which hearings have been held; and

(d) It is hereby found that the necessary expense of the market administrator for the maintenance and functioning of such agency will require the payment by each handler, except a producer-handler, as his pro rata share of such expense, two cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding two cents per hundredweight, as the Secretary may prescribe with respect to butterfat and skim milk contained in (a) receipts of producer milk, (b) other source milk at a pool plant which is allocated to Class I milk, and (c) Class I milk disposed of in the marketing area by a distributing plant, not a pool plant, except a plant at which the milk is subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act.

Order of the Secretary directing the conduct of a referendum; determination of a representative period; and designation of referendum agent. Pursuant to section 8c (19) of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 608c (19)), it is hereby directed that a referendum be conducted among producers (as defined in the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area) who, during the month of January 1957, which month is hereby determined to be the representative period for such referendum, were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area specified in the aforesaid order, to determine whether such producers favor the issuance of the order, as amended, which is filed herewith.

Fred W. Issler is hereby designated agent of the Secretary to conduct such referendum in accordance with the procedure for the conduct of referenda to determine producer approval of milk marketing orders as published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on August 19, 1950 (15 F. R. 5177), such referendum to be completed on or before the 15th day from the date this decision is filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture.

Marketing agreement and order, as amended. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Toledo, Ohio, Marketing Area," and "Order Amending the Order, as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Toledo, Ohio, Marketing Area," which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions. These documents shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders have been met.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of the said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and proposed to be hereby further amended.

This decision filed at Washington, D. C., this 7th day of March 1957.

[SEAL] EARL L. BUTZ,
Assistant Secretary.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, regulating the handling of milk in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(2) The parity prices of milk produced for sale in the said marketing area as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supplies of and demand for such milk, and the minimum prices specified in the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest;

(3) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held; and

(4) It is hereby found that the necessary expense of the market administrator for the maintenance and functioning of such agency will require the payment by each handler, except a producer-handler, as his pro rata share of such expense, two cents per hundredweight, or such amount not exceeding two cents per hundredweight, as the Secretary may prescribe with respect to butterfat and skim milk contained in (a) receipts of producer milk, (b) other source milk at a pool plant which is allocated to Class I milk, and (c) Class I milk disposed of in the marketing area by a distributing plant, not a pool plant, except a plant at which the milk is subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act.

Order relative to handling. (b) Class II milk. Class II milk shall be all skim milk and butterfat accounted for as (1) used to produce a product other than a fluid milk product, (2) inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the end of the month, (3) disposed of for livestock feed, and (4) actual plant shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat allocated to producer milk and other source milk in fluid milk products pursuant to § 930.42 but not in excess of 2 percent of such receipts of skim milk and butterfat, respectively.

(a) Compute the total shrinkage of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, at such plant(s); and

(b) Prorate the resulting amounts between receipts of skim milk and butterfat, respectively, in producer milk and in other source milk received in the form of a fluid milk product.

§ 930.43 Transfers. Skim milk or butterfat disposed of by a handler from a pool plant, shall be classified:

(a) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted in the form of a fluid milk product to the pool plant of another handler except as:

(1) Utilization in Class II milk is claimed by the operators of both plants in their reports submitted pursuant to § 930.30;

(2) The receiving plant has utilization in Class II of an equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat, respectively; and

(3) The classification of the skim milk or butterfat so transferred results in the classification at both plants of the maximum Class I utilization to the producer milk at both plants, if either or both handlers have other source milk during the month;

(b) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted to a nonpool plant in the form of milk, skim milk or cream in bulk to a nonpool plant located less than 250 miles from the City Hall of Toledo, Ohio, by the shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, unless:

(1) The transferring or diverting handler claims classification as Class II milk in his report submitted pursuant to § 930.30 for the month;

(2) The operator of the nonpool plant maintains books and records showing the receipts and utilization of all skim milk and butterfat at such plant which are made available if requested by the market administrator for the purpose of verification of such mutually indicated utilization; and

(3) An equivalent amount of skim milk and butterfat was used in products in Class II milk at such non-pool plant.

(c) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted in bulk in the form of milk or skim milk or cream to a nonpool plant located 250 miles or more from the City Hall at Toledo, Ohio, by shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator.

(d) For the purposes of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, skim milk and butterfat shall not be deemed to have been "disposed of" to a nonpool plant if merely retained in or transferred between trucks or other vehicles which enter the premises or come within the orbit of such plant in the course of movement elsewhere.

§ 930.44 Responsibility of handlers and reclassification of milk. (a) All skim milk and butterfat shall be Class I milk unless the handler who first receives such skim milk or butterfat proves to the market administrator that such skim milk or butterfat should be classified otherwise;

(b) Any skim milk or butterfat shall be reclassified if verification by the market administrator discloses that the original classification was incorrect.

§ 930.45 Computation of the skim milk and butterfat in each class. For each month, the market administrator shall correct for mathematical and for other obvious errors the reports of receipts and utilization for the pool plant(s) of each handler and shall compute the pounds of butterfat and skim milk in Class I milk and Class II milk for such handler: Provided, That if any of the water contained in the milk from which a product is made is removed before the product is utilized or disposed of by a handler, the pounds of skim milk disposed of in such product shall be considered to be an amount equivalent to the nonfat milk solids contained in such product, plus all of the water normally associated with such solids in the form of whole milk.

§ 930.46 Allocation of skim milk and butterfat classified. After making the computations pursuant to § 930.45, the market administrator shall determine the classification of producer milk received at the pool plant(s) of each handler each month as follows:

(a) Skim milk shall be allocated in the following manner:

(1) Subtract from the total pounds of skim milk in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk assigned to producer milk pursuant to § 930.41 (b) (4);

(2) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class, in series beginning with Class II milk, the pounds of skim milk in other source milk;

(3) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class the skim milk in fluid milk products received from the pool plants of other handlers according to the classification of such products as determined pursuant to § 930.43 (a);

(4) Subtract from the remaining pounds of skim milk in each class, in series beginning with Class II milk, the pounds of skim milk in inventory of fluid milk products on hand at the beginning of the month;

(5) Add to the pounds of skim milk remaining in Class II milk the pounds of skim milk subtracted pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph and if the remaining pounds of skim milk in both classes exceed the pounds of skim milk contained in producer milk, subtract such excess from the remaining pounds of skim milk in series beginning with Class II.

(b) Butterfat shall be allocated in accordance with the same procedure prescribed for skim milk in paragraph (a) of this section.

(c) Determine the weighted average butterfat content of producer milk remaining in each class computed pursuant to paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

MINIMUM PRICES

§ 930.50 Class prices. Subject to the provisions of §§ 930.52 and 930.53, each handler shall pay not less than the following prices per hundredweight, on the basis of 3.5 percent butterfat content, for producer milk received at his pool plant during the month:

(a) Class I milk price. (1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, add to the basic formula price the following amount for the delivery period indicated:

Delivery period:	Amount
April, May, and June	$1.00
February, March, and July	1.25
All others	1.65

(2) The price for Class I milk shall be the amount computed pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph plus or minus a "supply-demand adjustment" computed pursuant to subdivisions (i), (ii), and (iii) of this subparagraph: Provided, That the price shall not be adjusted by the supply-demand adjustment factor until the utilization percentage computed pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph is equal to or exceeds the standard utilization percentage pursuant to subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph for each of three successive months:

(i) Divide the total receipts of producer milk during the first and second months preceding by the total gross volume of Class I milk (less interhandler transfers) during the same two months, multiply the result by 100, and round to the nearest whole number. The result shall be known as the "utilization percentage".

(ii) Compute a "deviation percentage" by subtracting from the utilization percentage as computed in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the "standard utilization percentage" shown in this subdivision:

Month for which the price is being computed:	Standard utilization percentage
January	115
February	123
March	129
April	130
May	130
June	137
July	138
August	127
September	116
October	109
November	106
December	108

(iii) Determine the amount of the supply-demand adjustment from the following schedule:

If deviation percentage is:	Supply-demand adjustment is: (cents)
+16 or over	−50
+13 or +14	−40
+10 or +11	−30
+7 or +8	−20
+4 or +5	−10
+2 or −2	0
−4 or −5	+10
−7 or −8	+20
−10 or −11	+30
−13 or −14	+40
−16 or under	+50

When the deviation percentage does not fall within the tabulated brackets the adjustment shall be determined by the adjacent bracket which is the same as or nearest to the bracket used in the previous month.

(b) Class II milk price. The Class II milk price shall be (1) during the months of July through February, the highest of the prices per hundredweight computed pursuant to § 930.51 or subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for the month and (2) during the months of March through June, the average (computed to the nearest tenth of a cent) of the basic or field prices per hundredweight for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following locations for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department on or before the 5th day after the end of the month by the companies listed below:

(a) The average of the basic (or field) prices reported to have been paid or to be paid per hundredweight for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received from farmers during the month at the following plants or places for which prices have been reported to the market administrator or to the Department on or before the 5th day after the end of the month by the companies indicated below:

(b) The price per hundredweight computed as follows:

(1) Multiply by 8.53 the average of the daily prices per pound of cheese at Wisconsin primary markets ("Cheddars," f. o. b. Wisconsin assembling points, cars or truckloads) as reported by the Department during the month;

(2) Add 0.902 times the Chicago butter price; and

(3) Subtract 34.3 cents.

(c) The price her hundredweight computed by adding together the plus values pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph:

(1) From the Chicago butter price subtract three cents, and multiply by 4.2; and

(2) From the arithmetical average of the carlot prices per pound for nonfat dry milk (not including that specifically designated animal feed), spray and rolled process, f. o. b. manufacturing plants in the Chicago area, as published by the Department during the month, deduct 5.5 cents, and multiply by 8.2, except that if such agency does not publish such prices f. o. b. manufacturing plants, there shall be used for the purpose of this computation the arithmetical average of the carlot prices thereof delivered at Chicago, Illinois, as published weekly by such agency during the month; and in the latter event the figure "7.5" shall be substituted for "5.5" in the above formula.

§ 930.52 Butterfat differentials to handlers. If the weighted average butterfat test of producer milk which is classified, respectively, in any class of utilization, pursuant to § 930.46, is more or less than 3.5 percent, there shall be added to, or subtracted from, as the case may be, the price for such class of utilization, for each one-tenth of one percent that such weighted average butterfat test is above or below, respectively, 3.5 percent, a butterfat differential (computed to the nearest tenth of a cent), calculated for each class of utilization as follows:

(a) Class I milk. Multiply the Chicago butter price by 0.125;

(b) Class II milk. Multiply the Chicago butter price by 0.120.

§ 930.53 Location differentials to handlers. For that milk which is received from producers at a pool plant located 60 miles or more from the City Hall, Toledo, Ohio, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, and which is transferred to a distributing plant which is a pool plant in the form of a fluid milk product and assigned to Class I pursuant to the proviso of this section, or otherwise classified as Class I milk, the price specified in § 930.50 (a) shall be reduced at the rate set forth in the following schedule according to the location of the pool plant where such milk is received from producers:

Distance from the Toledo City Hall (miles):	Rate per hundredweight (cents)
60 but less than 75	15
75 but less than 90	17
For each additional 15 miles or fraction thereof an additional	2.0

Provided, That for the purpose of calculating such location differentials, fluid milk products which are transferred between pool plants shall be assigned to Class I milk to the extent that the gross Class I uitlization at the transferee plant exceeds 95 percent of the receipts of producer milk at such plant, such assignment to transferor plants to be made first to plants at which no location adjustment is applicable and then in sequence according to the location differential applicable at each plant beginning with the plant having the smallest differential.

§ 930.54 Use of equivalent prices. If for any reason a price quotation required by this order for computing class prices or for other purposes is not available in the manner described, the market administrator shall use a price determined by the Secretary to be equivalent to the price which is required.

HANDLER'S OBLIGATION AND UNIFORM PRICE

§ 930.60 Computation of net obligation for each handler. The value of producer milk received during each month by each handler shall be a sum of money computed by the market administrator as follows:

(a) Multiply the pounds of producer milk in each class by the applicable class prices and add together the resulting amounts;

(b) Add an amount computed by multiplying the overage deducted from each class pursuant to § 930.46 (a) (5) and the corresponding step of (b) by the applicable class price;

(c) Add the amount obtained in multiplying the difference between the Class II price for the preceding month and the Class I price for the current month by the hundredweight of producer milk classified in Class II less shrinkage during the preceding month, or the hundredweight of milk subtracted from Class I pursuant to § 930.46 (a) (4) and the corresponding step of (b), whichever is less;

(d) Adjust the resulting amount by the sum of money used in adjusting the uniform price for the previous month to the nearest cent, pursuant to § 930.61 (d); and

(e) Add or subtract, as the case may be, the amount necessary to correct errors in classification for previous delivery periods as disclosed by audit of the market administrator.

§ 930.61 Computation of uniform price. For each month, the market administrator shall compute for each handler a "uniform price" per hundredweight, on the basis of 3.5 percent butterfat content, for producer milk received by such handler as follows:

(a) From the value of milk computed for such handler pursuant to § 930.60, deduct, if the weighted average butterfat test of all producer milk received by him is greater than 3.5 percent, or add, if the weighted average butterfat test of such milk is less than 3.5 percent, an amount computed by multiplying the total pounds of butterfat represented by the variance of such weighted average butterfat test from 3.5 percent by the butterfat differential computed pursuant to § 930.72 and multiply by 10;

(b) Add an amount equal to the total location adjustments to be made pursuant to § 930.73;

(c) Divide the resulting value by the total hundredweight of producer milk received by such handler;

(d) The resulting figure, rounded to the nearest cent, shall be known as the uniform price for such handler for milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content at a pool plant, located less than 60 miles from the City Hall of Toledo, Ohio.

§ 930.62 Notification. On or before the 12th day after the end of each month, the market administrator shall mail to each handler, at his last known address, a statement showing:

(a) The amount and value of his producer milk in each class;

(b) The uniform price for such handler pursuant to § 930.61 and the butterfat differentials computed pursuant to § 930.72; and

(c) The totals of the amounts to be paid by such handler pursuant to §§ 930.74 and 930.75.

PAYMENTS

§ 930.70 Time and method of final payment. (a) On or before the 15th day after the end of each month, each handler shall pay each producer for milk received from him during such month, an amount computed at not less than such handler's uniform price per hundredweight pursuant to § 930.61, subject to the butterfat differential computed pursuant to § 930.72 plus or minus adjustments for errors made in previous payments to such producer; and less (1) payment made pursuant to § 930.71, (2) location differential deductions pursuant to § 930.73, (3) marketing service deductions pursuant to § 930.75 and (4) proper deductions authorized by such producer.

§ 930.71 Partial payments. On or before the last day of each month each handler shall pay each producer for milk received from him during the first fifteen days of each month at a rate computed as follows: Provided, That in the event a producer discontinues shipping to the market during the month, such partial payments shall not be made and full payment for all milk received from such producer during the month shall be made pursuant to the provisions of § 930.70

(a) Deduct 75 cents from the uniform price for the preceding month for such handler which is applicable at the pool plant where milk is received from such producer.

(b) Add or subtract any amount by which the Class I price differential for the current month is greater than or less than, respectively, the differential for the preceding month.

(c) Round off the result to the nearest multiple of 10 cents.

§ 930.72 Producer butterfat differential. In making payments pursuant to § 930.70 the uniform price for each handler shall be adjusted for each one-tenth of one percent of butterfat content in the milk of each producer above or below 3.5 percent, as the case may be, by a butterfat differential computed as follows: Multiply the Chicago butter price by 0.12 and round to the nearest one-half cent.

§ 930.73 Location differentials to producers. In making payment pursuant to § 930.70 the uniform price pursuant to § 930.61 to be paid for milk which is received from producers at a pool plant located 60 miles or more from the City Hall, Toledo, Ohio, by the shortest hard-surfaced highway distance, as determined by the market administrator, shall be reduced at the rate set forth in the following schedule according to the location of the pool plant where such milk is received from producers:

75 but less than 90	17.0
For each additional 15 miles or fraction thereof an additional	2.0

§ 930.74 Expense of administration. As his pro rata share of expense incurred pursuant to § 930.22 (d), each handler, except a producer-handler, shall pay the market administrator, on or before the 15th day after the end of each month, 2 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe with respect to receipts during the month of (a) producer milk, (b) other source milk at a pool plant, allocated to Class I milk pursuant to § 930.46 and (c) Class I milk disposed of in the marketing area by a distributing plant, not a pool plant.

§ 930.75 Deductions for marketing services. (a) Except as set forth in paragraph (b) of this section each handler, in making payments to producers pursuant to § 930.70, with respect to all milk received from each producer (except milk of such handler's own production) at a plant not operated by a cooperative association of which such producer is a member, shall deduct 6 cents per hundredweight, or such lesser amount as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe; and on or before the 15th day after the end of such month, shall pay such deductions to the market administrator. Such moneys shall be expended by the market administrator to verify weights, samples, and tests of milk of such producers and to provide such producers with market information, such services to be performed by the market administrator, or by an agent engaged by and responsible to him.

(b) Each association of producers which is actually performing the services described in paragraph (a) of this section, as determined by the market administrator, may file with a handler a claim for authorized deductions from the payments otherwise due to its producer-members for milk delivered to such handler. In making payments to producers for milk received during the month, each handler shall make deductions in accordance with the association's claim and shall pay the amount deducted, to the association, within 15 days after the end of the month. Such claim shall contain a list of the producers for which such deductions apply, an agreement to indemnify the handler in the making of the deductions, and a certification that the association has an unterminated membership contract with each producer authorizing the claimed deduction.

§ 930.76 Reports to cooperatives. Upon request the market administrator is authorized to report to any cooperative association qualifying under § 930.75 (b) for each month the amount of butterfat shortage or overage in member milk found in any handler's plant, as revealed by the records of the market administrator. For the purpose of this report, the butterfat shortage or overage on member milk shall be determined as the percentage of total butterfat shortage or overage which total receipts of butterfat in member milk is of the total receipts of butterfat in the plant.

§ 930.77 Errors in payments. Whenever audit by the market administrator of any handler's reports, books, records, or accounts disclose errors resulting in moneys due (a) the market administrator or cooperative associations from such handler, or such handler from the market administrator or cooperative associations pursuant to §§ 930.74 or 930.75, or (b) any producer or cooperative association from such handler pursuant to § 930.70, the market administrator shall promptly notify such handler of any such amount due; and said payment thereof shall be made on or before the next date for making payment set forth in the provision under which such error occurred, following the 5th day after such notice.

APPLICATION OF PROVISIONS

§ 930.80 Plants subject to other Federal orders. The provisions of this part shall not apply to a distributing plant or a supply plant during any month in which the milk at such plant would be subject to the classification and pricing provisions of another order issued pursuant to the act unless such plant qualified as a pool plant pursuant to § 930.9 and a greater volume of fluid milk products is disposed of from such plant to retail or wholesale outlets and to pool plants in the Toledo, Ohio, marketing area than in the marketing area regulated pursuant to such other order during the current and each of the three months, immediately proceeding: Provided, That the operator of a distributing plant or a supply plant which is exempted from the provisions of this order pursuant to this section shall, with respect to the total receipts and utilization or disposition of skim milk and butterfat at the plant, make reports to the market administrator at such time and in such manner as the market administrator may require and allow verification of such reports by the market administrator.

§ 930.81 Producer-handlers. Sections 930.50, 930.60, 930.70, 930.74, 930.75, and 930.77 shall not apply to the milk of a producer-handler.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 930.90 Termination of obligations. (a) The obligations of any handler to pay money required to be paid under the terms of this part shall, except as provided in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section, terminate two years after the last day of the month during which the market administrator receives the handler's report of utilization of the milk involved in such obligation, unless within such two-year period the market administrator notifies the handler in writing that such money is due and payable. Service of such notice shall be complete upon mailing to the handler's last known address, and it shall contain, but need not be limited to, the following information:

(1) The amount of the obligation;

(2) The month(s) during which the milk, with respect to which the obligation exists, was received or handled; and

(3) If the obligation is payable to one or more producers or to a cooperative association, the name of such producers or association, or, if the obligation is payable to the market administrator, the account for which it is to be paid.

(b) If a handler fails or refuses, with respect to any obligation under this part, to make available to the market administrator or his representatives all books or records required by this part to be made available, the market administrator may, within the two-year period provided for in paragraph (a) of this section, notify the handler in writing of such failure or refusal. If the market administrator so notifies a handler, the said two-year period with respect to such obligation shall not begin to run until the first day of the month following the month during which such books and records pertaining to such obligation are made available to the market administrator or his representative.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a handler's obligation under this part to pay money shall not be terminated with respect to any transaction involving fraud or wilful concealment of a fact, material to the obligation, on the part of the handler against whom the obligation is sought to be imposed.

(d) Any obligation on the part of the market administrator to pay a handler any money which such handler claims to be due him under the terms of this part shall terminate two years after the end of the month during which the milk involved in the claim was received if an underpayment is claimed, or two years after the end of the month during which the payment (including deduction or setoff by the market administrator) was made by the handler if a refund on such payment is claimed, unless such handler, within the applicable period of time, files, pursuant to section 8c (15) (A) of the act, a petition claiming such money.

§ 930.91 Effective time. The provisions of this part, or of any amendment to this part, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until suspended or terminated.

§ 930.92 When suspended or terminated. The Secretary shall, whenever he finds that this part, or any provision thereof, obstructs or does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, terminate or suspend the operation of this part or any such provision thereof.

§ 930.93 Continuing obligations. If, upon the suspension or termination of any or all provisions of this part, there are any obligations thereunder the final accrual or ascertainment of which requires further acts by any person (including the market administrator), such further acts shall be performed notwithstanding such suspension or termination.

§ 930.94 Liquidation. Upon the suspension of the provisions of this part, except this section, the market administrator, or such other liquidating agent as the Secretary may designate, shall, if so directed by the Secretary, liquidate the business of the market administrator's office, dispose of all property in his possession or control, including accounts receivable and execute and deliver all assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to effectuate any such disposition. If a liquidating agent is so designated, all assets, books, and records of the market administrator shall be transferred promptly to such liquidating agent. If, upon such liquidation, the funds on hand exceed the amounts required to pay outstanding obligations of the office of the market administrator and to pay necessary expenses of liquidation and distribution, such excess shall be distributed to contributing handlers and producers in an equitable manner.

§ 930.95 Agents. The Secretary may, by designation in writing, name any officer or employee of the United States to act as his agent or representative in connection with any of the provisions of this part.

§ 930.96 Separability of provisions. If any provision of this part, or its application to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the application of such provision, and of the remaining provisions of this part, to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

[Draft Release No. 57-3]

DAILY MECHANICAL REPORTS AND MECHANICAL INTERRUPTION SUMMARY REPORTS

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Pursuant to authority delegated by the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Bureau of Safety, notice is hereby given that the Bureau will propose to the Board the adoption of amendments to Parts 40, 41, and 42 of the Civil Air Regulations as hereinafter set forth.

Interested persons may participate in the making of the proposed rules by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted in duplicate to the Civil Aeronautics Board, attention Bureau of Safety, Washington 25, D. C. In order to insure their consideration by the Board before taking further action on the proposed rules, communications must be received by May 10, 1957. Copies of such communications will be available after May 14, 1957, for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section of the Board, Room 5412, Department of Commerce Building, Washington, D. C.

Currently effective § 40.509 of Part 40 of the Civil Air Regulations requires operators to submit to the Administrator a detailed report known as a Mechanical Interruption Summary (MIS) Report which in substance contains:

(a) All flight interruptions resulting from known or suspected mechanical difficulties or malfunctions;

(b) The number of engines prematurely removed because of mechanical trouble; and

(c) The number of propeller featherings in flight.

Section 40.508 requires operators to submit daily another report known as a Daily Mechanical Report (DMR) which contains information concerning each failure, malfunctioning, or other defect, regardless of where detected, which may reasonably be expected by the air carrier to cause a serious hazard in the operation of an airplane.

At a joint airline-Government meeting dealing with maintenance questions, it was agreed that that portion of the mechanical interruption summary report required by paragraph (a) of § 40.509 is no longer valuable as a safety evaluation report and, therefore, should be eliminated as a requirement. It was agreed, however, that the information required under paragraphs (b) and (c) of § 40.509 is useful and should be retained. As a result of the aforementioned meeting, the Air Transport Association has requested the deletion of the requirement for submitting mechanical interruption summary reports.

As a result of the review given this request, however, it appears desirable to re-evaluate the reporting requirements of both §§ 40.508 and 40.509 with the view toward eliminating all unnecessary reporting requirements and to consolidate and make more specific those reporting requirements which the Board believes are necessary. Analysis of the provisions in these two sections reveals that the reporting of many mechanical failures and malfunctions detected and corrected on the ground, including premature engine removals, serves little useful purpose since these incidents, once corrected, cannot contribute to future inflight hazards; nor does the knowledge of these incidents contribute substantially to the prevention of future hazards. There are, however, some significant exceptions to this general situation:

(a) Failures, malfunctions, and defects which may have caused or may be reasonably expected to cause fire, significant loss of control or structural strength, or other hazardous conditions; and

(b) Failures the knowledge of which would impel inspection of the carrier's fleet and serve to alert other carriers of unsatisfactory conditions. Items in group (b) above may be in addition to those in group (a).

A study of the DMR's submitted in compliance with § 40.508 showed results similar to those found for the MIS Reports. In the first three months of 1954, for example, a total of more than 350 items was reported by all operators. Of these only 201 or about 57 percent were directly related to flight or ground incidents of a nature the knowledge of which would be useful in the prevention of future inflight incidents or hazards. Furthermore, of this 57 percent, only a fraction of the incidents reported were of the "alert" type which would justify publication in the "Summary of Daily Mechanical Reports." A typical example is the report of an engine feathering because of a rise in oil temperature or a drop in oil pressure from a cause as yet undetermined. While such incidents should be reported, for reasons discussed hereinafter, they have no "alert" value which would enable other operators to take action to prevent the repetition of such incidents in their own equipment.

From the foregoing, it is seen that many man-hours are spent under the present reporting system, both by industry and government, in the processing and study of nonessential information.

On the other hand there are some items directly related to flight safety which are not uniformly reported. Examples of these are:

(a) Propeller feathering in flight. Each propeller feathering in flight results in a lowering of the level of safety for the duration of the time the engine is inoperative and is a positive indication of a "failure" of greater or lesser degree. The propeller feathering frequency is an excellent index of the degree to which powerplant reliability has been achieved.

(b) Failure to feather. Each case of inability to feather a propeller results in a lowering of the level of safety for the remainder of the flight whether the engine is shut down with the propeller windmilling or power is used. The high drag of a windmilling propeller reduces the performance available in the event the engine is shut down and if power is used on a crippled engine the probability of serious powerplant damage and of fire is enhanced.

In reassessing the provisions of the Civil Air Regulations which deal with daily mechanical reports and mechanical interruption summary reports, consideration was given to the objectives sought in the reporting of the conditions and incidents required in these provisions.

The foremost objective of a reporting system is to warn industry and government of incidents of an "alert" type which may be common to aircraft, systems, or components of the same or similar type. Any failure or malfunction falls into this category when it results in a hazardous condition, or when good maintenance practice dictates the inspection of the fleet to prevent the occurrence of similar incidents in other equipment. Such reporting serves accident prevention in two ways: First, the knowledge of these incidents prompts other operators to take action for the prevention of similar incidents in their own equipment. Second, the statistical record of all such incidents and the related information provide the manufacturer with knowledge which will allow the source of such incidents to be "designed out" of new structures, systems, and components.

A second objective of a reporting system is the determination of the frequency of flight incidents arising from mechanical deficiencies, a knowledge of which would serve to give warning of unsafe operating conditions prior to the occurrence of hazards or accidents.

The final objective is to confine the nature of items to be reported to those directly related to the safety of operations and the number of items within practicable limitations so that complete, accurate, and uniform reporting is assured throughout the industry.

The proposed amendment would rescind § 40.509 in its entirety; however, certain provisions now included in that section would be incorporated into § 40.508. These provisions relate to the reporting of propeller featherings and of "flight terminations"—"flight terminations" meaning those incidents arising from mechanical difficulties which result in accelerate-stops, go-arounds after take-off, and unscheduled and emergency landings.

It is anticipated that this proposal will substantially reduce the number of items required to be reported under currently effective §§ 40.508 and 40.509. For example, the reporting of certain premature engine removals would no longer be required, and the number of failures and malfunctions detected and corrected on the ground which must be reported would be reduced. In addition it is anticipated that there would be a considerable reduction in the number of items published in the DMR summary since many items presently published on a daily basis would either not be reported at all, or would be reported on a semi-monthly basis. Furthermore, in order to insure the highest possible degree of conformity in reporting, the proposed amendment contains more definitive standards to be used by the air carriers in determining when, and in what manner, a particular condition must be reported. This is in contrast to the currently effective § 40.508 which leaves entirely to the air carriers the determination of which mechanical difficulties need be reported.

Since maintenance reporting objectives contemplated for scheduled air carrier operations conducted outside the continental limits of the United States and for all irregular air carrier operations are similar to those proposed herein for scheduled interstate operations, it is proposed to make similar changes in Parts 41 and 42 to reflect the substance of the changes herein.

In view of the foregoing, notice is hereby given that it is proposed to recommend to the Board that Part 40 of the Civil Air Regulations be amended as follows:

1. By deleting § 40.509 in its entirety.

2. By amending § 40.508 to read as follows:

§ 40.508 Mechanical reports. (a) The air carrier shall report to the Administrator the first of each type of failure, malfunctioning, or other defect detected in flight or on the ground in an aircraft or component which has caused, or which may be reasonably expected to cause, a fire, a significant loss of control or structural strength, or other hazardous condition, whether or not a similar occurrence has previously been reported by another air carrier. In addition, the air carrier shall report the initiation of a fleet campaign to correct a safety hazard. These reports shall include the information required by paragraph (d) of this section. These reports shall cover a 24-hour period of operation beginning and ending at midnight, and shall be submitted not later than noon of the following working day, or sooner if the seriousness of the incident warrants.

(b) The recurrence of a type of failure, malfunctioning, or other defect previously reported by the air carrier in compliance with paragraph (a) of this section shall be reported semi-monthly to the Administrator not later than the 10th day after the reporting period in which it was detected.

(c) All failures, malfunctionings, or other defects, detected on the runway after the take-off run has started, while airborne, and on the runway prior to termination of the landing run, not reported in compliance with paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, shall be reported semi-monthly to the Administrator not later than the 10th day after the reporting period in which they were detected. Reports shall include all the information required by paragraph (d) (1) of this section, and, in addition, information concerning the flight regime in which the incident occurred. Incidents which shall be reported in showing compliance with this paragraph shall include, but not be limited to, the following:

(1) Propeller featherings, including automatic, manual, and precautionary featherings; or, in the case of jet-propelled aircraft, engine shutdown or stoppage. Propeller featherings or engine shutdown or stoppage for demonstration or check purposes need not be reported;

(2) Failures of the propeller to feather:

(3) Fire warnings;

(4) Incidents, arising from actual or suspected mechanical difficulties, which result in accelerate-stops, go-arounds after take-off, and unscheduled and emergency landings.

(d) (1) The reports required by paragraphs (a) (b), and (c) of this section shall include the following information:

(i) Type and CAA identification of the aircraft and engine, name or air carrier, and date;

(ii) Nature of incident; e. g., fire, structural failure;

(iii) Procedures effected; e. g., accelerate-stop, go-around after take-off, unscheduled or emergency landing, fuel dumping, use of fire extinguisher;

(iv) Apparent cause of difficulty; e. g., mechanical failure, design deficiency, personnel error;

(v) Corrective action, where appropriate; and

(vi) Brief narrative summary to supply any other pertinent data required for clarification or determination of seriousness.

(2) The reports required by paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section shall include the following information in addition to that prescribed in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph:

(i) Identification of the part and system involved including the type designation, the total service time, the time since overhaul, and the time since inspection of the component involved, as appropriate; and

(ii) Disposition or corrective action; e. g., repaired, replaced, airplane grounded, fleet campaigned.

(3) A report shall not be withheld pending accumulation of all the information specified in this section. When additional information is obtained relative to such incident, it shall be expeditiously submitted as a supplement to the original report, reference being made to the date and place of the first report.

These amendments are proposed under the authority of Title VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act as amended. The proposal may be changed in the light of comments received in response to this notice of proposed rule making.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket Nos. G-5293, G-9781]

V. F. NEUHAUS ET AL.[1]

NOTICE OF APPLICATIONS AND DATE OF HEARING

March 7, 1957.

Take notice that V. F. Neuhaus (Operator) et al. (Applicant), whose address is First State Bank Building, Mission, Texas, filed an application on November 22, 1954, as amended May 10, 1956, in Docket No. G-5293, pursuant to section 7 of the Natural Gas Act, for permission and approval to abandon service as hereinafter described, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, all as more fully represented in the application which is on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant seeks to abandon the sale of natural gas in interstate commerce, from production in the Vincente Saenz 624 acre unit located in the North Rincon Field, Starr County, Texas, to Sun Oil Company (Sun) for resale.

On December 15, 1955, Applicant filed in Docket No. G-9781 an application for a certificate of public convenience and necessity pursuant to section 7 (c) of the Natural Gas Act, for authority to render the service, proposed to be abandoned in Docket No. G-5293, to Tennessee Gas Transmission Company (Tennessee) for transportation in interstate commerce for resale.

Applicant states that pending negotiation of a long term contract with Tennessee, Sun has been delivering limited quantities of gas purchased from Applicant on a day-to-day basis to Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corporation (Transco) at the outlet of Sun's Starr County Plant in Texas. Applicant further states, that the cessation of delivery of the gas produced from the Vicente Saenz Unit to Transco, by Sun, will in no way affect Sun's ability to meet its current obligations to Transco. In addition, Applicant states that the granting of the abandonment application herein would make available to the ultimate consumers additional quantities of gas. In this connection, Applicant states that deliveries of its gas to Tennessee are es-

[Docket No. G-12158]

J. RAY MCDERMOTT & CO., INC.

ORDER SUSPENDING PROPOSED CHANGE IN RATES

MARCH 7, 1957.

J. Ray McDermott & Company, Inc., (McDermott), on February 5, 1957, tendered for filing a proposed change in its presently effective rate schedule for sales of natural gas subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. The proposed change, which constitutes an increased rate, is contained in the following designated filing which is proposed to become effective on the date shown:

Description: Notice of Change dated February 1, 1957.

Purchaser: Texas Gas Transmission Corporation.

Rate schedule designation: Supplement No. 3 to McDermott's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 3.

Proposed effective date:[1] March 8, 1957.

McDermott's proposed rate change is based on favored-nations clauses in its contract with Texas Gas Transmission Corporation in the Maxie Field, Acadia Parish, Louisiana, which, by its terms, has become operative by the rates for initial service to Texas Gas in the South Bell City Field, one such rate being that under Gulf Refining Company FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 24.

McDermott, in support of the increase, states that provisions establishing the increased rate, as well as all other provisions in the contract, were arrived at by arm's-length bargaining, and that such increased rate is fair, just and reasonable. Applicant further submits that the long-term contract resulted from the pricing provisions therein, and to deny the increased rate would be to discriminate against seller.

The increased rate and charge so proposed has not been shown to be justified, and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of the said proposed change, and that the above-designated supplement be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter ordered.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in sections 4 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's general rules and regulations (18 CFR Chapter I), a public hearing be held upon a date to be fixed by notice from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of the proposed increased rate and charge, and, pending such hearing and decision thereon, said supplement be and it is hereby suspended and the use thereof deferred until August 8, 1957, and until such further time as it is made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(B) Neither the supplement hereby suspended, nor the rate schedule sought to be altered thereby, shall be changed until this proceeding has been disposed of or until the period of suspension has expired, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(C) Interested state commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)).

By the Commission.

ATLANTIC REFINING CO.

ORDER SUSPENDING PROPOSED CHANGES IN RATES

MARCH 7, 1957.

The Atlantic Refining Company (Atlantic) on February 6, 1957, tendered for filing several proposed changes in its presently effective rate schedules for sales of natural gas subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. The proposed changes, which constitute increased rates and charges, are contained in the following designated filings:

Description: Contract dated October 5, 1956; Supplemental Agreement dated October 31, 1952; Letter dated November 24, 1952; Supplemental Agreement dated July 17, 1953.

Purchaser: United Fuel Gas Company.

Rate schedule designations: Atlantic's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 166; Supplement No. 1 to Atlantic's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 166; Supplement No. 2 to Atlantic's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 166; Supplement No. 3 to Atlantic's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 166.

Effective date:[1] March 8, 1957.

The increased rates and charges so proposed have not been shown to be justified, and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest, and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act, that the Commission enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of the said proposed increased rates and charges, and that the above-designated supplements be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter ordered.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in sections 4 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's general rules and regulations thereunder (18 CFR Chapter I), a public hearing be held upon a date to be fixed by notice from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of said proposed increased rates and charges; and, pending such hearing and decision thereon, the above-designated supplements be and they are each hereby suspended, and the use thereof deferred until April 1, 1957, and until such further time as they are made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(B) Neither the supplements hereby suspended, nor the rate schedules sought to be altered thereby shall be changed until this proceeding has been disposed of or until the periods of suspension have expired, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(C) Interested State commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)).

[File No. 70-3553]

GENERAL PUBLIC UTILITIES CORP.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION AND PERMITTING DECLARATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE REGARDING ISSUE AND SALE OF ADDITIONAL SHARES OF COMMON STOCK PURSUANT TO RIGHTS OFFERING AND RETIREMENT OF BANK LOAN NOTES

MARCH 7, 1957.

General Public Utilities Corporation ("GPU"), a registered holding company, having filed an application-declaration and amendments thereto, pursuant to sections 6 (a), 7, and 12 (c) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), and Rule U-50 promulgated thereunder, regarding the following transactions:

GPU proposes to offer to the holders of its outstanding common stock of record March 8, 1957 rights to subscribe for additional shares of GPU common stock at the rate of one additional share of common stock for each fifteen shares of GPU common stock held of record, at a price which will be not more than the closing price on the New York Stock Exchange on the day prior to the record date and not less than 85 percent thereof. The subscription period will expire approximately 18 days after the final date of the mailing of the subscription warrants.

In lieu of issuing rights to record holders of less than fifteen shares, GPU will purchase such rights for cash and remit such cash to said record holders. In addition, GPU will, upon request of initial record holders of warrants, purchase such number of the rights represented thereby as such holders do not desire to exercise. Holders of rights in excess of fifteen but not exactly divisible by fifteen may, upon subscribing for the maximum number of whole shares covered by such rights, subscribe for one additional share without furnishing additional rights, subject to availability to GPU of such additional shares. If additional shares are not available GPU will purchase the excess rights. During the subscription period, and for not more than thirty business days thereafter, stockholders and warrant holders will have the privilege of purchasing from GPU unsubscribed shares to the extent such shares are available for such purpose, at the prevailing market price but not less than the subscription price.

The rights offering will not be underwritten, but GPU will utilize the services of security dealers to solicit the exercise by initial record holders of rights, and to participate in the disposition of shares, if any, not subscribed or otherwise disposed of by GPU under the terms of the rights offering. The price or prices at which such sale of unsubscribed shares will be effected through security dealers will be fixed by GPU at not higher than prevailing market prices plus 30 cents per share, and not less than the subscription price. GPU will pay to participating security dealers a fee not less than 30 cents nor more than 40 cents per share, for (i) successful solicitation of the exercise of warrants by the initial holders thereof, or (ii) for obtaining purchases of unsubscribed stock by initial warrant holders; and a fee, not less than 40 cents nor more than 55 cents per share, in connection with sales through such dealers, of stock not subscribed for or purchased by initial warrant holders.

In connection with the rights offering GPU may effect stabilization transactions in its common stock or rights, but at no time will GPU acquire a net long position exceeding 64,685 shares.

The net proceeds realized by GPU from the sale of the additional common stock will be applied (a) to repay GPU's outstanding bank loans and (b) to the making of additional investments in GPU's domestic subsidiary companies, or to the reimbursement of GPU's treasury for such investments theretofore made, and for other corporate purposes.

GPU requests that the Commission grant an exemption from the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50 to the extent such rule may be applicable to the sale of unsubscribed shares.

No. State or Federal regulatory body, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

The fees and expenses (other than security dealers' fees mentioned above) to be incurred by GPU in connection with the proposed transactions are estimated at an aggregate of $190,000, including counsel fees—$15,000; depository agent's fees and expenses—$35,000; clearing agent's fees and expenses—$7,000; accountant's fees—$7,000; and registrar's fees—$1,500.

Due notice of the filing of the application-declaration having been given (Holding Company Act Release No. 13389, February 20, 1957), in the manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated under the act, and no hearing having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and

The Commission finding in respect of the application-declaration, as amended, that the applicable provisions of the act and the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, observing no basis for adverse findings or the imposition of terms or conditions, it appearing that the fees and expenses to be incurred in connection with the proposed transactions are not unreasonable if they do not exceed the estimates hereinabove stated, and the Commission deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers to grant the application and permit the declaration, as amended, to become effective, forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that the application-declaration, as amended, be, and it hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective, forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

It is further ordered, That the request of GPU for exemption from the provisions of Rule U-50, to the extent such rule is applicable to the proposed transactions be, and it hereby is, granted.

By the Commission.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC CO.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION REGARDING THE ISSUANCE OF SHORT-TERM NOTES TO BANKS

MARCH 7, 1957.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Company ("Indiana"), a public-utility subsidiary of American Gas and Electric Company ("American"), a registered holding company, has filed an application and amendments thereto with this Commission pursuant to section 6 (b) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") regarding certain proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

Indiana has established a line of credit with each of the following banking institutions under which it proposes to borrow from time to time prior to December 31, 1957 not in excess of $16,500,000:

Irving Trust Company, New York, N. Y.	$3,250,000
Mellon National Bank & Trust Company, Pittsburgh, Pa.	3,250,000
Guaranty Trust Company of New York, New York, N. Y.	3,250,000
First National City Bank of New York, New York, N. Y.	2,000,000
Manufacturers Trust Company, New York, N. Y.	$2,000,000
Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, Chicago, Illinois	1,000,000
Bankers Trust Company, New York, N. Y.	875,000
The Hanover Bank, New York, N. Y.	875,000

Of the $16.5 million proposed to be borrowed, Indiana has, as of December 31, 1956, borrowed $5,000,000 and has issued its notes in evidence thereof. This amount and additional borrowings of $5,700,000 will be exempted from the provisions of section 6 (a) by the first sentence of section 6 (b) of the act.

Indiana now requests approval for additional borrowings under the above line of credit in an amount not to exceed $5,800,000, such borrowings to be evidenced by notes to be dated as of the date of such borrowings and to mature not more than 270 days after the date of issuance. The notes are to bear interest at the then current prime rate, which is presently 4 percent per annum, and may be prepaid from time to time, in whole or in part, without premium.

The proceeds from the issuance of the notes will be used by Indiana to pay part of the costs of its construction program which, it is presently estimated will amount to $35,000,000 in 1957. All of Indiana's notes payable to banks outstanding at the time of its next permanent financing will be paid off from the proceeds of such financing which is presently expected to be effected prior to December 31, 1957. Upon the consummation of the permanent financing it is understood and agreed by Indiana that any authorization granted by this Commission's order, pursuant to this application, shall cease.

It is estimated that the expenses to be incurred by Indiana will not exceed one thousand dollars, including routine services incident to the proposed transaction which will be performed by the service company of the American system. No fees, commissions or other expenses are to be paid in regard to the proposed transaction except issuance taxes which may be paid to the State of Indiana.

The proposed transaction has been expressly authorized by the Public Service Commission of Indiana, the State in which Indiana is organized and doing business. No other State commission and no Federal commission other than this Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transaction.

Due notice of the filing of the application having been given in the manner prescribed by Rule U-23 (Holding Company Act Release No. 13388) and no hearing having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable provisions of the act and of the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, and that the application as amended should be granted forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to section 6 (b) of the act and Rule U-23 promulgated thereunder, that the application as amended be, and the same hereby is, granted forthwith, subject to the condition that the authorization granted herein shall terminate on December 31, 1957, or at such earlier date as the permanent financing referred to above is consummated and also subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter I—Civil Aeronautics Board

[Civil Air Regs., Amdt. 18–1]

PART 18—MAINTENANCE, REPAIR, AND ALTERATION OF AIRFRAMES, POWERPLANTS, PROPELLERS, AND EQUIPMENT

APPLICABILITY OF PART

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 7th day of March 1957.

Presently effective Part 18 of the Civil Air Regulations contains rules for the performance of maintenance, repair, and alteration of aircraft which are made applicable by § 18.0 thereof to "aircraft for which airworthiness certificates have been issued by the Administrator, or any component thereof." This language suggests that only certificated airmen are authorized to perform maintenance; repairs, and alterations on an aircraft if it has ever been issued an airworthiness certificate, regardless of whether or not such aircraft is ever intended again to be used in air commerce in the United States. Such was not the intent when Part 18 was promulgated and is, in fact, more restrictive than the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended.

Therefore, § 18.0 is being amended to establish that the rules for the performance of maintenance, repairs, and alterations on civil aircraft apply to work performed on a civil aircraft, or any of its components, only when the airworthiness certificate issued for the aircraft by the Administrator has not been surrendered or revoked. It will be noted that this amendment to § 18.0 uses the term "certificated aircraft," and defines it in § 18.1 as a civil aircraft for which an airworthiness certificate issued by the Administrator has not been surrendered or revoked.

Section 18.10 of Part 18 requires certificated airmen for the performance of maintenance on a civil aircraft when such aircraft is of current United States registry. This section is amended to make it consistent with the scope of the applicability provisions of § 18.0 as amended herein. As a result of this amendment to § 18.10, if the certificate of airworthiness issued for a civil aircraft has not been surrendered or revoked, only those persons authorized by § 18.10 may perform maintenance, repairs, and alterations on such aircraft or any of its components, regardless of whether the aircraft is currently registered.

The amendments to §§ 18.0 and 18.10 were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER as a notice of proposed rule making (21 F. R. 3905) and circulated for comment on June 4, 1956, as Civil Air Regulations Draft Release No. 56–15. Comment received in response to Draft Release No. 56–15 indicated that some confusion exists with respect to whether preventive maintenance performed by a pilot as authorized under present § 18.10 (c) is required by § 18.11 to be approved before being returned to service. It has been the intent of the Board that preventive maintenance performed as authorized under § 18.10 (c) not be required to be approved before the aircraft or appliance is returned to service. In order to make this intent clear in the rules and, thereby, eliminate any possible confusion which may exist, a clarifying amendment is made herein to § 18.11 (a).

Interested persons have been afforded an opportunity to participate in the making of these amendments, with the exception of the clarifying amendment to § 18.11 (a), and due consideration has been given to all relevant matter presented. Since the amendment to § 18.11 (a) is clarifying in nature and imposes no additional burden on any person, the Board finds that notice and public procedure with respect thereto is unnecessary.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board hereby amends Part 18 of the Civil Air Regulations (14 CFR, Part 18, as amended) effective April 11, 1957.

1. By amending § 18.0 to read as follows:

§ 18.0 Applicability of this part. This part establishes rules for the performance of maintenance, repairs, and alterations on certificated aircraft or any component thereof.

NOTE: • • •

2. By amending § 18.1 (a) by adding a definition of certificated aircraft to read as follows:

(8a) Certificated aircraft. A certificated aircraft is a civil aircraft for which an airworthiness certificate issued by the Administrator has not been surrendered or revoked.

3. By amending the first sentence of § 18.10 to read as follows:

§ 18.10 Persons authorized to perform maintenance, preventive maintenance, repairs, and alterations. No person shall perform maintenance, preventive maintenance, repairs, or alterations on certificated aircraft coming within the applicability of this part or on any component thereof, except as provided as follows:

• • • • • •

4. By amending the first sentence of § 18.11 (a) to read as follows:

§ 18.11 Persons authorized to approve maintenance, repairs, and alterations. • • •

(a) Maintenance, minor repairs, and minor alterations. Except for preventive maintenance performed as authorized in § 18.10 (c), which shall not require approval, no airframe, powerplant, propeller, or appliance which has undergone maintenance, minor repair, or minor alteration may be approved and returned to service except by one of the following:

• • • • • •

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 984, 49 U. S. C. 425. Interpret or apply secs. 601, 605; 52 Stat. 1007, 1010; 49 U. S. C. 551, 555).

By the Civil Aeronautics Board.

[SEAL] M. C. MULLIGAN,
Secretary.

RADAR STANDARD INSTRUMENT APPROACH PROCEDURE

Bearings, headings, courses and radials are magnetic. Elevations and altitudes are in feet MSL. Ceilings are in feet above airport elevation. Distances are in nautical miles unless otherwise indicated, except visibilities which are in statute miles.

If a radar instrument approach is conducted at the below named airport, it shall be in accordance with the following instrument procedure, unless an approach is conducted in accordance with a different procedure for such airport authorized by the Administrator of Civil Aeronautics. Initial approaches shall be made over specified routes. Minimum altitude(s) shall correspond with those established for en route operation in the particular area or as set forth below. Positive identification must be established with the radar controller. From initial contact with radar to final authorized landing minimums, the instructions of the radar controller are mandatory except when (A) visual contact is established on final approach at or before descent to the authorized landing minimums, or (B) at pilot's discretion if it appears desirable to discontinue the approach. Except when the radar controller may direct otherwise prior to final approach, a missed approach shall be executed as provided below when (A) communication on final approach is lost for more than 5 seconds during a precision approach, or for more than 30 seconds during a surveillance approach; (B) directed by radar controller; (C) visual contact is not established upon descent to authorized landing minimums; or (D) if landing is not accomplished.

TITLE 29—LABOR

Chapter V—Wage and Hour Division, Department of Labor

PART 785—HOURS WORKED

PREPARATORY AND CONCLUDING ACTIVITIES

Pursuant to General Order No. 45–A (15 F. R. 3290), and under its authority, Part 785 of Title 29, Code of Federal Regulations is hereby amended as follows:

1. The second and third subparagraphs of paragraph (f) of § 785.3, designated (2) and (3), respectively, are hereby revoked and a new subparagraph (2) is hereby issued to read as follows:

(2) These principles have guided the Administrator in the enforcement of the act. Two cases decided by the United States Supreme Court further illustrate the types of activities which are considered an integral part of the employees' jobs. In one, employees changed their clothes and took showers in a battery plant where the manufacturing process involved the extensive use of caustic and toxic materials.[16] In another case knifemen in a meat pecking plant sharpened their knives before and after their scheduled work day.[17] In both cases the Supreme Court held that these activities are an integral and indispensable part of the employees' principal activities.

2. In § 785.3, the fourth subparagraph of paragraph (f), designated as (4), is hereby redesignated as subparagraph (3).

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 11th day of March 1957.

Sec.
5.301 Scope and objective.
5.302 Alerting.
5.303 Operation during a CONELRAD Radio Alert.
5.304 Special conditions.
5.305 Radio All Clear.
5.306 Tests.
5.307 Record entries.

AUTHORITY: §§ 5.301 to 5.307 issued under sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 154. Interpret or apply sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1082, as amended, sec. 606, 65 Stat. 4087; 47 U. S. C. 303, 606. E. O. 10312, 16 F. R. 12452; 3 CFR, 1951 Supp.

§ 5.301 Scope and objective. (a) This subpart applies to all radio stations licensed by the Federal Communications Commission in the Experimental Radio Services located within the continental United States and is for the purpose of providing for the alerting and operation of radio stations in these services during periods of air attack or imminent threat thereof. (As used in this subpart, the term "licensed by" includes every form of authority issued by the Federal Communications Commission pursuant to which a radio station may be operated, including construction permits, station licenses, temporary authorizations, etc.)

(b) The objective of this subpart is to minimize the navigational aid that an enemy might obtain from the electromagnetic radiations from radio stations in the Experimental Radio Services, while simultaneously providing for a continued radio service under controlled conditions when such operation is essential to the public welfare.

§ 5.302 Alerting. (a) Licensees of radio stations in the Experimental Radio Services are responsible for making provisions to receive the CONELRAD Radio Alert and CONELRAD Radio All Clear.

(b) The CONELRAD Radio Alert will be initiated by the Commanding Officer of the Air Division (Defense) or higher military authority.

(c) Experimental Radio Service mobile radio systems, including fixed stations associated therewith and fixed service systems where applicable, may, if desired, be alerted at a single point, normally the control point or the control center. The control point thus receiving the CONELRAD Radio Alert will be responsible for the dissemination of the CONELRAD Radio Alert to all stations integrated into the radio system or systems, and for insuring that all associated stations execute CONELRAD requirements immediately.

(d) The CONELRAD Radio Alert for the Experimental Radio Services may be received by one or more of the methods outlined in this paragraph:

(1) By monitoring any standard, FM or TV broadcast station by aural or automatic means, to receive the CONELRAD Radio Alert.

(2) By monitoring the appropriate distress frequency (500 kc, A2 emissions or 2182 kc, A3 emissions).

(3) By notification of the CONELRAD Radio Alert from an Air Defense Warning Network or extension thereof. If no CONELRAD Radio Alert is transmitted Experimental Radio stations must comply with CONELRAD operating requirements upon receipt of Air Defense Warning Yellow. If neither a CONELRAD Radio Alert nor Air Defense Warning Yellow is received, Experimental radio stations must comply with CONELRAD operating requirements upon receipt of an Air Defense Warning Red.

(4) By notification of the CONELRAD Radio Alert (or Warning Yellow or Warning Red if no CONELRAD Radio Alert is transmitted) by telephone or other means from any point that has received the alert as in subparagraph (1), (2) or (3) of this paragraph.

(5) Radio station licensees desiring to receive the CONELRAD Radio Alert by a means not covered by subparagraph (1), (2), (3) or (4) of this paragraph, may request authority from the Secretary, Federal Communications Commission to receive the Alert in another manner. The request must explain why the methods described in subparagraph (1), (2), (3) or (4) of this paragraph are not suitable and must fully describe the proposed method for receiving the Alert.

NOTE: Every standard, FM and TV broadcast station will be notified of the CONELRAD Radio Alert by telephone calls or by radio broadcasts. Immediately upon receipt of the Radio Alert each standard, FM and TV broadcast station will proceed as follows on its normally assigned frequency:

(i) Discontinue the normal program.

(ii) Cut the transmitter carrier for approximately five seconds. (Sound carrier only for TV stations.)

(iii) Return carrier to the air for approximately five seconds.

(iv) Cut the transmitter carrier for approximately five seconds.

(v) Return carrier to the air.

(vi) Broadcast 1,000 cycle (approximately) steady state tone for fifteen seconds.

(vii) Broadcast the CONELRAD Radio Alert message as follows: "We interrupt our normal program to cooperate in security and Civil Defense measures as requested by the United States Government. This is a CONELRAD Radio Alert. Normal broadcasting will now be discontinued for an indefinite period. Civil Defense information will be broadcast in most areas at 640 and 1240 on your regular radio receiver."

(viii) The CONELRAD Radio Alert message will then be repeated.

(i) through (vi) above is for the purpose of attracting the listener's attention, or, if desired, to operate an automatic alert receiver or warning device. Caution: (i) through (vi) above is a warning that a Radio Alert may follow; the actual Radio Alert signal is the spoken word in the form of the CONELRAD Radio Alert message. The CONELRAD Radio Alert message as set forth in (vii) above is worded in a manner suitable for reception by the public; however, the message is also the CONELRAD Radio Alert. When this CONELRAD Radio Alert message is received, all licensees must immediately comply with the CONELRAD operating procedure. The precise CONELRAD Radio Alert message above, will be broadcast only in the event of an actual Alert. In the event of a CONELRAD test or drill, broadcast stations will make an announcement that a test or drill is taking place.

(e) Base, fixed and mobile stations in the Experimental Radio Services not directly receiving the CONELRAD Radio Alert must use caution in returning to the air after an "out of service" period, to insure that a CONELRAD Radio Alert is not in progress before making any transmissions.

§ 5.303 Operation during a CONELRAD Radio Alert. (a) Radio stations in the Experimental Radio Services, upon receipt of a CONELRAD Radio Alert, will interrupt any communications in progress, leave the air and maintain radio silence for the duration of the CONELRAD Radio Alert, except for transmissions handled in accordance with the following restrictions unless otherwise ordered by the Federal Communications Commission:

(1) No transmissions shall be made unless they are of an emergency nature affecting the national safety or the safety of people and property.

NOTE: Transmissions involving the relaying of the CONELRAD Radio Alert may be made under the authority of this section. Transmissions not immediately necessary must be withheld until the CONELRAD Radio All Clear is issued.

(2) All transmissions shall be as short as possible and the stations' carrier shall be removed from the air during periods of no message or intelligence transmission.

(3) No station identification shall be given either by announcement of regularly assigned call signals or by announcement of geographical location. If identification is necessary to carry on the service, the use of special identifiers will be authorized.

§ 5.304 Special conditions. (a) Licensees of radio stations or systems in the Experimental Radio Services, who for technical or operational reasons, believe that compliance with § 5.303 is not feasible or practicable, may request a waiver of § 5.303. Such requests must be made by letter to the Secretary, Federal Communications Commission stating why § 5.303 cannot be complied with. The Federal Communications Commission upon investigation may modify the CONELRAD operating requirements of the station or system if it is found to be essential to the defense of the nation or the public welfare.

(b) Stations licensed in the Experimental Radio Services which are an integral part of another service may be operated in accordance with the CONELRAD rules for the other service.

§ 5.305 Radio All Clear. The CONELRAD Radio All Clear will be initiated only by the Air Division (Defense) Commander or higher military authority and will be disseminated over the same channels as the CONELRAD Radio Alert. Radio stations and systems licensed in the Experimental Radio Services may resume normal operation when the CONELRAD Radio All Clear message is received unless otherwise restricted by order of the Federal Communications Commission.

§ 5.306 Tests. (a) Tests of the CONELRAD alerting and operating systems may be conducted at appropriate intervals. Stations not normally in operation during the period of a test will not be required to take part.

(b) Tests of the CONELRAD operating system will not require Experimental radio stations to close down and will be conducted in a manner that will not interfere with normal transmissions.

(c) Reports of the results of such tests may be required in a form to be prescribed by the Commission.

§ 5.307 Record entries. Appropriate entries of all CONELRAD tests and operations shall be made in the station records.

Chapter I—Coast Guard, Department of the Treasury

PART 78—OPERATIONS

RECORDS OF NUMBER OF PASSENGERS CARRIED ON FERRY VESSELS

In Federal Register Document CGFR 56-14 published in the FEDERAL REGISTER dated April 18, 1956 (21 F. R. 2521), the regulations in 46 CFR 78.37-10 were amended to require the master of every vessel to keep a correct count of the passengers received and delivered from day to day and to provide that this information shall be furnished to the Coast Guard when called for. Requests have been received from operators of ferry vessels stating that there was no accurate way of counting the number of passengers actually carried on each trip of a ferry vessel during rush hours. This information had never been reported before to the Coast Guard. Since the number of life preservers carried by ferry vessels is determined by area of passenger deck surface and the number of passengers is not stated on the certificate of inspection, ferry vessels appear to be in a special category with respect to the application of R. S. 4467, as amended (46 U. S. C. 460). The purpose of this amendment is to exempt the master of every certificated ferry vessel from maintaining a record of the correct count of all passengers received and delivered from day to day. In addition a statement is added that this information need not be kept for longer than one year from date of entry.

Because the amendment to 46 CFR 78.37-10 abolishes a requirement for the maintenance of records and describes the retention period required for such information, it is hereby found that compliance with the Administrative Procedure Act respecting notice of proposed rule making, public rule making procedures thereon, and effective date requirements thereof, is unnecessary.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Commandant, United States Coast Guard, by Treasury Department Order No. 120, dated July 31, 1950 (15 F. R. 6521), Treasury Department Order No. 167-14, dated November 26, 1954 (19 F. R. 8026), and Treasury Department Order CGFR 56-28, dated July 24, 1956 (21 F. R. 5659), to promulgate regulations in accordance with the statutes cited with the regulations below, the following amendment to § 78.37-10 (b) is prescribed and shall become effective upon the date of publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

§ 78.37-10 Official log entries. • • •

(b) Except as noted in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph, on any vessel where an official log book is not required, the master shall keep a record of the correct count of all the passengers received and delivered from day to day. This record shall be open to inspection by the Coast Guard at all times. The aggregate number of the passengers carried shall be furnished to the Coast Guard whenever requested (R. S. 4467, as amended, 46 U. S. C. 460). The information shall be available for a period of one year after the date to which the records refer.

(1) The provisions of the paragraph shall not apply to ferry vessels.

S. 4417, 4418, 4426, 4453, as amended, secs. 1, 2, 49 Stat. 1544, sec. 17, 54 Stat. 166, sec. 3, 54 Stat. 346, as amended, sec. 3, 66 Stat. 675; 46 U. S. C. 391, 392, 404, 435, 367, 1333, 50 U. S. TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter I—Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior

Subchapter B—Hunting and Possession of Wildlife

PART 6—MIGRATORY BIRDS

ORDER PERMITTING KILLING OF DEPREDATING COOTS IN AGRICULTURAL AREAS OF CALIFORNIA

Basis and purpose. It has been determined from investigations and observations made by the Fish and Wildlife Service and by the California Department of Fish and Game, that serious agricultural crop depredations are likely to occur because of the large number of coots present in portions of the State of California. It has further been determined that these depredations can best be alleviated by permitting depredating coots to be killed and taken by shooting in any affected area under specific conditions and restrictions. Accordingly, it is ordered as follows:

1 (a) Such coots as are found damaging crops in agricultural areas of California may be killed by shooting with a shotgun only on or over such crops during the period or periods to be announced in accordance with this order. The facts as to the existence of an emergency condition in any particular area which requires the killing of coots as contemplated herein, the extent of the area and the period of time during which, and the conditions under which, such killing may be permitted shall be ascertained by the Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, and announced by him through publication of a notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER and by suitable publication in the areas where the emergency exists, which finding shall be final. Any such period of time during which killing is permitted shall be shortened by similar announcement and publication upon a finding that the particular emergency condition no longer exists.

(b) No period of shooting shall extend beyond May 30, 1957.

(c) Such birds as are killed under the provisions of this order may be used for food but they may not be sold, offered for sale, bartered or shipped for purposes of sale or barter, or be wantonly wasted or destroyed.

(d) This order does not permit the killing of any coots in violation of any State law or regulation. This order and any implementation thereof which may be effected contemplate emergency measures designed to aid in relieving depredations and are not to be construed as a reopening or extension of any open hunting season prescribed by regulations promulgated under section 3 of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, as amended (40 Stat. 755; 16 U. S. C. 704).

(Sec. 3, 40 Stat. 755, as amended, 16 U. S. C. 704)

Since this order is an emergency measure, notice and public procedure thereon are impracticable and it shall become effective immediately.

Issued at Washington, D. C., and dated March 8, 1957.

FRED G. AANDAHL,
Acting Secretary of the Interior.

ORDER PERMITTING KILLING OF DEPREDATING AMERICAN MERGANSERS IN WESTERN WASHINGTON

Basis and purpose. It has been determined from investigations and observations made by the Fish and Wildlife Service and the Washington State Department of Game, that the number of American mergansers present in western Washington is such as to constitute a serious threat to the trout populations of certain lakes and streams through depredations by these birds. It has further been determined that these depredations can best be alleviated by permitting depredating American mergansers to be killed and taken by shooting in any affected area under conditions and restrictions designed to prevent impairment of breeding populations. Accordingly, it is ordered as follows:

(a) Such American mergansers as are found depredating on trout populations of the lakes and streams in the State of Washington may be killed by shooting with a shotgun only on or over the effected areas during the period or periods to be announced in accordance with this order. The facts as to the existence of an emergency condition on any particular area which requires the killing of the American mergansers as contemplated herein, the extent of the area and the period of time during which, and the conditions under which, such killing may be permitted shall be ascertained by the Acting Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and announced by him through publication of a notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER and by suitable publication in the area where the emergency exists, which finding shall be final. Any such period of time during which killing is permitted shall be shortened by similar announcement and publication upon a finding that the particular emergency condition no longer exists.

(b) No period of shooting shall extend beyond April 10, 1957.

(c) American mergansers killed under the provisions of this order may be used or donated to charitable institutions for food purposes and they may be donated to public museums or public scientific and educational institutions for exhibition, scientific or educational purposes. No such birds may be sold, offered for sale, bartered or shipped for purposes of sale or barter. Any such birds which cannot be used for the purposes stated herein shall be completely destroyed.

(d) This order does not permit the killing of American mergansers in violation of any State law or regulation. This order and any implementation thereof which may be effected contemplate emergency measures designed to aid in relieving depredations and are not to be construed as a reopening or extension of any open hunting season prescribed by regulations promulgated under section 3 of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, as amended (40 Stat. 755; 16 U. S. C. 704).

(Sec. 3, 40 Stat. 755, as amended, 16 U. S. C. 704)

Since this order is an emergency measure, notice and public procedure thereon are impracticable and it shall become effective immediately.

Issued at Washington, D. C., and dated March 8, 1957.

Acting Secretary of the Interior.

MARCH 7, 1957.

Public Land Order No. 1274 of March 14, 1956, revoked Executive Order No. 6361 of October 25, 1933, which withdrew lands in California for classification and determination as to the advisability of including them in a National Monument.

Pursuant to the authority delegated by Departmental Order No. 2583 of August 16, 1950, it is ordered that sec. 20, T. 2 S., R. 4 E., S. B. OREGON

SMALL TRACT CLASSIFICATION AND OPENING NO. 57-2

MARCH 6, 1957.

1. Pursuant to the authority redelegated to me by Bureau Order No. 541, dated April 21, 1954 (19 F. R. 2473), as amended, the following described reconveyed Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands totaling 40 acres in Coos County, Oregon, are classified for lease for homesite purposes under the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938 (52 Stat. 609; 43 U. S. C. 682a), as amended, subject to valid existing rights:

WILLAMETTE MERIDIAN, OREGON

T. 28 S., R. 11 W.,
Sec. 13: NE¼NW¼.

2. Classification of the above-described lands by this order segregates them from all appropriations under the public land laws including the mining and mineral leasing laws. Only eight tracts are by this order opened to leasing under the Small Tract Act, as amended.

3. The tracts available are located along the north bank of the East Fork of the Coquille River approximately one-half mile, by an all season road, from the settlement of Dora. The tracts are approximately 25 miles northeast from Myrtle Point, Oregon. The topography of the tracts is almost level with a slight slope south toward the river, and the elevation is about 150 feet above sea level. The soil is a fine silty clay loam. The vegetative cover consists of small scattered fir and hemlock, large myrtle and maple, and low brush with some poison oak.

Domestic water may be obtained from a small stream on the south side of the river by a pipeline, or from wells. The area is served by a county road. An elementary school and general store are located at the settlement of Dora. The nearest all-purpose marketing center is Myrtle Point, Oregon. The weather is typical of the Oregon coastal area. Precipitation averages 65 inches to 75 inches, with a mild temperature throughout the year. There is no evidence of metallic or nonmetallic minerals.

4. The eight individual tracts have been marked on the ground. They vary in size from 0.50 to 0.70 of an acre. A plat showing the location of each of the tracts and the lotting of them can be secured for $1.00 from the Manager, Land Office, 1001 N. E. Lloyd Boulevard, P. O. Box 3861, Portland 8, Oregon; or from the District Forester, Bureau of Land Management, Post Office Building, Coos Bay, Oregon. The annual rental of each tract is $25.00. Rights of way for access to the tracts will be reserved on adjoining public land. The United States reserves for itself, its contractors, and permittees, the right to enter on the leased areas to administer the land for sustained yield timber management purposes under the act of August 28, 1937 (50 Stat. 874; 43 U. S. C. 1181a).

5. Leases will be issued for a term of three years. Advance rental payment for the full tenure of the lease will be required before the issuance of a lease. To maintain their rights under their lease, lessees will be required to construct substantial improvements on their tract within the lease period. Failure to do so will result in nonrenewal of the lease. Leases will be subject to renewal for periods of ten to twenty years provided the lessee complies with the conditions and stipulations contained in the original lease within the periods allowed.

6. Persons who have previously acquired a tract under the Small Tract Act are not qualified to lease a tract unless they can make a showing satisfactory to the Bureau of Land Management that the lease of another tract is warranted.

7. Upon allowance of an application and before commencement of construction, it is advisable for the lessee to confer with the District Forester concerning plans and specifications of improvements. The improvements referred to in paragraph 5 above must meet the following requirements:

(a) Buildings must be placed on a permanent foundation consisting of concrete, brick, pumice blocks, or stone masonry. Chimneys must be constructed from ground level and shall be constructed of pumice or concrete blocks, bricks, stone masonry, or comparable fire-resistant materials.

(b) All buildings must be constructed in a workmanlike manner of attractive, properly finished materials in harmony with surroundings.

(c) Every dwelling must have floor space of not less than 500 square feet, and have at least two doors as means of access.

(d) All dwellings must be provided with sanitation facilities in accordance with or better than required by the laws of the State of Oregon and local ordinances. Disposal of household wastes shall be through a septic tank constructed in accordance with the rules and regulations of the State Board of Health. Garbage and other waste must be disposed of in fly-proof pits or removed from the areas to an established public sanitary garbage disposal site.

(e) The raising of domestic livestock will not be permitted on a tract.

(f) Buildings may not be constructed less than 15 feet from the boundaries of a tract without permission from the District Forester.

(g) The cutting of commercial timber will not be permitted without authority of the District Forester.

(h) The burning of debris is not permitted during fire season without permission of the State Fire Patrol.

8. The eight tracts shown on the plat filed in the Land Office, Portland, Oregon, and the Bureau of Land Management, District Forester's Office, Post Office Building, Coos Bay, Oregon, are now open to filing of drawing-entry cards (Form 4-775) only by persons entitled to veteran's preference. In brief, persons entitled to such preference are: (a) Honorably discharged veterans who served in the armed forces of the United States for a period of at least 90 days after September 15, 1940, (b) surviving spouse or minor orphan children of such veterans, and (c) with the consent of the veteran, the spouse of the living veteran.

The 90-day requirement does not apply to veterans who were discharged on account of wounds or disability incurred in the line of duty, or to the surviving spouse or minor children of veterans killed in the line of duty. Drawing-entry cards (Form 4-775) are available upon request from the Manager, Land Office, or District Forester, Coos Bay.

Drawing-entry cards will be accepted if filled out in compliance with the instructions on the form and filed with the Manager, Land Office, prior to 10:00 a. m., June 7, 1957. A drawing will be held on that date, or shortly thereafter. Any person who submits more than one card will be declared ineligible to participate in the drawing. Tracts will be assigned to the entrants in the order in which their names are drawn. All entrants will be notified of the results of the drawing.

Successful drawees will be allowed 15 days from receipt of notice in which to execute the lease forms (Form 4-776) accompanying the notice, in accordance with instructions and return them with payment of filing fees and rentals.

Any tracts for which lease forms have not been filed and accompanied by the required payments within the 15-day period will immediately thereafter become available to alternate drawees in the order in which their cards were drawn.

9. All valid applications filed prior to February 4, 1957, will be granted preference right provided for by 43 CFR 257.5.

10. Inquiries concerning these lands shall be addressed to Manager, Land Office, 1001 N. E. Lloyd Boulevard, P. O. Box 3861, Portland 8, Oregon.

RUSSELL E. GETTY,
Acting State Supervisor.

2. The areas described above total 48,220 acres of land, more or less. The lands reconveyed and known as the Fernley Trail lands located in Ts. 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25 N., R. 24 E., M. D. M., Nevada extend northerly from Fernley on Highway U. S. 40 and the Southern Pacific Railroad along the eastern boundary of the Pyramid Lake Indian Reservation and along the east shore of Winnemucca Lake to the Northern limits of the railroad grant. A portion of these Fernley Trail lands lies within the Winnemucca Wildlife Refuge. Along the eastern shore of Winnemucca Lake the lands slope gently toward the lake. The soil is a sandy silt and generally rocky. The vegetation is a semi-desert shrub type of low carrying capacity. South of the lake the lands become more rough and barren although certain limited areas produce perennial grass forage. The carrying capacity of these lands is dependent primarily upon seasonal rainfall since the principal forage species are annuals. They are best adapted to grazing by livestock and are not known to be susceptible of cultivation by any means.

The lands reconveyed and known as the Lovelock Trail lands are located in Ts. 28, 29 and 30 N., R. 29 E., M. D. M., and Ts. 27 and 28 N., R. 30 E., M. D. M. These lands extend northerly from a point about 4 miles west of Lovelock, Nevada to the northern limits of the railroad grant and are all located in Pershing County. The lands are generally mountainous, support a semi-desert type of vegetation and are low in value. The lands generally parallel State Highway 48 leading from Lovelock to Vernon and Seven Troughs.

The following lands are known as the West Wells Trail lands and are located in T. 39 N., R. 60 E., Ts. 38 and 40 N., R. 61 E., Ts. 37 and 38 N., R. 62 E., and Ts. 37 and 38 N., R. 63 E., M. D. M., Nevada. These lands are located in Elko County and extend from the vicinity of Wells, Nevada, north and west to the northern limits of the railroad grant. The topography is rolling with some low hills and frequent shallow washes. The soil is a gravelly clay. The vegetative type is big sage and bunch grass with some open areas of dry meadow. The carrying capacity is relatively high and some of the lands are considered for low value crops such as grass hay. Permanent and intermitten streams provide water on some of these lands or it is available on adjoining areas for grazing livestock by the owners of such adjoining lands. The lands are primarily adaptable to the grazing by livestock and are not known to be susceptible of cultivation.

The lands described in 34 N., R. 30 E., T. 34 N., R. 31 E., T. 34 N., R. 32 E., and Ts. 32, 33 and 34 N., R. 33 E., and T. 32 N., R. 34 E., are known as the Imlay Trail lands. They are situated north and east of Imlay which is a town on the Southern Pacific Railroad. The lands are generally mountainous and support a semi-desert type of vegetation and are low in grazing value. The soil is a sandy silt and generally rocky, unsuitable for the production of agricultural crops. Its best use appears to be for the grazing of livestock. The carrying capacity of these lands for livestock is dependent primarily upon seasonal rainfall since there are no known permanent waters for watering purposes other than those on adjoining privately owned lands.

The lands described in Ts. 32, 33 and 34 N., R. 40 E., Ts. 36, 37 N., R. 41 E., T. 38 N., R. 42 E., and T. 38 N., R. 43 E., are known as the Golconda Trail lands and are also situated both north and south of Golconda, which is a town on the Southern Pacific Railroad. The lands are generally mountainous, support a semi-desert type of vegetation and are fairly low in value. The soils range from a clay loam to gravel and the vegetation consists chiefly of sagebrush, shadscale, some perennial grasses and annual weeds. The lands are not adapted to the cultivation of crops and are chiefly used for the grazing of livestock.

The lands described in T. 30 N., R. 42 E., T. 30 N., R. 43 E., T. 31 N., R. 43 E., T. 31 N., R. 44 E., and Ts. 31 and 32 N., R. 45 E., are known as the Battle Mountain Trail lands and are situated southerly from Battle Mountain, which is situated on the Southern Pacific Railroad and on U. S. Highway 40. The trail covered by these lands runs generally south and west from Battle Mountain to the southern limits of the railroad grant. These lands are all located in Lander County, Nevada. The topography is generally rolling to mountainous, soils range from clay loam to gravelly, the vegetation consists of sagebrush, native bunch grass and annual weeds. The carrying capacity varies from poor to good. No permanent waters are known to exist on the lands but intermittent streams and waters owned on adjoining private lands provide water during the grazing periods. The lands are not known to be susceptible of cultivation by any means.

3. No application for these lands will be allowed under the homestead, desert land, small tract, or any other nonmineral public land law, unless the lands have already been classified as valuable or suitable for such type of application, or shall be so classified upon consideration of an application. Any application that is filed will be considered on its merits. The lands will not be subject to occupancy or disposal until they have been classified.

4. These lands are not open for location and entry under the general mining laws and mineral leasing laws as the mineral rights have been reserved to former owners.

5. Subject to any existing valid rights and the requirements of applicable law, the lands described in paragraph 1 hereof, are opened to filing of applications and selections in accordance with the following:

a. Applications and selections under the nonmineral public land laws may be presented to the Manager of the Land Office, beginning on the date of this order. Such applications and selections will be considered as filed on the hour and respective dates shown for the various classes enumerated in the following paragraphs:

(1) Applications by persons having prior existing valid settlement rights, preference rights conferred by existing laws, or equitable claims subject to allowance and confirmation will be adjudicated on the facts presented in support of each claim or right. All applications presented by persons other than those referred to in this paragraph will be subject to the applications and claims mentioned in this paragraph.

(2) All valid applications by qualified veterans of World War II or of the Korean Conflict, and by others entitled to preference rights under the act of September 27, 1944 (58 Stat. 747; 43 U. S. C. 279–284 as amended), presented prior to 10:00 a. m. on 4–11–57, will be considered as simultaneously filed at that hour. Rights under such preference right applications filed after that hour and before 10:00 a. m. on 7–11–57, will be governed by the time of filing.

(3) All valid applications and selections under the nonmineral public land laws, other than those coming under paragraphs (1) and (2) above, to 10:00 a. m. on 7–11–57 will be considered as simultaneously filed at that hour. Rights under such applications and selections filed after that hour will be governed by the time of filing.

Persons claiming veterans' preference rights under paragraph (2) above, must enclose with their applications proper evidence of military or naval seryice, preferably a complete photostatic copy of the certificate of honorable discharge. Persons claiming preference rights based upon valid settlement, statutory preference, or equitable claims must enclose properly corroborated statements in support of their applications, setting forth all facts relevant to their claims. Detailed rules and regulations governing applications which may be filed pursuant to this notice can be found in Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

6. Inquiries concerning these lands shall be addressed to the Manager, Nevada Land Office, P. O. Box 1551, Reno, Nevada.

JAMES E. KEOGH, Jr.,
Manager, Land Office.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[Docket No. 11741; FCC 57–209]

CLAREMORE BROADCASTING CO.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER AMENDING ISSUES

In re application of Robert I. Hartley tr/as Claremore Broadcasting Company, Claremore, Oklahoma; Docket No. 11741, File No. BP-10306; for construction permit.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration (1) Petition to Intervene and for Enlargement of Issues filed by L. L. Gaffaney tr/as Lakes Area Broadcasting Co. on October 25, 1956, and supplement thereto filed on October 31, 1956;[1] (2) Comment on Petition to Enlarge Issues filed by Broadcast Bureau on November 2, 1956; (3) Opposition to Petition filed by Robert I. Hartley, tr/as Claremore Broadcasting Co. on November 5, 1956; (4) Reply to Opposition filed by Gaffaney on November 13, 1956; and (5) Reply to Opposition filed by the Broadcast Bureau on November 13, 1956.

2. The following chronology is significant in this proceeding: By Order of June 13, 1956 (released June 18, 1956) Mr. Hartley's application was designated for hearing on issues designed to ascertain what, if any, interference his proposed station would cause to existing stations. On June 21, 1956, Mr. Gaffaney filed an application which would have been mutually exclusive with the Hartley application. On July 10, 1956, the Gaffaney application was returned by the Commission for failure to specify antenna and transmitter site. On August 2, 1956, the Chief Hearing Examiner dismissed the Hartley application for failure to prosecute. On August 16, 1956, Gaffaney filed a new application for the facility. On August 20, 1956, Hartley filed a petition for reconsideration of the Order dismissing his application, which petition was granted by the Chief Hearing Examiner on September 5, 1956. On September 26, 1956 the Commission returned Gaffaney's application of August 16, 1956, on the ground that Hartley's previously dismissed application had been reinstated and Gaffaney's application was therefore filed too late. On October 25, 1956, Gaffaney filed the subject petition to intervene[2] and to enlarge issues, alleging that Hartley's application involved concealed ownership.

3. Section 1.389 of the Commission's rules provides that requests to enlarge issues shall be filed not later than 15 days after the issues in a hearing have first been published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.[3] Unless good cause is shown, untimely filed motions will not be accepted. As cause for failure to timely file the instant motion, Mr. Gaffaney points out that his application of June 21, 1956 stated his belief that Hartley was not the true owner of his proposed station. It is stated that subsequent thereto, he believed that his allegations were before the Commission, and no further action on his part was necessary. Under these circumstances, we believe good cause has been shown for the late filing of the petition.

4. Mr. Gaffaney alleges that the true owners of Mr. Hartley's proposed station are John Adams and John Mahoney. He supports his contention with affidavits indicating that Adams and Mahoney announced plans to construct a chain of radio stations, among them one at Claremore, Oklahoma; that they performed some of the preliminary work necessary to filing an application for the Claremore facility, including acquiring an option on land in Claremore, at which time they advised the owner that the property was to be used for a radio station; and that Mr. Hartley's application in this proceeding is very similar in style and composition to an application filed by Adams and Mahoney for a station in Bartlesville, Oklahoma.

5. In explanation, Mr. Hartley in his opposition to the petition, states that Adams and Mahoney were interested in a station in Claremore and did the work preliminary to filing an application therefor. When they discovered, however, that Commission rules would probably bar their acquiring a station in Claremore due to its proximity to a station they owned in Vinita, Oklahoma, they abandoned their plans for Claremore and turned over this work to Mr. Hartley. In further explanation of the similarity between Mr. Hartley's application and the Adams and Mahoney application for Bartlesville, it is stated that Hartley's application was prepared by Adams, acting as his attorney, and a certain similarity in style might be expected.

6. Although the Commission's application form requires such information, Mr. Hartley's application does not disclose the preliminary work of Adams and Hartley nor does it identify Mr. Adams as his attorney.

7. We here have contested allegations and facts as to a matter which could affect the qualifications of the applicant. While an explanation of certain of the facts is offered, we believe this matter cannot be resolved on the basis of the pleadings before us. Further, no explanation is offered as to the failure to disclose the participation of Mr. Adams and Mr. Mahoney in the preparation and filing of the application. Under such circumstances, full inquiry into this matter under the hearing processes is required.

8. Accordingly, it is ordered, This 6th day of March 1957, that the petition for enlargement of issues filed by L. L. Gaffaney tr/as Lakes Area Broadcasting Company is granted and the present issues in this proceeding are enlarged to include the following issue:

To determine whether the above-entitled application of Robert J. Hartley, tr/as Claremore Broadcasting Company, fully and correctly identifies the real parties in interest; whether John Q. Adams or John M. Mahoney of Vinita, Oklahoma, or both, have an undisclosed interest in the said application; and whether the said application fully and completely supplies the information called for by the application form.

ORDER CANCELLING PREHEARING CONFERENCE

In re applications of Ken-Sell, Inc., Key West, Florida; Docket No. 11858, File No. BP-10242; Florida Keys Broadcasting Corporation, Key West, Florida; Docket No. 11859, File No. BP-10663; for construction permits.

It appearing that by letter dated March 6, 1957, counsel for Ken-Sell has informed the Commission that petition for dismissal of the Ken-Sell application is in the process of preparation and will be filed shortly; and

It further appearing that the Commission's order of designation found Florida Keys minimally qualified to receive grant and designated no issue qualifying that finding so that the dismissal referred to above will obviate the necessity of hearing;

It is ordered, This 6th day of March 1957, on the Examiner's own motion that the prehearing conference now scheduled for March 7, 1957 will not be held.

PACIFIC BROADCASTERS

ORDER DESIGNATING APPLICATION FOR HEARING ON STATED ISSUES

In re application of J. Claude Warren, Paul E. Wilkins and J. Q. Floyd, d/b as Pacific Broadcasters, Oxnard, California; Docket No. 11944, File No. BP-9270; for construction permit.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C. on the 6th day of March 1957;

The Commission having under consideration the above-captioned application of J. Claude Warren, Paul E. Wilkins and J. Q. Floyd, d/b as Pacific Broadcasters, for a construction permit for a new standard broadcast station at Oxnard, California, to operate on 1520 kilocycles with a power of 250 watts, directional antenna, unlimited time, File No. BP-9270; and

It appearing, that the applicant is legally, technically, financially and otherwise qualified, except as may appear from the issues specified below, to construct and operate its proposed station; but that interference from Station KOMA, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma (1520kc, 50kw, DA-N, U) would affect more than ten percent of the population in the proposed station's normally protected primary service area, in contravention of § 3.28 (c) of the Commission's rules, and would not appear to comply with any of the exceptions contained within said Rule; and

It further appearing, that pursuant to section 309 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the instant applicant was advised by letter dated August 9, 1956, of the aforementioned deficiency and that the Commission was unable to conclude that a grant of its application would be in the public interest; and

It further appearing, that the applicant filed a timely reply; and

It further appearing, that in a pleading filed on February 21, 1956, the applicant contends that its proposal would comply with the provisions of § 3.28 (c) of the rules by providing a first nighttime facility to Oxnard, California, if the dual-city operation of Station KUDU, Ventura-Oxnard, California, is deemed inapplicable to the considerations of § 3.28 (c); and requests that the Commission interpret the provisions of § 3.28 (c) as here being inapplicable, or to waive the provisions of § 3.28 (c) and grant its application, or, in the alternative, issue an order against Station KUDU to show cause why its license should not be modified to specify Ventura as its location in lieu of Ventura-Oxnard, California; and

It further appearing, that in support of its aforementioned requests, the applicant claims that about January 1952, approximately three years after being authorized for dual-city operation, Station KUDU abandoned its studios in Oxnard, California; that Station KUDU has dropped its listing among the commercial establishments in the "yellow pages" of the Oxnard Telephone Directory; and that Station KUDU "does not now conduct its operations in such a way as to be entitled to the dual-city identification"; and

It further appearing, that we are of the opinion that the dual-city operation of Station KUDU is applicable to the considerations of § 3.28 (c) because § 3.30 of the Commission's rules provides that a station licensed to serve more than one place shall be considered to be located in each such place, and also permit a station's main studio to be located at the transmitter site; and

It further appearing, that we are of the opinion that the applicant's above-referenced alternative request for issuance of an order against Station KUDU to show cause why its license should not be modified is without merit because the applicant has not made a sufficient showing to the effect that KUDU is not in compliance with § 3.30 of our rules concerning dual-identification or that KUDU is not serving the radio needs of Oxnard; and

It further appearing, that on the basis of the information before us we are unable at this time to conclude that the grant of a waiver of § 3.28 (c) would here be warranted; and

It further appearing, that in view of the foregoing we are of the opinion that a hearing on the instant application is necessary;

It is ordered, That, pursuant to section 309 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the said application is designated for hearing, at a time and place to be specified in a subsequent order, upon the following issues:

1. To determine the areas and populations which would receive primary service from the instant proposal, and the availability of other primary service to such areas and populations.

2. To determine whether the instant proposal would receive objectionable interference from Station KOMA, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, or any other existing standard broadcast station, and, if so, the nature and extent thereof, the areas and populations affected thereby, and the availability of other primary service to such areas and populations.

3. To determine, in light of Issue 2, whether, because of the interference received from Station KOMA, the instant proposal would comply with the provisions of § 3.28 (c) of the Commission's rules, and, if not, whether circumstances exist which would warrant a waiver of said section.

4. To determine, in light of the evidence adduced pursuant to the foregoing issues, if a grant of the instant application would serve the public interest, convenience, and necessity.

It is further ordered, That KUDU, The Voice of Ventura County, licensee of Station KUDU, be made a party to the proceeding.

It is further ordered, That, to avail itself of the opportunity to be heard, Pacific Broadcasters and The Voice of Ventura County, pursuant to § 1.387 of the Commission's rules, in person or by attorney, shall, within 20 days of the mailing of this order, file with the Commission, in triplicate, a written appearance stating an intention to appear on the date fixed for the hearing and present evidence on the issues specified in this order.

Released: March 11, 1957.

AMERICAUTO AND A. C. I., S. A.

ORDER EXTENDING TEMPORARY ORDER DENYING EXPORT PRIVILEGES

In the matter of: Jacques Bensa, doing business as Americauto, 44 rue Brunel, Paris, France; A. C. I., S. A., also known as Automobile Commerciale Internationale, 1 rue de Rive, Geneva, Switzerland; respondents.

An order having heretofore been made temporarily denying export privileges to the respondents above named, who are related firms (21 F. R. 7703), which order has been extended from time to time, the last extension having been by order dated February 6, 1957 (22 F. R. 868), which extension is about to expire, the Investigation Staff now applies for a further order of extension. This application was considered by the Compliance Commissioner, who has reported that, during the time that the said respondents were subject to the temporary order denying their export privileges, the respondent Bensa, in apparent violation of the provisions of said order, seems to have attempted to have 100 absorbers exported from the United States to another firm owned or controlled by him, and because of such conduct indicated an attitude on his part to repeat or continue a disregard for United States export control regulations, and he has recommended that the application be granted as hereinafter provided.

Now, after reading the recommendation of the Compliance Commissioner and considering the entire record herein, and believing that it is reasonably necessary to protect the public interest: It is hereby ordered:

That the order of October 4, 1956 (21 F. R. 7703), denying export privileges to the respondents herein named be, and the same hereby is further extended pending the completion of a compliance proceeding about to be commenced against them.

Dated: March 7, 1957.

[Case 223]

WILLIAM KURT SAMUEL WALLERSTEINER ET AL.

ORDER DENYING EXPORT PRIVILEGES

In the matter of: William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., 22/32, Copperfield Road, Canal Road, London, E. 3, England; Watford Chemical Corporation, New York, New York; Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., Copperfield Road, Westhill, Ontario, Canada; Chris A. Watters, 3 Parkway Drive, R. R. 1, Milton, Ontario, Canada; Louis Vaughan, 44 Woodland Gardens, Muswell Hill, N. 10, England; George McKee Todd, 17 Half Moon Street, London, W. 1, England; Herbert Shilton, R. R. 1, Highland Creek, Ontario, Canada; John Block, John Block & Company, Inc., 6 State Street, New York 4, New York; respondents.

The respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., London, England, E. Tingley & Son Ltd., London, England, Watford Chemical Corporation, New York City, Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as the Wallersteiner group), George McKee Todd, Herbert Shilton, Chris A. Watters, John Block & Company, Inc., and Louis Vaughan, having been charged by the Director of the Investigation Staff, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, Department of Commerce, with violations of the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, and regulations promulgated thereunder; and

The said respondents all having been duly served with the charging letter; and

The said respondents having appeared herein by participation, service of answer, demand for oral hearing or proposal for consent disposition, this case was referred to the Compliance Commissioner, who held a hearing at which were present in person or represented by counsel the Wallersteiner group, John Block and John Block & Company, Inc.

The Compliance Commissioner, having heard and considered all the evidence submitted in support of the charges and all the evidence and arguments submitted by respondents in opposition thereto or in connection therewith, and having considered also the consent order proposal submitted on behalf of the Wallersteiner group, has transmitted to the undersigned Director, Office of Export Supply, Bureau of Foreign Commerce, Department of Commerce, his written report, including findings of fact and findings that violations have occurred, and his recommendation that (a) the consent proposal submitted on behalf of the Wallersteiner group be accepted and (b) that respondents be denied export privileges to the extent hereinafter provided, together with which report there have been transmitted also the transcript of testimony at the hearing, all exhibits submitted thereat, the charging letter, answers, consent proposal, correspondence and briefs.

In connection with the consent proposal made by the Wallersteiner group, there were considered, among other factors, the May 6, 1955 order denying to them all export privileges pending this proceeding and a $6,000 fine paid by Watford Chemical Corporation following its plea of guilty to charges of criminal violation of the Export Control Act prosecuted against it in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, which charges involved matters herein involved.

After reviewing and considering the entire record of this case, the Compliance Commissioner's Report and Recommendation, and the briefs, I hereby make the following findings of fact:

A. As to the Wallersteiner respondents. 1. Wherever reference is hereinafter made to the Wallersteiner respondents such reference shall include and be deemed to refer to William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation, New York City, and Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., Toronto, Ontario.

2. During the first half of 1951 respondent William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, through the medium of a Switzerland corporation owned or controlled by him and not a respondent herein, entered into contracts with a company in Eastern Germany whereunder the seller agreed to sell and the purchaser agreed to buy some $30,000,000 worth of chemicals, drugs, and dyestuffs. For the purpose of supplying that contract, the respondent William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner arranged for the acquisition in various parts of the world, by the corporations heretofore named, of these commodities which were all to be transferred by intercompany transfers to another company owned or controlled by respondent William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner in Vaduz, Liechtenstein, which last mentioned company would then sell them to the company in Switzerland to enable it to complete its obligations under the contracts.

3. The business operation conducted by the company in Eastern Germany was of such a nature and the names displayed on its premises were such as to put respondent William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner on notice, if not at the time of contracting, then soon thereafter, that the East German company was purchasing the commodities for the Communist Chinese.

4. Following the execution of said contracts, the Wallersteiner respondents did supply their ultimate purchaser with something less than one-third of the requirements thereunder and, in connection with their supplying of those requirements they did purchase and export or cause to be exported from the United States chemicals, drugs, and dyestuffs having a value in excess of $1,250,000.

5. The commodities so exported by the Wallersteiner respondents from the United States were exported by resorting to devices as follows:

a. They caused to made applications for and obtained export licenses for the exportation of goods from the United States by representing to the Department of Commerce that the goods for which such applications were filed were being purchased by one or another of the Wallersteiner companies in England for consumption there.

b. They exported or caused to be exported to England goods from the United States under purported authorization of general license and in connection with such exportations caused representations and statements to be made on shipper's export declarations certifying that the goods being exported thereunder were being exported to one or another of the Wallersteiner companies in England as the country of ultimate destination.

c. They exported or caused to be exported from the United States to Canada, under the general provisions permitting exportations to Canada without license, goods which they certified or caused to be certified in shipper's export declarations as being goods purchased by their Canadian corporation for ultimate destination Canada, and after the arrival of such goods in Canada they caused such goods to be transhipped forthwith to England.

d. Upon arrival of such goods so exported from the United States either directly to England under validated license or under general license or of goods exported from the United States to Canada and thence reexported to England, such goods were thereupon transshipped or caused to be transshipped by the Wallersteiner respondents to Eastern Germany or Gdynia, Poland.

6. All representations and statements made or caused to be made by the Wallersteiner respondents in applications for export licenses and in shipper's export declarations to the effect that the goods to which reference was made therein were being purchased by a consignee in England and were to be consumed there or were ultimately destined for that country, or were being purchased by a consignee in Canada with Canada as the ultimate destination, were false and known by the said respondents to be false and were made for the sole purpose of procuring the delivery of such goods to England to be transshipped from England to Eastern Germany or Gdynia, Poland.

7. In every instance of transshipment whereby any goods were transshipped from England to East Germany or Gdynia, Poland, such transshipment was made without permission or authorization of the Department of Commerce although the Wallersteiner respondents well knew that such permission and authorization were required and that such transshipments, if made without permission and authorization of the Department of Commerce, were in violation of the export control laws and regulations of the United States.

8. Also, in connection with the efforts of the Wallersteiner respondents to obtain goods for the purpose of supplying the said contracts, they made numerous applications for export licenses in which they certified falsely that the consignees therein mentioned were the actual purchasers and that the intended place of consumption of the goods involved was England, which applications were either rejected or returned by the Department of Commerce without action.

B. As to the respondents John Block and John Block & Company, Inc. 9. During the latter part of 1951 and in 1952 the respondents John Block and John Block & Company, Inc., hereinafter described as Block, were the forwarding agents for the shipments involved in this proceeding and were the custodians of funds received from the Wallersteiner group from which funds they made payments for goods purchased by them or on their behalf.

10. The respondents Block had reason to know and therefore knew that the goods so being acquired by the Wallersteiner respondents were not being acquired for use and consumption in England but were being acquired with the purpose and intention of transshipping such goods, after their arrival in England, from England to another country.

11. While acting as such forwarding agent, Block prepared or caused to be prepared bills of lading upon which he failed to endorse or have endorsed the required notice to the effect that the goods being exported thereunder were licensed for exportation to England and that diversion thereof from England to another country without authorization was a violation of United States laws and regulations.

12. With such knowledge, Block caused exportations of goods to be made from the United States to Canada by certifying or causing to be certified on shipper's export declarations that such goods being exported to Canada were being purchased by one of the Wallersteiner respondents in Canada and that Canada was the country of ultimate destination, not the place of transshipment, although he well knew also that it was the then intention to forthwith reexport such goods to England immediately upon their arrival in Canada.

13. With such knowledge, Block prepared and had authenticated shipper's export declarations and caused exportations of goods to be made from the United States in matters involving the use of export licenses and, in so doing, he certified falsely that the goods so being exported and the subject of such export declarations were destined ultimately for England and were not to be transshipped from England.

C. As to the respondents George McKee Todd and Herbert Shilton. 14. The respondents Todd and Shilton, during the time that the respondent Watford Chemical Corporation of New York City was engaged in the acquisition of goods for the supply of the said major Wallersteiner contracts and was performing the acts heretofore mentioned in Findings 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, were officers and directors thereof.

15. The respondents Todd and Shilton well knew that goods being purchased in the United States were being purchased for the purpose of transshipment out of England to Eastern Germany or Gdynia, Poland, and they knew, at least as to some of the later transactions, that the false certifications heretofore mentioned were being made and that transshipments without permission or authority from the Department of Commerce were being made from England.

16. Although vested with the responsibility of making certain, as officers and directors of a New York corporation, that that corporation was abiding by and obeying the laws and regulations of the United States, they did nothing to assure such compliance with such laws and regulations and they did further acquiesce in and permit the false representations and certifications to be made and the exportations to be accomplished for ultimate transshipment to East Germany.

17. By such inaction and failure to perform their duties as officers and directors of Watford Chemical Corporation, they thereby did permit and cause to be made false representations and certifications in export control documents and they did further permit and cause to be committed transshipments, without permission of the Department of Commerce, of goods from England to Eastern Germany and Gdynia, Poland.

D. As to respondent Chris A. Watters. 18. Respondent Waters, during late 1951 and in 1952, was the general manager of and purchasing agent for Watford Chemical Corporation of New York City and he well knew that the commodities being purchased by or under his direction for Watford Chemical Corporation of New York or any of the other Wallersteiner respondents were being purchased for the purpose of supplying contracts which the Wallersteiner interests had with some firm or firms in Eastern Germany and he further knew that it was the intention that such purchases, upon arrival in England, were to be transshipped from there to Eastern Germany.

19. With such knowledge, the respondent Watters made arrangements for the shipment of goods, purchased by him in the United States, from the United States to Canada and for the reexportation thereof to England after their arrival in Canada.

20. Having made such arrangements, he permitted and caused to be made statements and certifications in shipper's export declarations certifying that the goods being exported thereunder were being purchased by one of the Wallersteiner companies in Canada and that Canada was the country of ultimate destination.

21. With such knowledge, he prepared and caused to be submitted to the Department of Commerce export license applications and ultimate consignee statements in support of applications for licenses to export goods from the United States, in which applications and ultimate consignee statements he represented and stated falsely that the goods described therein were being purchased by a firm or firms in England for use and consumption there.

22. Also, with such knowledge, he made purchases of goods from suppliers in the United States for exportation to England and concealed from such suppliers the fact that the goods so being purchased were being purchased by the Wallersteiner respondents with the intention to transship them out of England, and he caused and permitted to be executed export declarations necessary to support such exportations to England.

E. As to respondent Louis Vaughan. 23. During the latter part of 1951 and in 1952, Vaughan was the active manager of a forwarding firm in England and, during all that time, he well knew that the goods being purchased and acquired in the United States by or on behalf of the Wallersteiner interests were being purchased for the purpose of supplying a contract requiring shipment to an East German or Gdynia destination.

24. Respondent Vaughan knew that export control regulations restricted and controlled the movement and exportation of goods from the United States and that it was the policy of the United States during the times mentioned to deny and prohibit unauthorized exportations of goods from the United States, or unauthorized transshipments of such goods after exportation from the United States, to Communist destinations.

25. Respondent Vaughan had such knowledge, not only by reason of his general business, freight forwarding, but also by receiving and handling bills of lading on which were endorsed the required destination control notices which warned him that the goods shipped under such bills of lading to England were licensed only for exportation to England and that transshipment from there to other destinations, without permission from the United States, was a violation of United States law.

26. With such knowledge, he handled or directed all the transshipments of all the goods exported from the United States to the Wallersteiner respondents in England and transshipped or caused such goods to be transshipped to Eastern Germany or Gdynia, all without permission or authorization from the Department of Commerce.

And, the following are my conclusions:

A. That the respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation of New York, John Block and John Block & Company, Inc., Chris A. Watters,

George McKee Todd, and Herbert Shilton knowingly made or caused to be made false representations, statements, and certifications, and falsified and concealed or caused to be falsified and concealed material facts, for the purpose of effecting and inducing the issuance and maintenance in effect of export control documents, and effecting or causing to be effected exportations from the United States, in violation of § 381.1 (b) (1), (2), and (3) of the Export Regulations, as then in effect;

B. That the respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation of New York, Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., John Block and John Block & Company, Inc., Chris A. Watters, George McKee Todd, Herbert Shilton, and Louis Vaughan, diverted or caused to be diverted commodities, in violation of the terms, provisions, and conditions of export control documents, to countries other than those named in said documents, or attempted to do the same, in violation of § 381.1 (b) (3) (i) of the Export Regulations, as then in effect;

C. That the respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation of New York, Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., John Block and John Block & Company, Inc., George McKee Todd, Herbert Shilton, and Chris A. Watters exported or caused to be exported commodities from the United States to foreign destinations for which licenses authorizing such exportations had not been established or granted by the Department of Commerce, in violation of §§ 370.2 and 379.1 of the Export Regulations, as then in effect;

D. That the respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Corporation of New York, Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., John Block & Company, Inc., and Chris A. Watters exported or caused to be exported from the United States commodities to Canada with the knowledge and intention that they were to be reexported therefrom to another foreign destination, without there having been established or granted upon application a license authorizing the exportation thereof to the country of ultimate destination, in violation of § 370.3 of the Export Regulations, as then in effect;

E. That the respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation of New York, John Block and John Block & Company, Inc., George McKee Todd, Herbert Shilton, and Chris A. Watters exported or caused to be exported commodities from the United States under general license GRO or under validated licenses with the knowledge and intention that the commodities so exported were to be reexported from the named country of destination to other destinations, when such reexportations had not been authorized by the Department of Commerce, in violation of §§ 371.4 and 372.14 of the Export Regulations, as then in effect;

F. That the respondents, John Block and John Block & Company, Inc., prepared and procured bills of lading covering exportations of commodities with respect to which shipper's export declarations had been authenticated by a Collector of Customs containing the statement required by § 381.4 (c) of the Export Regulations, which bills of lading did not contain such statement, in violation of § 381.4 (c) of the Export Regulations, as then in effect;

G. That the respondents, William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., and Louis Vaughan, without prior written authorization from the Department of Commerce, and after notification by bills of lading of the prohibition against diversion prescribed in § 381.4 (c) of the Export Regulations, diverted or caused to be diverted commodities described in such bills of lading to countries not named in such notification, in violation of § 381.4 of the Export Regulations, as then in effect.

In making his recommendations, the Compliance Commissioner noted, among other things, that the Wallersteiner respondents had been denied export privileges to date for over twenty-one months in connection with these proceedings. He indicated also that his recommended dispositions with respect to respondents Todd and Shilton were exceptionally lenient because they were found responsible for the violations under a strict rule of corporation law.

Now, after careful consideration of the entire record and being of the opinion that the recommendations of the Compliance Commissioner are fair and just and that this order is necessary to achieve effective enforcement of the law: It is hereby ordered:

I. For the periods of time and in the manner hereinafter in this part provided, except as qualified in Part III hereof, the respondents hereby are denied all privileges of participating, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, in an exportation of any commodity or technical data from the United States to any foreign destination, including Canada, whether such exportation has heretofore or hereafter been completed:

William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation, Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd.—henceforth and for the duration of export controls;

Chris A. Watters—for three years from the date hereof;

Louis Vaughan and George McKee Todd—for one year from the date hereof;

Herbert Shilton—for nine months from the date hereof;

John Block and John Block & Company, Inc.—for six months commencing April 10, 1957.

Without limitation of the generality of the foregoing denials of export privileges, participation in an exportation is deemed to include and prohibit participation by any of the respondents, directly or indirectly, in any manner or capacity, (a) as a party or as a representative of a party to any validated export license application, (b) in the preparation or filing of any export license application or document to be submitted therewith, (c) in the obtaining or using of any validated or general export license or other export control documents, (d) in the receiving, ordering, buying, selling, delivering, using, or disposing in any foreign country of any commodities in whole or in part exported or to be exported from the United States, and (e) in financing, forwarding, transporting, or other servicing of such exports from the United States.

II. Such denials of export privileges, to the extent that any respondents may be affected thereby, shall extend not only to each of them, but also to any person, firm, corporation, or business organization with which any of them may be now or hereafter related by ownership, control, position of responsibility, or other connection in the conduct of trade in which may be involved exports from the United States or services connected therewith.

III. William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation, and Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., without further order of the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, shall have their export privileges restored to them conditionally, three years following the date hereof, the condition for such restoration being that during the three years following the date hereof the said respondents shall comply in all respects with this order and thereafter, so long as export controls shall be in effect, with all other requirements of the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, and all regulations, licenses, and orders issued thereunder.

IV. The privileges so conditionally restored to William Kurt Samuel Wallersteiner, Watford Chemical Company Ltd., E. Tingley & Son Ltd., Watford Chemical Corporation, and Watford Chemical Co. (Canada) Ltd., under Part III hereof, may be revoked summarily and without notice upon a finding by the Director of the Office of Export Supply, or such other official as may at that time be exercising the duties now exercised by him, that any such respondent at any time hereafter has knowingly failed to comply with the conditions set forth in Part III hereof, in which event Part I hereof, insofar as it shall apply to such respondent, shall then be and become effective so long as export controls shall be in effect, without thereby preventing the Bureau of Foreign Commerce from taking such other and further action based on such violation as it shall deem warranted. In the event that such supplemental order is issued, respondents and related parties involved therein shall have the right to appeal therefrom, as provided in the export regulations.

V. [Docket No. G–12157]

NATURAL GAS PIPELINE COMPANY OF AMERICA

ORDER SUSPENDING PROPOSED REVISED TARIFF SHEETS AND PROVIDING FOR HEARING

MARCH 8, 1957.

Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America (Natural), on Feburary 8, 1957, tendered for filing Fourth Revised Sheets Nos. 5 and 6 to its FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1, proposing that such revised tariff sheets become effective on March 11, 1957. Such revised tariff sheets would effect an increase in rates and charges under the First Block of Natural's Rate Schedule CD–1 of $5,366,000 annually, or 10.5 percent, based on adjusted sales for the year ended September 30, 1956. The proposed annual increase is in addition to the amounts of approximately $10,060,000 per year collected since March 2, 1955, subject to an undertaking to assure refund of excess charges in the proceeding in Docket No. G–3123. Hearings in Docket No. G–3123 have been concluded, the matter is now in the briefing stage of the administrative process, and, thus, is pending before the presiding examiner for initial decision.

The proposed increase is largely based on (1) so-called average weighted field price of gas at the wellhead in lieu of actual cost for Natural's own gas production, (2) a rate of return of 6½ percent, and (3) claimed increases in other operating expenses.

More specifically, the major adjustments, among others, include:

(a) An allowance of $6,035,531 for Natural's own production, based on a so-called average weighted field price of 9.67¢ per M. c. f. in the Panhandle Field of Texas. No showing is presented of the unit cost of Natural's own production as reflected by the books and records of the company as a basis of comparison.

(b) Return of $4,103,915 based upon a claimed rate of return of 6½ percent upon year-end rate base of $63,137,157, after exclusion of production and gasoline extraction properties, and which rate of return may not be fair and reasonable.

(c) Claimed income tax allowance of $3,620,852, of which Federal income taxes are estimated to be $3,595,682 and state income taxes, $25,170, associated with the claimed rate of return of 6½ percent.

(d) Treatment of Natural's gasoline extraction operations as non-jurisdictional and crediting claimed cost of service with an amount of asserted Btu loss in such operation of $607,641.

(e) Adjustment of purchased gas costs by a net of $562,417, including $152,000 in increased cost of gas purchased from Colorado Interstate Gas Company pursuant to rates and charges under suspension in Docket No. G–11717 as well as to reflect asserted and estimated changes in supply sources, prices and volumes, which may or may not occur.

(f) Use of a year-end rate base instead of an average net rate base, an adjustment which may not be proper.

The net effect of the adjustments results in a claimed cost of service for the test year of $56,707,171, of which $46,467,556 is allocated to the First Block of Natural's CD–1 sales. Natural proposes to recoup this amount by increasing the demand charge of the First Block of Rate Schedule CD–1 from $1.30 per Mcf per month to $1.44 and the commodity charge from 17.55 cents per Mcf to 19.94 cents.

The increased rates and charges proposed by Natural in Fourth Revised Sheets Nos. 5 and 6 to its FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1, have not been shown to be justified, and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory or preferential or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing, pursuant to the authority contained in section 4 of the Natural Gas Act, concerning the lawfulness of the rates, charges, classifications, and services of Natural's FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1, as proposed to be amended by Fourth Revised Sheets Nos. 5 and 6, and that said proposed revised tariff sheets be suspended as hereinafter ordered and the use thereof be deferred pending hearing and decision thereon, except as they may become effective as provided by the Natural Gas Act.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by sections 4, 15 and 16 of the Natural Gas Act, and the Commission's general rules and regulations, including rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR Ch. I), a public hearing be held at a time and place to be fixed by further order of the Commission, concerning the lawfulness of the rates, charges, classifications, and services, or any of them, subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission, of Natural's FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1, as proposed to be amended by Fourth Revised Sheets Nos. 5 and 6.

(B) Pending such hearing and decision thereon, Fourth Revised Sheets Nos. 5 and 6 to Natural's FPC Gas Tariff, First Revised Volume No. 1, be and the same are hereby suspended and their use deferred until August 11, 1957, and until such further time as they may be made effective in the manner prescribed by the Natural Gas Act.

(C) Interested State commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure.

By the Commission.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 2–11751]

GULF SULPHUR CORP.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION

MARCH 7, 1957.

Gulf Sulphur Corporation (Company) has filed an application under section 310 (b) (1) (ii) of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939 for a finding by the Commission that trusteeship of the Chase National Bank under an Indenture dated as of July 1, 1955 (1955 Indenture), which was heretofore qualified under the act, and trusteeship by The Chase Manhattan Bank under a proposed indenture to be dated as of December 15, 1956 (1956 Indenture) not to be qualified under the Act, is not so likely to involve a material conflict of interest as to make it necessary in the public interest or for the protection of investors to disqualify said Trustee from acting as such under the 1955 Indenture and the 1956 Indenture.

It appears to the Commission that:

1. The company proposes to issue $750,000 principal amount of the company's 6 percent Series C Convertible Debentures under the 1956 Indenture. The Chase Manhattan Bank would be the Trustee. The fifteen purchasers of these Debentures would take for investment rather than distribution. The 1956 Indenture will not be qualified under the act.

2. The 1955 Indenture provided for the issuance of $3,000,000 principal amount of the company's 5 percent Series A Convertible Debentures and $1,500,000 principal amount of its Series B Convertible Debentures. This Indenture was qualified under the act.

3. Both Indentures are wholly unsecured.

4. Aside from differences as to amounts, dates, interest rates, redemption prices and other procedural differences, most of the provisions of the two Indentures are alike.

5. The differences between the 1955 Indenture and the 1956 Indenture are not likely to involve a conflict of interest in the trusteeship.

Notice of the filing of the application having been duly given, the Company having waived hearing thereon, the Commission not having received a request for a hearing within the period specified in the notice of application and opportunity for hearing, and a hearing not appearing necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors:

It is ordered, That the application of Gulf Sulphur Corporation, pursuant to section 310 (b) (1) (ii) of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939 be, and it hereby is, granted.

By the Commission.

NOTICE OF FILING REGARDING ISSUE AND SALE BY SUBSIDIARIES OF PROMISSORY NOTES TO BANKS AND PARENT COMPANY

MARCH 8, 1957.

Notice is hereby given that a joint application-declaration has been filed with this Commission, pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("the act"), by New England Electric System ("NEES"), a registered holding company, and twenty-two of its public-utility subsidiary companies, namely, Amesbury Electric Light Company ("Amesbury"), Attleboro Electric Company ("Attleboro"), Central Massachusetts Gas Company ("Central Mass."), Essex County Electric Company ("Essex"), Granite State Electric Company ("Granite"), Haverhill Electric Company ("Haverhill"), Lawrence Electric Company ("Lawrence"), Lawrence Gas Company ("Lawrence Gas"), The Lowell Electric Light Corporation ("Lowell"), The Mystic Power Company ("Mystic"), Mystic Valley Gas Company ("Mystic Valley"), Northampton Electric Lighting Company ("Northampton"), Northampton Gas Light Company ("Northampton Gas"), North Shore Gas Company ("North Shore"), Northern Berkshire Electric Company ("Northern"), Norwood Gas Company ("Norwood"), The Pequot Gas Company ("Pequot"), Quincy Electric Company (Quincy"), Southern Berkshire Power & Electric Company ("Southern"), Suburban Electric Company ("Surburban"), Wachusett Gas Company ("Wachusett"), and Weymouth Light and Power Company ("Weymouth") (hereinafter collectively referred to as "the borrowing companies"). NEES and the borrowing companies have designated sections 7, 10 and 12 of the act and Rules U-42 (b) (2), U-43, and U-50 promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions, which are summarized as follows:

The borrowing companies propose to issue, from time to time but not later than June 30, 1957, unsecured promissory notes (a) to banks in the aggregate principal amount of $28,522,000 and (b) to NEES in the aggregate principal amount of $13,290,000 or a total of $41,812,000. Most of the proceeds of the notes will be employed to pay notes previously issued and which mature March 29, 1957, with new money requirements of the borrowing companies to June 30, 1957 estimated at $4,755,000. The maximum amount of the proposed notes to be outstanding at any one time (a) with banks will not exceed $28,522,000 and (b) with NEES will not exceed $13,365,000 and (c) with the total at all times limited to $34,527,000. Each of such notes will mature in not more than six months from the issue date thereof and will bear interest at the prime rate of interest charged by banks for similar notes at the time of issuance thereof. It is stated that the present prime rate of interest is 4 percent. With respect to any notes proposed to be issued by the borrowing companies to banks to prepay then outstanding notes payable to NEES, if the interest rate for the notes proposed to be issued exceeds the interest rate on the notes proposed to be prepaid, NEES will file an amendment to this statement setting forth the proposed amount of the note or notes and the proposed interest rate thereon, which amendment shall become effective in accordance with the procedure prescribed by Rule U-23 or Rule U-24 or such order as the Commission may issue pursuant to Rule U-20 (a) or Rule U-100. With respect to each note proposed to be issued by the borrowing companies to NEES to prepay then outstanding notes payable to banks, the interest rate will be the lower of (1) the interest rate on the note or notes being prepaid or (2) the prime interest rate at the time the new note is issued, but with respect to (1) only to the date of maturity of the prepaid note or notes and thereafter at the prime rate of interest at the issue date of the new note.

The following table shows for each borrowing company (1) the aggregate amount of notes proposed to be issued to banks and to NEES, and (2) the maximum amount of notes to be outstanding with banks and with NEES at any one time.

COLUMBIA GAS SYSTEM, INC.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED ISSUE AND SALE OF SHARES OF COMMON STOCK PURSUANT TO UNDERWRITTEN RIGHTS OFFERING

MARCH 8, 1957.

Notice is hereby given that The Columbia Gas System, Inc. ("Columbia"), a registered holding company, has filed a declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), designating sections 6 and 7 thereof and Rule U-50 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transaction, which is summarized as follows:

Columbia proposes to offer 1,675,415 shares of its authorized and unissued Common Stock without par value ("New Common Stock") to the holders of its outstanding shares of Common Stock. Such offer will give to such stockholders (a) the Primary Subscription Right to subscribe for shares of the New Common Stock on the basis of one share of the New Common Stock for each thirteen shares of Common Stock held of record as of the close of business on April 3, 1957; and (b) the Additional Subscription Privilege to subscribe for such number of shares of the New Common Stock as are not subscribed for through the exercise of Primary Subscription Rights, subject (in the event of oversubscription) to allocation based on the number of shares subscribed for pursuant to the Primary Subscription Right. Transferable warrants evidencing the Primary Subscription Right and the Additional Subscription Privilege will be issued to the stockholders on or about April 3, 1957. The subscription period will expire at 3:30 p. m. on April 22, 1957.

The price at which the New Common Stock will be offered to stockholders will be determined by Columbia on April 2, 1957, and will be not less than 85 percent of the closing price of the Common Stock on the New York Stock Exchange on April 1, 1957.

Fractional shares of the New Common Stock will not be issued. Columbia's agent will provide, without cost, facilities for the purchase of Rights (not exceeding 12) necessary to subscribe for one or more additional full shares of the New Common Stock or for the sale of Rights (not exceeding 12) in excess of those necessary to so subscribe.

The offer to stockholders will be underwritten, and Columbia proposes to publicly invite sealed bids on March 28, 1957, for the purchase at the subscription price of such shares of the New Common Stock as are not subscribed through the exercise of the Primary Subscription Right and the Additional Subscription Privilege ("Unsubscribed Shares"). The bids to be received will cover only the total compensation to be paid to the prospective bidders for their services in purchasing the Unsubscribed Shares.

This is described as the first step in Columbia's 1957 financing program. The net proceeds from the sale of the New Common Stock will be added to the company's general funds and, supplemented by cash to be generated from operations and additional public financing, will be used to make additional investments in subsidiary companies to aid in financing their 1957 construction program, estimated at approximately $84,000,000, and for other investments.

It is stated that no other Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transaction.

A statement of the fees and expenses to be incurred by Columbia in connection with said transaction will be supplied by amendment.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 25, 1957, at 5:30 p. m., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said declaration which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. (See also paragraph (b) of § 26.102 and paragraph (g) of § 26.103.)

All other determinations shall be upon the basis of the grain when free from dockage.

(b) Percentages. All percentages shall be upon the basis of weight. The percentage of dockage when equal to 1 percent or more shall be stated in terms of whole percent and when less than 1 percent shall not be stated. A fraction of a percent shall be disregarded.

Sample grade: Sample grade shall be wheat which does not meet the requirements for any of the grades from No. 1 to No. 5, inclusive; or which contains more than 16.0 percent of moisture; or which contains stones; or which is musty, or sour, or heating; or which has any commercially objectionable foreign odor except of smut or garlic; or which contains a quantity of smut so great that any one or more of the grade requirements cannot be applied accurately; or which is otherwise of distinctly low quality.

[1] The wheat in grades No. 1 and No. 2 of this class may contain not more than 5.0 percent and in grade No. 3 not more than 8.0 percent of shrunken and broken kernels.

(f) Grades and grade requirements for Mixed Wheat. (See also paragraph (h) of this section.) Mixed wheat shall be graded according to the numerical and Sample grade requirements of the class of wheat which predominates in the mixture, except that the factor "wheats of other classes" and the grade specifications for "No. 1 Heavy" shall be disregarded.

(g) Grade designation for all classes and subclasses of wheat. The grade designation for wheat shall include in the order named the number of the grade or the words "Sample grade," as the case may be; the word "Heavy" when applicable; the name of the applicable subclass, or in the case of Red Durum Wheat and Mixed Wheat the name of the class; the name of each applicable special grade; and when applicable the word "dockage" together with the percentage thereof. In the case of Mixed Wheat, the grade designation shall also include, following the name of the class, the name and approximate percentage of hard red spring, durum, red durum, hard red winter, soft red winter, and white wheat, if any, contained in the mixture.

(h) Special grades, special grade requirements, and special grade designations for wheat—(1) Tough wheat—(i) Requirements. Tough wheat shall be (a) wheat of any of the classes Hard Red Winter Wheat, Soft Red Winter Wheat, or White Wheat, or of the class Mixed Wheat in which wheat of any one of the classes Hard Red Winter Wheat, or Soft Red Winter Wheat, or White Wheat, predominates, which contains more than 14 percent but not more than 15.5 percent of moisture, and (b) wheat of any of the classes Hard Red Spring Wheat, or Durum Wheat, or Red Durum Wheat, or of the class Mixed Wheat in which wheat of any one of the classes Hard Red Spring Wheat, or Durum Wheat, or Red Durum Wheat, predominates, which contains more than 14.5 percent but not more than 16 percent of moisture.

(ii) Grade designation. Tough wheat shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such wheat if it were not tough, and there shall be added to, and made a part of, the grade designation, the word "Tough."

(2) Smutty wheat—(i) Requirements. Smutty wheat shall be wheat which has an unmistakable odor of smut or which contains balls, portions of balls, or spores, of smut in a quantity equivalent to more than 14 balls of average size in 250 grams of wheat.

(ii) Grade designation. Smutty wheat shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such wheat if it were not smutty and according to the methods described either in (a) or (b) of this subdivision.

(a) Smut dockage. The smut shall be be removed by scouring and the loss in weight of the wheat caused by the removal of the smut shall be calculated in terms of percentage based on the total weight of the grain when free from dockage. The percentage so calculated shall be stated in terms of half percent when smut dockage is present in a quantity equal to less than one percent, and in terms of whole percent when present in a quantity equal to one percent or more. A fraction of a half percent shall be disregarded when smut dockage is present in a quantity equal to less than one percent, and a fraction of a percent shall be disregarded when smut dockage is present in a quantity equal to one percent or more. The percentage of the smut dockage, so calculated and stated, shall be added to the grade designation, preceding the statement of dockage, if any.

(b) "Light Smutty" and "Smutty." (1) In the case of smutty wheat which has an unmistakable odor of smut, or which contains balls, portions of balls, or spores, of smut, in excess of a quantity equal to 14 balls but not in excess of a quantity equal to 30 balls of average size in 250 grams of wheat, there shall be added to and made part of the grade designation the words "Light Smutty"; and

(2) In the case of smutty wheat which contains balls, portions of balls, or spores, of smut, in excess of a quantity equal to 30 balls of average size in 250 grams of wheat, there shall be added to and made a part of the grade designation the word "Smutty."

(3) Garlicky wheat—(i) Requirements. Garlicky wheat shall be wheat which contains two or more green garlic bulblets, or an equivalent quantity of dry or partly dry bulblets, in 1,000 grams of wheat.

(ii) Grade designation. Garlicky wheat shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such wheat if it were not garlicky; and

(a) In the case of garlicky wheat which contains two or more but not more than six green garlic bulblets, or an equivalent quantity of dry or partly dry bulblets, in 1,000 grams of wheat, there shall be added to and made a part of the grade designation the words "Light Garlicky"; and

(b) In the case of garlicky wheat which contains more than six green garlic bulblets, or an equivalent quantity of dry or partly dry bulblets, in 1,000 grams of wheat, there shall be added to and made a part of the grade designation the word "Garlicky."

(4) Weevily wheat—(i) Requirements. Weevily wheat shall be wheat which is infested with live weevils or other insects injurious to stored grain.

(ii) Grade designation. Weevily wheat shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such wheat if it were not weevily, and there shall be added to and made a part of the grade designation the word "Weevily."

(5) Ergoty wheat—(i) Requirements. Ergoty wheat shall be wheat which contains more than 0.3 percent of ergot.

(ii) Grade designation. Ergoty wheat shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such wheat if it were not ergoty, and there shall be added to and made a part of the grade designation the word "Ergoty."

(6) Treated wheat—(i) Requirements. Treated wheat shall be wheat which has been scoured, limed, washed, sulfured, or treated in such a manner that the true quality is not reflected by either the numerical grade or the Sample grade designation alone.

(ii) Grade designation. Treated wheat shall be graded and designated according to the grade requirements of the standards applicable to such wheat if it were not treated, and there shall be added to and made a part of the grade designation a statement indicating the kind of treatment.

The foregoing standards supersede the official United States Standards for Wheat as amended August 2, 1954, and shall become effective June 15, 1957.

Chapter I—Federal Trade Commission

[Docket 6456]

PART 13—DIGEST OF CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS

NORTH AMERICAN ACCIDENT INSURANCE CO.

Subpart—Advertising falsely or misleadingly: § 13.260 Terms and conditions: Insurance coverage.

(Sec. 6, 38 Stat. 721; 15 U. S. C. 46. Interprets or applies sec. 5, 38 Stat. 719, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 45) [Cease and desist order, North American Accident Insurance Company, Chicago, Ill., Docket 6456, Feb. 20, 1957]

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission charging a corporation with main office in Chicago, doing a nationwide business selling accident and health insurance policies through an agency system composed of 2200 agents in all the States, with misrepresenting benefits and coverage of its policies in advertising in newspapers and mailing circulars and by radio.

Following hearings and submission of findings of fact and conclusions by all counsel, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist, from which both counsel filed cross-appeals. After hearing the matter on briefs and oral argument, the Commission on February 20 rendered its decision granting the appeal of counsel supporting the complaint, denying that of respondent, and directing modification of the initial decision in conformity with its opinion.

The order to cease and desist, as modified, is as follows:

It is ordered, That respondent, North American Accident Insurance Company, a corporation, and its officers, agents, representatives, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale and distribution in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of any accident, health, medical, hospital or surgical insurance policy, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication:

1. That any such policy may be continued in effect by the insured upon payment of stipulated premiums, indefinitely or for any stated time, unless full disclosure of any other provision or condition of termination contained in the policy is made conspicuously, prominently, and in sufficiently close conjunction with the representation as will fully relieve it of all capacity to deceive.

2. That no medical examination is required unless the respondent actually insures the policy holder without regard to his physical condition before, at, or after issuance of the policy; or otherwise representing that the condition of the insured's health at the time of the issuance of the policy will not be considered by the respondent in determining its liability thereunder, or that the respondent will not, as a claims practice, require proof of good health of the insured at the time of issuance of the policy.

3. That any policy provides for indemnification against disability or loss due to sickness or accidental injury unless a statement of all the conditions, exemptions, restrictions and limitations affecting the indemnification actually provided is set forth conspicuously, prominently, and in sufficiently close conjunction with the representation as will fully relieve it of all capacity to deceive.

By "Final Order", report of compliance was required as follows:

It is further ordered, That respondent, North American Accident Insurance Company, shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon it of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which it has complied with the order to cease and desist.

It is further ordered, That the initial decision of the hearing examiner, as modified herein, is hereby adopted as the decision of the Commission.

Issued: February 20, 1957.

By the Commission.[1]

Secretary.

MILK IN MUSKEGON, MICH., MARKETING AREA

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), public hearings, were held at Muskegon, Michigan, on August 28, 1956, pursuant to notice thereof issued August 7, 1956 (21 F. R. 5871) and at Kalamazoo, Michigan, on November 27, 1956, pursuant to notice thereof issued November 16, 1956 (21 F. R. 9144).

Upon the basis of evidence introduced at the August 28, 1956, hearing and the record thereof, the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, on December 20, 1956, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision. Notice of filing such recommended decision and opportunity to file written exceptions thereto were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 27, 1956 and January 12, 1957 (21 F. R. 10338; 22 F. R. 266). Upon the basis of evidence introduced at the November 27, 1956 hearing and the record thereof, the Acting Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service on January 15, 1957, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision. Notice of filing such recommended decision and opportunity to file written exceptions thereto was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 18, 1956 (22 F. R. 384).

The material issues of the August 28, 1956, hearing related to:

1. Expansion of the marketing area;

2. Pricing of Class I milk sold by handlers in an area regulated by another Federal order;

3. A review of the Class I differential over the basic formula price in regard to its alignment with the Detroit and Upstate marketing areas;

4. Changing the method of determining handler butterfat differentials; and

5. Modification of order provisions dealing with determination and application of bases.

The sole issue of the November 27, 1956, hearing related to pool plant qualifications as they pertain to a plant operated by a cooperative association. This decision will consider the issues of both hearings.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions are based on the evidence presented at the hearings and the records thereof:

1. Marketing area. The marketing area should be increased by ten townships to the south and to the east, which include the cities of Holland and Zeeland, Michigan. The proposal to include Oceana County and fifteen townships in Newaygo County to the north should be denied.

A proposal made by producers to add twelve townships in Ottawa County and eight townships in Allegan County, Michigan, was amended at the hearing to include only eight townships in Ottawa County and two townships in Allegan County. The ten township area for which evidence was offered to enlarge the marketing area represents an area in which plants of milk distributors serving the cities of Holland and Zeeland are located. The area proposed to be added is contiguous to the present marketing area and one in which presently regulated handlers and milk distributors serving Holland and Zeeland have an intermingling sales area. The additional area, including the cities of Holland and Zeeland which are only five miles apart, has a population of approximately 40,000. In addition to the regulated handlers serving the cities of Holland and Zeeland and this ten township area there are nine milk distributors located in or near the city of Holland and three milk distributors located in or near the city of Zeeland. These two cities are the principal metropolitan areas in this proposal to expand the marketing area. Milk distributors located in Holland and Zeeland are not only in competition with currently regulated handlers but compete with each other. A milk distributor in Zeeland distributes milk in both the cities of Holland and Zeeland as well as out in the ten township area.

Proponents of the proposal to expand the marketing area to include the cities of Holland and Zeeland and the ten township area represent the majority of producers now regulated by Order No. 85 and also represent the majority of dairy farmers, approximately 150, serving milk distributors in the area that would be added by this proposal to expand the marketing area. The milksheds of the present marketing area and the proposed expanded area overlap, particularly in Robinson, Allendale and Blendon townships.

Health regulations are substantially the same between the present marketing area and the proposed additional townships. The regulations of the State of Michigan provide a uniform minimum standard and these standards are modified only by somewhat more rigid requirements in a few localities. Competition by handlers under the order with milk distributors in the area proposed to be added is such as to indicate that there is substantially complete acceptance of milk for fluid use in any locality within the area. The area to be added is contiguous to the present marketing area and it is one within which distributors should be charged the same price for milk used in a given class as that paid by handlers in the presently regulated area.

The cooperative association representing a majority of dairy farmers in the area proposed to be added have been refused the opportunity to check butterfat tests and weights of milk of their members delivered to milk distributors that would be regulated under the enlarged area. Neither has there been an opportunity to represent their membership in the determination of bases assigned to individual dairy farmers. Milk distributors in this area are currently paying producers on a base and excess plan fully operated by them. Milk distributors, in the area to be added, have paid dairy farmers a surplus milk price for portions of milk delivered to them during the same period of time they purchased milk, other than from dairy farmers, paying as much as $5.18 per hundredweight while the dairy farmers supplying their needs received less than $4.50 per hundredweight. Although due and timely notice of the hearing of this matter was given, these milk distributors did not appear at the hearing. Thus no opposition was offered by them regarding the proposed market expansion which would bring them under regulation.

It is concluded, therefore, that the marketing area should be expanded to include Robinson, Allendale, Port Sheldon, Olive, Blendon, Park, Holland, and Zeeland townships in Ottawa County and Laketown and Fillmore townships in Allegan County, all in the State of Michigan.

Two handlers and the cooperative association representing a majority of the producers proposed the marketing area be expanded to include all of Oceana County and fifteen townships in Newaygo County, an area to the north and to the east of the presently defined marketing area. A similar proposal for inclusion of parts of Oceana and Newaygo Counties was made at the promulgation hearing of this order. Lack of data regarding the source of supply, sales in the area and competitive conditions in this area caused its omission from the marketing area. The current record reveals handlers regulated by the order are expanding their business in the area so proposed to be added. Marketing conditions in this area are stable. Two milk distributors are located at Hart in Oceana County and one at Fremont, Newaygo County. These distributors apparently pay prices comparable to those provided by this order.

Sales in the area so proposed are made by two handlers with plants in Grand Rapids as well as by Muskegon handlers and by dealers with plants in Ottawa and Newaygo Counties. Once such handler makes no sales in the presently defined marketing area and would be brought under partial regulation by the proposed expansion. The other Grand Rapids handler now sells in the Muskegon area and is partially regulated. The volume of this handler's sales in the marketing area as enlarged by this proposal would approach the 20 percent of total receipts at which full regulation becomes effective. Therefore, it was concurrently proposed that this percentage be increased if the marketing area were extended as proposed so that the handler now partially regulated might avoid possibility of full regulation.

The need for expansion to the north and to the east was not shown. Regulated handlers selling in this area are expanding their business, the returns of the relatively few producers to be added are no threat to the stability of the Muskegon market and a handler whose principal fluid milk business is in Grand Rapids might be fully regulated under the Muskegon order while the other Grand Rapids handlers would remain free of regulation or be only partially regulated. The request to expand the area to include Oceana County and fifteen townships in Newaygo County is therefore denied.

In view of the marketing area herein decided upon it is concluded that there is no need for changing the standard of distribution that determines full regulation of a plant under the order.

2. The pricing of Class I milk sold by handlers in an area regulated by another Federal order should not be changed.

The cooperative association representing a majority of producers requested that a handler selling Class I milk in another Federally regulated market be charged the higher of the Muskegon Class I order price or the Class I price in the other Federally regulated market for the Class I milk sold in the other area. The proponents would have the effectiveness of this provision postponed until a corresponding provision was effective in the other nearby Federal orders.

At present Muskegon handlers do not sell in other Federally regulated markets. Handlers in other regulated markets do not currently sell in the marketing area. In the enlarged marketing area provided elsewhere in this decision a handler regulated under another order markets packaged milk through Holland and Zeeland dealers.

The Class I milk prices of the Muskegon market have been in general alignment with the Detroit market as have Class I prices in the Upstate Michigan marketing area. Detroit and Upstate Michigan orders, the nearest competing marketing areas, do not obligate handlers to make payments similar to those provided by this proposal. The Detroit and Upstate orders furthermore provide location adjustments that allow for normal costs of movement of milk between markets; with the lack of such provisions in the Muskegon order, and the general alignment of Class I prices of both Upstate Michigan and this order with the Detroit market, adoption of this proposal is not justified.

3. No change in the Class I price differential should be made on the basis of this record. The present Class I differential of $1.17 was included in the Muskegon order at the time of its effective date (October 1953) and at that time reflected an alignment of Muskegon and Detroit prices at points where the supply areas for these two markets overlap. The Detroit Class I differential was then $1.43 in all months and a 26-cent location differential applied at the Detroit supply plant located nearest to the Muskegon marketing area.

Due to the supply-demand adjustment of the Detroit prices and some effects of the differing alternative basic formula prices, the Muskegon-Detroit, f. o. b. market price relationship, has not been a constant 26-cent difference. For the first year of the Muskegon order (October 1953–September 1954) the Detroit price averaged 2.5 cents more than the Muskegon price; for the next year 13 cents more, and for the year ending September 1956, 17.6 cents more (official notice is hereby taken of the price for August and September of 1956). With these price relationships, milk supplies in the Muskegon market have not increased as rapidly as have Detroit supplies. For the most recent twelve months of this three-year period Muskegon milk supplies were 3.5 percent greater than for the first twelve months, while Detroit supplies increased 7.3 percent in the same period. Over the three-year period Class I sales in Muskegon have increased more rapidly than milk supplies. For the first year of operation Muskegon supplies were 141 percent of Class I sales; for the second year 124 percent; and for the most recent year 126 percent.

Muskegon with the proposed expanded marketing area remains a comparatively small, well integrated market which in the main carries its own reserve of milk. Daily averages of receipts from producers have remained relatively stable since the order became effective October 1, 1953. The relationship of Class I sales to the total producer receipts the past two years has remained stable even though local conditions have provided at times, prices higher than those established by the order.

Producers offered testimony at the hearing in support of a substantial increase in the Class I milk price differential, from $1.17 to $1.45. In part they justified this proposal on a recent amendment of the Detroit order revising location adjustments so that the annual average of the Detroit Class I milk price differential applicable at one of the nearer Detroit supply plants is now $1.25 before the Detroit price is adjusted for supply-demand relationships. Alignment of Muskegon prices with Detroit on the basis of changes in the Detroit location adjustments accounts for only a relatively small portion of the increase producers propose. With respect to the remainder of the increase suggested they deny the necessity for alignment of Muskegon prices with those of Detroit supply plants as to level, seasonality, or supply-demand adjustment.

Milk supplies have admittedly been adequate for the normal needs of the Muskegon market and appear to have been in reasonably good balance with requirements. Producers oppose any automatic supply-demand adjustment of the price and point out characteristics of the Muskegon market which might make difficult an appropriate price adjustment by this means. In view of the relatively stable supply and sales relationships that have prevailed in the market for the past two years, this record fails to show a need for change in the pricing provisions. While the changed relationship with Detroit prices at nearby plants could result in shifting milk supplies from the Muskegon market, such a result is purely conjectural at this time. It is concluded that no change in the Class I price should be made on the basis of this record.

4. The method of determining handler and producer butterfat differentials should be changed.

The order now provides that handler and producer butterfat differentials shall be 7 cents for each one-tenth percent variation from 3.5 percent butterfat when the monthly average price of 92-score butter at Chicago is 60 to 64.99 cents. These butterfat differentials move by half-cent amounts for each full five cents variance in the price of 92-score butter at Chicago. Since, except for the first six months after the effective date of this order, the butter price has been in the 55 to 59.99 cents per pound range, the butterfat differentials have been 6.5 cents or from 0.118 to 0.108 times the butter value. The midpoint of this range is 0.113 times the butter value.

Producers proposed that these differentials be determined by using the price of 92-score butter at Chicago times 0.113. They further proposed that producer butterfat differentials be rounded to the nearest one-half cent and handler differentials be rounded to the nearest one-tenth of a cent.

Handler and producer butterfat differentials in the Detroit market, as a result of recent amendments, are determined by using the Chicago butter price times 0.113. The handler and producer butterfat differentials are rounded to one-tenth cent and one-half cent respectively.

The producers proposal should be adopted. Such a change will conform with the Detroit market and will keep butterfat values more closely related to the butter market.

5. Certain changes should be made in the provisions relative to determination and application of bases.

The provisions for payments to producers without established bases and those who elect to relinquish their bases should be simplified.

The order now provides that a new producer (or an old producer who elects to relinquish his base) shall establish a base by his deliveries in the first three full calendar months of his deliveries. A percentage of such deliveries (seasonally varied from 40 percent for May and June to 80 percent for August through December) then becomes the producer's base for payment until a regularly established base is effective. All producers establish new bases annually by their deliveries in the August–December period.

Payments to new producers during the three-month period in which a temporary base is established are at the base price for the same proportion of their deliveries as is used in computation of the temporary base, except that deliveries in the regular base forming period of August through December are paid for at the uniform price of the order.

It was proposed that the percentage adjustment of deliveries for January through April be reduced in amounts varying from 10 to 20 percent and that for July be increased 15 percent. It was also suggested that some simplification would result if payments during the August-December period to new producers were at base prices for the 80 percent of deliveries later used in computation of the interim base rather than at the uniform price.

Provisions for new producers to enter the market should be consistent with the primary purpose of the base plan to discourage seasonal fluctuation in the flow of milk to the market. Since new producers have no prior fall deliveries from which the seasonality of their deliveries may be gauged it is necessary that their payments be determined somewhat arbitrarily as contrasted with producers with established bases who are paid on the basis of their individual performance. If the provisions assume that new producers have average seasonality of deliveries their returns will be more favorable than those old producers with wider than average seasonal variation in production. Such producers will then elect to relinquish their bases in order to receive payment under the new producer provisions, and the effectiveness of the base plan will be diminished. It is therefore desirable that the provisions for new producers be such as to encourage them to enter the market when their supplies will not increase seasonal variation and likewise will be such as not to invite substantial numbers of old producers to relinquish their bases.

Change in the present order to provide some reduction in returns to new producers in the earlier months of the year and some increase in July returns will promote these objectives. It further appears that the objectives of the provisions can be retained, but many of the complex computations involved can be eliminated.

This can be accomplished by establishing bases only by deliveries in the regular base making period and paying new producers and old producers who relinquish their base at an adjusted uniform price. Since the uniform price presently computed represents approximately the return to the average producer with an established base an appropriate reduction for various months of the year will accomplish the same general objectives as the present plan without many of its complexities. The adjustment provided is stated as a percentage of the difference between the computed uniform price and the excess milk price in order that it may be equally applicable at all price levels. The adjustments set forth provide returns comparable to those that would result from adopting some of the proposed modifications of the present provisions. While a discount of approximately 5 to 6 cents (at present price levels) from the computed uniform price is provided for the months of August through December, for any three months of which payment at the full uniform price is presently provided, returns over the full five-month period approximates those presently provided. In view of the trend toward increased production per farm, new producers will not be disadvantaged with respect to old producers.

The probable effective date of the amendment increasing the marketing area requires provision for computation of bases for new producers whose milk becomes regulated by virtue of the area extension. Moreover, plants may become pool plants under circumstances where producers delivering to those plants have not established bases. This may be an extreme hardship on the producers and possibly also on the plant operator. It may also unduly limit the entry of new plants into the market. Consequently, provision should be made for computation of bases for producers at such plants on the basis of their deliveries in the preceding base forming months.

The order language should be clarified in regard to the transfer of jointly held bases so that it is clear that such transfers are limited to the joint holders of a base. This is the present intent of the order.

Proponents further requested that a producer who suffers the complete loss of his barn as a result of fire or windstorm may retain his base for a twelve-month period. This is designed to give opportunity for rebuilding both the barn and the herd, by the producer. The loss of a barn, and possible need of disposing of and rebuilding a herd, is a severe hardship and the producer should not also lose his base as now provided in the order if no deliveries are made to a handler for a 45 consecutive day period. It is concluded that a rebuilding period of a full year should be allowed.

A minor administrative change related to the operation of the base-excess payment plan should also be made. All orders that have market-wide pool provisions also provide an equalization fund. In determining uniform and base prices specific deductions per hundredweight are made from the total pool funds each month, with one-half of such funds returned to the fund the following month. This is an effective method of keeping this fund in proper alignment as the volume of milk varies and as the need for reserve varies. The present order provides for a deduction of not less than six cents nor more than seven cents in the determination of the uniform price and between four and five cents in the determination of the base price. Nearly all producers are paid for their milk at base and excess prices. Equity among producers requires that contributions to the reserve fund from base milk which normally represents somewhat less than the producers' entire deliveries, be at a rate at least equal to that for the uniform price applicable to the entire deliveries of producers for whom this method of payment is used. Use of the higher rate is required to maintain adequate reserve. It is concluded therefore the deduction in determining the base price should be not less than six cents nor more than seven cents.

6. Provision should be made for including in the definition of "pool plant" a plant operated by a cooperative association if a substantial percentage of the milk of producer members of such association is delivered to the pool plants of other handlers.

The Muskegon order presently limits pool plants to distributing plants from which 20 percent or more of total milk receipts is disposed of as Class I milk on routes in the marketing area, and to supply plants from which 20 percent or more of receipts from dairy farmers is moved to such distributing plants. Since the order first became effective in October 1953, the cooperative association representing 95 percent or more of the Muskegon producer milk supply has opened a milk receiving station without manufacturing facilities. This plant has so far qualified on the basis of movements of 20 percent or more of its receipts to the pool plants of other handlers.

Changes in marketing practices in the area threaten to jeopardize the pool qualification of this plant without change in the essential services and volume of milk supplied by the cooperative association operating the plant. This association supplies handlers' needs and assumes responsibility for milk in excess of such requirements. In the past, disposal of such surplus milk has largely been by diversion from farms to manufacturing plants. Disposal of surplus milk now requires assembly at the association receiving station and bulk delivery to manufacturing plants. The volume of receipts at the association plant is thereby increased considerably without change in the volumes of surplus milk handled by the association, and thus the percentage of receipts moved to other pool plants may be reduced below that required for qualification as a pool plant.

At the same time at least one handler is receiving his entire supply as bulk milk from the association plant. Other handlers draw upon the plant for emergency needs. If it were not for these supply functions of the plant it would make little difference whether or not the plant were defined as a pool plant. The milk diverted from other pool plants for surplus disposal could be pooled as milk diverted to a nonpool plant for the account of the association. Milk of producers received regularly in order to supply other plants could not fall in this category, however, and would be excluded from the pool if the plant were not a pool plant.

The qualifications for pool plant status are a means of establishing the identity of plants with the fluid milk trade of the market. In the Muskegon order a requirement that a substantial volume of the producer milk that a cooperative association represents, be delivered to the pool plants of other handlers provides adequate identification of the supply of the cooperative association to qualify a plant which such association may operate even though 20 percent of its receipts are not moved to other pool plants. Seventy-five percent of the association's supply, except for May and June, when 50 percent should apply, is an appropriate proportion to be delivered to the pool plants of other handlers as such identification. In addition it should be required that the association plant be approved by appropriate health authorities of the marketing area as a source of supply of milk for fluid use. The performance required of other plants makes such approval necessary, without specific requirement in the order.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act:

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply-demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings. Within the period reserved for filing exceptions to the recommended decision, exceptions were submitted on behalf of interested parties. These exceptions have been fully considered and to the extent to which the findings and conclusions of this decision are at variance with the exceptions, such exceptions are hereby overruled.

Determination of representative period. The month of December, 1956, is hereby determined to be the representative period for the purpose of ascertaining whether the issuance of amendments to the order regulating the handling of milk in the Muskegon, Michigan marketing area in the manner set forth in the attached amending order is approved or favored by producers who during such period were engaged in the production of milk for sale in the marketing area specified in such marketing order, as hereby amended.

Marketing agreement and order. Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled respectively, "Marketing Agreement Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Muskegon, Michigan Marketing Area," and "Order Amending the Order, as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Muskegon, Michigan Marketing Area," which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions. These documents shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and order have been met.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

This decison filed at Washington, D. C., this 12th day of March 1957.

[SEAL] EARL L. BUTZ,
Assistant Secretary.

Order[1] Amending the Order Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Muskegon, Michigan, Marketing Area

§ 985.0 Findings and determinations. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of each of the previously issued amendments thereto, and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), public hearings were held at Muskegon, Michigan, on August 28, 1956, and at Kalamazoo, Michigan, on November 27, 1956, upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Muskegon, Michigan, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(2) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds, and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(3) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

(4) All milk and milk products handled by handlers, as defined in this order, are in the current of interstate commerce or directly burden, obstruct, or affect interstate commerce in milk or its products; and

(5) It is hereby found that the necessary expenses of the market administrator for the maintenance and functioning of such agency will require the payment by each handler, as his pro rata share of such expense, 4 cents per hundredweight or such amount not exceeding 4 cents per hundredweight as the Secretary may prescribe, with respect to all receipts within the month of milk from producers and other source milk which is classified as Class I milk.

Order relative to handling. It is therefore ordered, That on and after the effective date hereof, the handling of milk in the Muskegon, Michigan, marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the aforesaid order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, as set forth below:

1. Delete § 985.5 and substitute the following:

§ 985.5 Muskegon, Michigan, marketing area. Muskegon, Michigan, marketing area referred to in this subpart as the "marketing area" means all territory, including but not limited to all municipal corporations within the boundaries of Muskegon County; Ottawa County, except Wright, Tallmadge, Georgetown and Jamestown townships; and Fillmore and Laketown townships in Allegan County; all in the State of Michigan.

2. Delete § 985.6 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 985.6 Pool plant. "Pool plant" means a plant (except one which is exempt pursuant to § 985.101):

(a) From which 20 percent or more of the total milk received at such plant during the month is disposed of in the marketing area as Class I other than to another pool plant;

(b) From which 20 percent or more of the total milk received from dairy farmers at such plant during the month is moved to pool plant(s) as described in paragraph (a) of this section; or

(c) Approved by an appropriate health authority of the marketing area as a supply of milk for fluid consumption and operated by a cooperative association, if 75 percent (50 percent for May and June) or more of the milk delivered during the month by producers who are members of such association is received at the pool plants of other handlers.

3. Delete § 985.53 and substitute the following:

§ 985.53 Handler butterfat differential. There shall be added to or subtracted from, respectively, the prices of milk for each class as computed pursuant to §§ 985.51 and 985.52 for each one-tenth of one percent variation in the average butterfat test of the milk in each class above or below 3.5 percent an amount equal to the average daily wholesale price per pound of Grade A (92-score) bulk creamery butter per pound at Chicago as reported by the U. S. D. A. during the month multiplied by 0.113 and the result rounded to the nearest one-tenth of a cent.

4. Delete § 985.65 and substitute therefor the following:

§ 985.65 Computation of the base milk price. (a) Multiply the total pounds of excess milk by the excess milk price for the month;

(b) Multiply the total amount of milk to be paid for at the adjusted uniform price by the adjusted uniform price pursuant to § 985.70 (b);

(c) Subtract the total values arrived at in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section from the total 3.5 percent value of all producer milk arrived at in § 985.62;

(d) Divide the resultant value by the total hundredweight of base milk; and

(e) Subtract not less than 6 cents nor more than 7 cents.

The resultant hundredweight price shall be the price of base milk of 3.5 percent butterfat content received at pool plants described in § 985.6.

5. Delete § 985.70 (b), (c), (d) and (e) and substitute therefor the following:

(b) A producer who has no base shall be paid until February 1 following the August–December period within which he establishes a base pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section at an adjusted uniform price determined by subtracting from the uniform price compuuted pursuant to § 985.63 the applicable percentage specified below of the difference between the uniform price and the excess milk price, rounded to the nearest cent:

	Percent
January, February, and March	30
April, May, and June	50
July	15
All other months	5

(c) A producer with a base, by notifying the market administrator that he relinquishes such base, may be paid pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section, beginning with the first day of the month in which such notification is received by the market administrator.

(d) When a plant first becomes a pool plant pursuant to § 985.6 bases for producers delivering to such plant may be established on the basis of deliveries of milk to such plant for the preceding August–December period certified by submission of delivery receipts or other evidence satisfactory to the market administrator.

6. Delete § 985.71 (b) (2) and (c) and substitute the following:

(2) Bases may be held jointly and if such joint holding is terminated the base may be divided among the joint holders as specified in writing to the market administrator.

[1] This order shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders have been met.

(c) A producer who does not deliver milk to a handler for 45 consecutive days shall forfeit his base except that a producer who suffers the complete loss of his barn as a result of fire or windstorm may retain his base without loss for twelve months.

7. Delete § 985.80 and substitute the following:

§ 985.80 Time and method of payment. On or before the 15th day after the end of each month each handler who received milk from producers or from a cooperative association shall pay for milk received during such month to each producer, or to a cooperative association for milk received from producers for the account of such association, the uniform price adjusted as provided in § 985.70 (b), or the base price for base milk and the excess price for excess milk, adjusted by the butterfat differential pursuant to § 985.81: Provided, That if by such date such handler has not received full payment for such month pursuant to § 985.84 he shall not be deemed to be in violation of this section if he reduces uniformly to all producers and cooperative associations his payments per hundredweight by a total amount not in excess of the reduction in payments due from the market administrator; however, the handler shall make such balance of payment uniformly to those producers to whom it is due on or before the date for making payments pursuant to this section next following that on which such balance of payment is received from the market administrator.

8. Delete § 985.81 and substitute the following:

§ 985.81 Producer butterfat differential. In making payments pursuant to § 985.80, the uniform price, base price and excess price shall be increased or decreased for each one-tenth of one percent of butterfat content in the milk received from each producer or a cooperative association above or below 3.5 percent, respectively, by an amount equal to the average daily wholesale price per pound of Grade A (92-score) bulk creamery butter per pound at Chicago as reported by the U. S. D. A. during the month multiplied by 0.113 and the result rounded to the nearest one-half cent.

TOLERANCES AND EXEMPTIONS FROM TOLERANCES FOR PESTICIDE CHEMICALS IN OR ON RAW AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES

RESIDUES OF DIPHENYL IN OR ON GRAPEFRUIT, LEMONS, AND ORANGES

On July 6, 1956, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5016) a notice of filing of a petition by Crown Zellerbach Corporation, 343 Sansome Street, San Francisco 19, California, requesting that the pesticide chemical diphenyl (biphenyl) be exempted from the requirement of a tolerance when it is applied as a postharvest treatment to grapefruit, lemons, and oranges.

The evidence in the petition shows that under the conditions proposed for use of the chemical, treated citrus contains less than 110 parts per million of diphenyl and that most of the residue occurs in the peel rather than in the pulp or juice of the fruit.

Because of the toxicity of diphenyl (chronic feeding studies do not show a no-effect feeding level for dogs above 1,000 parts per million or a no-effect feeding level for rats above 500 parts per million in the diet) and because the petition did not show what residues will occur in citrus treated by methods other than the one proposed in the petition, it was concluded to be in the interest of public health to establish a tolerance of 110 parts per million for residues of diphenyl in or on treated citrus fruits rather than to establish the exemption from the requirement of a tolerance which the petitioner requested.

After the order was published, but within the time limit specified in section 408 (d) (3) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, the petitioner requested that an advisory committee be appointed to consider the petition for an exemption and make recommendations to the Commissioner. The petitioner also requested a public hearing to take evidence on the objection to the establishment of the tolerance in lieu of the exemption.

The National Academy of Sciences was requested to designate members for an advisory committee and the petitioner was notified that the action on the public hearing would be deferred until the report from the advisory committee had been received. Before the advisory committee could be activated, the petitioner requested that activation be withheld and submitted a substantive amendment consisting of data on residues from additional methods of application of diphenyl to grapefruit, lemons, and oranges.

Following consideration of all the evidence presented in the petition, including the additional residue data submitted in the substantive amendment, it is concluded that it would not be in the interest of public health to exempt from the requirement of a tolerance all residues of diphenyl that might occur from all uses likely to prevail if no restrictions were placed upon such uses. Residues resulting from all methods of use described in the petition are adequately provided for by the tolerance of 110 parts per million. Consequently, the renewed request for the establishment of an exemption from the requirement of a tolerance for diphenyl is denied, and the tolerance of 110 parts per million for residues of diphenyl in or on grapefruit, lemons, and oranges established by § 120.141 (21 CFR 120.141; 21 CFR, 1956 Supp., 120.141) remains unchanged.

Any person who will be adversely affected by the foregoing order may, at any time prior to the thirtieth day from the effective date thereof, file with the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D. C., written objections thereto. Objections shall show wherein the person filing will be adversely affected by this order, specify with particularity the provisions of the order deemed objectionable and reasonable grounds for the objections, and request a public hearing upon the objections. Objections may be accompanied by a memorandum or brief in support thereof. All documents shall be filed in quintuplicate.

Effective date. This order shall be effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

2. Classification of the above-described lands by this order segregates them from all appropriations, including locations under the mining laws, except as to applications under the Small Tract Act and applications under the mineral leasing laws.

3. The lands lie at an elevation between 3,500 to 4,000 feet above sea level on the northwestern portion of the Little San Bernardino Mountains, about 2 to 4 miles south and west of the town of Yucca Valley, California. The Twenty-nine Palms Highway passes through the area, and access to the lands may be had via unimproved dirt roads which lead off this highway.

The lands in Section 6 are characterized by rough and steep topography. The slopes are irregular and vary from 5 to 40 percent in grade. The soil is sandy loam with the surface covered by rock outcroppings. The vegetative cover consists of Joshua tree, cholla cactus, pinon pine, and some annual grasses and forbs.

The topography of the lands in Section 8 is also rough and steep. The slopes range from about 5 to 20 percent in grade. The soil texture is sandy loam with scattered rock outcroppings exposed on the soil surface. The vegetation consists of Joshua tree, yucca, creosote bush, cholla cactus, pinon pine, bur sage, and some annual grasses and forbs.

The lands in Section 14 occupy rough and steep terrain, with slopes ranging from 5 to 20 percent in grade. The soil is sandy loam with rock outcroppings and rock cliffs scattered throughout the section. The vegetation consists of Joshua tree, cholla cactus, scrub oak, pinon pine, juniper, creosote bush, rabbit brush, and some annual grasses and forbs.

The land in Section 18 lies on a rough and broken terrain. The slopes are irregular, varying in grade from 10 to 30 percent. The soil is sandy loam. The vegetation consists mainly of Joshua tree and creosote bush with scattered growths of annual grasses and herbs.

4. The individual tracts are rectangular in shape, 330 x 660 feet in size, containing 5 acres, more or less. (The tracts in Section 6 are located in regular lots, 40 acres in size, and are described as aliquot parts of a lot.) The tracts will be subject to all existing rights-of-way and to rights-of-way for road purposes and public utilities as described below. All minerals in the lands will be reserved to the United States.

6. The above-described tracts, except those for which statutory preference claimants exercise their rights, will be sold at public auction at a public sale to be held at the Land Office, 5th Floor, Bartlett Building, 215 West Seventh Street, Los Angeles, Calif., at 10:30 a. m., on June 4, 1957. Each bid sent by mail must clearly show: (a) The full name and mailing address of the bidder; (b) Classification Order No. 529; (c) the legal description of the tract for which the bid is made, described in accordance with paragraph 4, of this order. [File No. 70-3561]

APPALACHIAN ELECTRIC POWER CO. ET AL.

ORDER GRANTING AND PERMITTING TO BECOME EFFECTIVE APPLICATION-DECLARATION REGARDING ISSUANCE OF BONDS BY SUBSIDIARY AT COMPETITIVE BIDDING AND CAPITAL CONTRIBUTIONS TO SUBSDIARY BY PARENT

MARCH 11, 1957.

In the matter of Appalachian Electric Power Company, Kanawha Valley Power Company, American Gas and Electric Company; File No. 70-3561.

American Gas and Electric Company ("American"), a registered holding company, and two of its public utility subsidiaries, Appalachian Electric Power Company ("Appalachian") and Kanawha Valley Power Company ("Kanawha"), have jointly filed an application-declaration and an amendment thereto pursuant to sections 6 (b), 9, 10, and 12 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and Rules U-42, U-45, U-46 and U-50 promulgated thereunder regarding the following proposed transactions.

Appalachian proposes to issue and sell at competitive bidding $29,000,000 aggregate principal amount of its First Mortgage Bonds ("New Bonds") — percent series, to be dated as of March 1, 1957, and to mature March 1, 1987. The interest rate on the New Bonds (which shall be expressed in a multiple of ⅛ of 1 percent, and the price to be paid to Appalachian, which shall be not less than 100 percent or more than 102¾ percent of the principal amount thereof, will be determined by competitive bidding.

American owns all of the 500 authorized and outstanding shares of common stock of Kanawha and had open account advances of $3,174,398 due from Kanawha as of December 31, 1956. It is proposed that, prior to or concurrently with the sale of the New Bonds, American make a capital contribution to Kanawha of its open account advances and thereafter make a capital contribution to Appalachian of the 500 shares of common stock of Kanawha owned by American. The common stock equity of Kanawha thus to be contributed to Appalachian will amount to $3,179,398, plus net income earned by Kanawha between December 31, 1956, and the date of the capital contribution. American also proposes, prior to or concurrently with the sale of the New Bonds, to make a cash capital contribution of $5,000,000 to Appalachian.

It is proposed that after the consummation of the transactions described above, Kanawha may, from time to time as cash is generated by depreciation accurals, pay cash dividends to Appalachian out of the capital surplus arising from the cancellation of its open account advances, such dividends to be treated by Appalachian as a reduction of its investment in Kanawha.

The proceeds of the cash capital contribution and sale of the New Bonds are to be applied by Appalachian, to the extent available, to the prepayment, without premium, of notes payable to banks. As of December 31, 1956, notes payable to banks were outstanding in the amount of $21,500,000, and it is expected that not to exceed $4,500,000 additional principal amount of such notes will be issued, making not in excess of $26,000,000 to be outstanding at the time of the issuance and delivery of the New Bonds. Any remaining proceeds will be added to Appalachian's treasury funds and will be applied to carry forward its present construction program, the cost of which is estimated for the calendar year 1957 to be $56,370,000.

Various aspects of the proposed transactions have been expressly authorized by the Virginia State Corporation Commission in which State Appalachian is organized and doing business and by the Public Service Commission of West Virginia and by the Tennessee Public Service Commission, in which States Appalachian is qualified to do business. No other State commission and no Federal commission other than this Commission has jurisdiction over the proposed transactions.

It is estimated that the fees and expenses to be paid by the company will aggregate $122,394 including legal fees to Simpson Thacher & Bartlett of $13,500, legal fees to Hunton, Williams, Gay, Moore & Powell of $5,000, and accounting fees to Niles and Niles of $2,500. Legal fees of Winthrop, Stimson, Putnam & Roberts, counsel for the purchasers of the New Bonds, will be paid by such purchasers and such fees are estimated to be $8,100.

Due notice having been given of the filing of said application-declaration in the manner prescribed by Rule U-23 (Holding Company Act Release No. 13397) and no hearing having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable standards of the Act and the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, that no adverse findings are necessary, and that the estimated fees and expenses are not unreasonable; and the Commission deeming it appropriate in the public interest and the interest of investors and consumers that said application-declaration as amended be granted and permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that said application-declaration as amended be, and hereby is granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rules U-24 and U-50.

By the Commission.

ORVAL L. DUBOIS,
Secretary.

PRODUCT DESCRIPTION, TYPES, AND GRADES

§ 52.3101 Product description. Sugarcane sirup is the clean, sound liquid product obtained by evaporating the juice of sugarcane without the removal of any of the soluble solids or by dissolving sugarcane concrete in water, and is produced and packed in accordance with good commercial practice.

§ 52.3102 Types of sugarcane sirup. The type of sugarcane sirup is not incorporated in the grades of the finished product since the type of sugarcane sirup, as such, is dependent upon the method of preparation and processing and, therefore, is not a factor of quality for the purpose of these grades. Sugarcane sirup may be prepared and processed as one of the following types:

(a) "Sulfured sugarcane sirup" means sugarcane sirup which is made by the sulfitation process and contains not more than 100 parts per million of sulfur dioxide.

(b) "Unsulfured sugarcane sirup" means sugarcane sirup which is not made by the sulfitation process.

(c) It is recommended that sugarcane sirup of these types contain not less than 74 percent, by weight, of soluble solids (74° Brix; 39.50° Baume').

(d) The maximum ash content recommended for the respective type of sugarcane sirup is given in Table No. 1 of this section.

TABLE NO. 1—RECOMMENDED MAXIMUM ASH CONTENT FOR THE RESPECTIVE TYPE OF SUGARCANE SIRUP

Type of sugarcane sirup:	Ash (percent)
Unsulfured	4.5
Sulfured	6.0

§ 52.3103 Grades of sugarcane sirup. (a) "U. S. Grade A" or "U. S. Fancy" is the quality of sugarcane sirup that possesses a good color; that possesses a good flavor; that is practically free from defects; that is practically clear; and that for those factors which are rated in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this subpart the score is not less than 90 points: Provided, That the sugarcane sirup may possess a reasonably good color and may be reasonably clear if the total score is not less than 90 points.

(b) "U. S. Grade B" or "U. S. Choice" is the quality of sugarcane sirup that possesses a reasonably good color; that possesses a reasonably good flavor; that is reasonably free from defects; that is reasonably clear; and that scores not less than 80 points when rated in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this subpart.

(c) "U. S. Grade C" or "U. S. Standard" is the quality of sugarcane sirup that possesses a fairly good color; that possesses a fairly good flavor; that is fairly free from defects; that is fairly clear; and that scores not less than 70 points when rated in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this subpart.

(d) "Substandard" is the quality of sugarcane sirup that fails to meet the requirements of U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard.

FILL OF CONTAINER

§ 52.3104 Recommended fill of container. The recommended fill of container is not incorporated in the grades of the product since fill of container, as such, is not a factor of quality for the purpose of these grades. It is recommended that each container be filled with sirup as full as practicable.

[1] Compliance with the provisions of these standards shall not excuse failure to comply with the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act.

FACTORS OF QUALITY

§ 52.3105 Ascertaining the grade—(a) General. In addition to considering other requirements outlined in the standards, the following quality factors are evaluated is ascertaining the grade of the product:

(1) Factors rated by score points. The relative importance of each factor which is rated is expressed numerically on the scale of 100. The maximum number of points that may be given each such factor is:

Factors:	Points
Color	30
Flavor	30
Defects	20
Clarity	20
Total score	100

§ 52.3106 Ascertaining the score for the factors which are rated. The essential variations within each factor which is rated are so described that the value may be ascertained for each factor and expressed numerically. The numerical range within each factor which is rated is inclusive (for example, "18 to 20 points" means 18, 19, or 20 points).

§ 52.3107 Color—(a) General. Color has reference to the color of sugarcane sirup when examined by means of the U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standards for sugarcane sirup. Information regarding these color standards may be obtained by writing to the Processed Products Standardization and Inspection Branch, Fruit and Vegetable Division, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

(b) (A) Classification. Sugarcane sirup that possesses a good color may be given a score of 27 to 30 points. "Good color" means that the color is bright and typical of sirup properly prepared and processed from sound, well matured sugarcane, and is equal to or lighter in color than U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standard No. 1 for sugarcane sirup.

(c) (B) classification. If the sugarcane sirup possesses a reasonably good color, a score of 24 to 26 points may be given. "Reasonably good color" means that the color is reasonably bright, and is equal to or lighter in color than U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standard No. 2 for sugarcane sirup.

(d) (C) classification. Sugarcane sirup that possesses a fairly good color may be given a score of 21 to 23 points. Sugarcane sirup that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly good color" means that the sugarcane sirup possesses a color that is equal to or lighter in color than U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standard No. 3 for sugarcane sirup.

(e) (SStd.) classification. Sugarcane sirup that fails to meet the requirements of the above paragraph (c) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 20 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.3108 Flavor—(a) General. The factor of flavor refers to the palatability of the sugarcane sirup and the effect on flavor of the method of preparation for the particular type of sugarcane sirup.

(b) (A) classification. Sugarcane sirup that possesses a good flavor may be given a score of 27 to 30 points. "Good flavor" means that the product possesses a good, characteristic flavor for the type of sugarcane sirup and is free from objectionable flavors, including but not limited to, objectionable flavors caused by scorching or fermentation or the presence of any foreign or disagreeable flavor or odor.

(c) (B) classification. If the sugarcane sirup possesses a reasonably good flavor, a score of 24 to 26 points may be given. Sugarcane sirup that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade B or U. S. Choice, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Reasonably good flavor" means that the product possesses a reasonably good, characteristic flavor for the type of sugarcane sirup and is free from objectionable flavors, including but not limited to, objectionable flavors caused by scorching or fermentation or the presence of any foreign or disagreeable flavor or odor.

(d) (C) classification. Sugarcane sirup that possesses a fairly good flavor may be given a score of 21 to 23 points. Sugarcane sirup that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly good flavor" means that the product possesses a fairly good flavor for the type of sugarcane sirup and is free from objectionable flavors, including but not limited to, objectionable flavors caused by scorching or fermentation or the presence of any foreign or disagreeable flavor or odor.

(e) (SStd.) classification. Sugarcane sirup that fails to meet the requirements of the above paragraph (d) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 20 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.3109 Defects—(a) General. Defects refers to the cleanliness of the product and the degree of freedom from harmless extraneous material, such as particles of fiber, carbon, or earthy material which may be in suspension or deposited as sediment in the container.

(b) (A) classification. Sugarcane sirup that is practically free from defects may be given a score of 18 to 20 points. "Practically free from defects" means that the appearance and edibility of the product are not affected by the presence of harmless extraneous matter or other material which may be in suspension or deposited as sediment in the container.

(c) (B) classification. If the sugarcane sirup is reasonably free from defects, a score of 16 or 17 points may be given. Sugarcane sirup that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade B or U. S. Choice, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Reasonably free from defects" means that the appearance and edibility of the product are not materially affected by the presence of harmless extraneous matter or other material which may be in suspension or deposited as sediment in the container.

(d) (C) classification. Sugarcane sirup that is fairly free from defects may be given a score of 14 or 15 points. Sugarcane sirup that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly free from defects" means that the appearance and edibility of the product are not seriously affected by the presence of harmless extraneous matter or other material which may be in suspension or deposited as sediment in the container.

(e) (SStd.) classification. Sugarcane sirup that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (d) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 13 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.3110 Clarity—(a) General. The factor of clarity has reference to the degree of freedom from fine particles of mineral matter, colloidal or amorphous material, or any other suspended matter that may affect the clarity, appearance, or edibility of the product.

(b) (A) classification. Sugarcane sirup that is practically clear may be given a score of 18 to 20 points. "Practically clear" means that the sugarcane sirup may contain not more than a trace of finely divided particles of suspended material which does not affect the appearance or edibility of the product.

(c) (B) classification. If the sugarcane sirup is reasonably clear a score of 16 or 17 points may be given. "Reasonably clear" means that the sugarcane sirup may contain finely divided particles of suspended material which does not materially affect the appearance or edibility of the product.

(d) (C) classification. Sugarcane sirup that is fairly clear may be given a score of 14 or 15 points. Sugarcane sirup that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C or U. S. Standard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly clear" means that the appearance or edibility of the sugarcane sirup may be materially but not seriously affected by the presence of finely divided particles of suspended material.

(e) (SStd.) classification. Sugarcane sirup that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (d) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 13 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

DEFINITIONS AND METHODS OF ANALYSIS

(b) Partially crystallized sugarcane sirup is liquefied by heating to approximately 54.4° C. (130° F.) and cooled to approximately 20° C. (68° F.) before ascertaining the color of the sirup by means of the U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standards for sugarcane sirup.

§ 52.3112 Application of U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standards in classifying the color of sugarcane sirup—(a) Sample containers. The sample containers for use in making the visual color determination, as set forth in this subpart, are cells of colorless optical glass or plastic, having an internal width of 3.175 mm. (⅛ inch) with outside dimensions of approximately 1 1/16 inches by 3½ inches.

(b) Comparator; viewing box. The comparator or viewing box for the entire color range in the visual comparison test is divided into five compartments. Each compartment is provided with openings approximately 1 5/16 inches square in the two parallel sides. The U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standards are mounted in a fixed position in the front openings of compartments 1, 3, and 5 of the two comparators, compartments 2 and 4 being adapted to receive the sample containers.

(c) Visual comparison test. The color of a sample of sugarcane sirup is compared with the U. S. D. A. permanent glass color standards in the following manner to determine its color classification:

(1) Place the sample of sugarcane sirup in a clean, dry sample container.

(2) Place the container filled with the sample of sugarcane sirup successively in compartments 2 and 4 of the comparator, and visually compare the color of the sample with that of each of the glass color standards by looking through them at a diffuse source of natural or artificial daylight.

§ 52.3113 Soluble solids; Brix value. Soluble solids means the solids content of sugarcane sirup or the Brix value as determined by the double dilution method by means of a Brix hydrometer corrected to 20° C. (68° F.).

§ 52.3114 Ash. Percent ash means the ash content of sugarcane sirup determined as sulfated ash as outlined in the Official Methods of Analysis of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists, Seventh Edition, 1950. Percent ash is calculated on the basis of the percent soluble solids content of the product and expressed as percent of sulfated ash with no deduction.

§ 52.3115 Sulfur dioxide, p. p. m. means the total sulfites determined by the Monier-Williams method, calculated as parts per million of sulfur dioxide (SO_2).

§ 52.3116 Reducing sugars. The percent, by weight, of reducing sugars is calculated on the basis of the percent of soluble solids. Reducing sugars are determined by the Lane-Eynon volumetric method for reducing sugars.

§ 52.3117 Sucrose. The percent, by weight, of sucrose is calculated on the basis of the percent of soluble solids. The determination may be made by the Clerget, or double polarization, method using invertase as the inverting agent, by Jackson-Gillis Method Number IV, or by the chemical method, before and after inversion.

§ 52.3118 Methods of analysis. The analysis indicated in this subpart shall be made in accordance with methods of analysis given in Official Methods of Analysis of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists or by any other means which give equivalent results.

LOT CERTIFICATION TOLERANCES

§ 52.3119 Tolerances for certification of officially drawn samples. (a) When certifying samples that have been officially drawn and which represent a specific lot of sugarcane sirup the grade for such lot will be determined by averaging the total scores of the containers comprising the sample, if, (1) all containers comprising the sample meet all applicable standards of quality promulgated under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and in effect at the time of the aforesaid certification; and (2) with respect to those factors which are rated by score points:

(i) Not more than one-sixth of the containers fails to meet the grade indicated by the average of such total scores;

(ii) None of the containers falls more than 4 points below the minimum score for the grade indicated by the average of such total scores;

(iii) None of the containers falls more than one grade below the grade indicated by the average of such total scores; and

(iv) The average score of all containers for any factor subject to a limiting rule is within the score range of that factor for the grade indicated by the average of the total scores of the containers comprising the sample.

Chapter VII—Commodity Stabilization Service (Farm Marketing Quotas and Acreage Allotments), Department of Agriculture

REVISION OF APPORTIONMENT TO STATES OF NATIONAL ACREAGE ALLOTMENT FOR 1957 CROP OF PEANUTS

Basis and purpose. The purpose of this document is to revise the apportionment of the 1957 national peanut acreage allotment among the several peanut-producing States previously made on November 9, 1956 (21 F. R. 8913). This revision is necessary because the reserve of 8,050 acres set aside for establishing 1957 peanut acreage allotments for new farms exceeds the requirements for this purpose and the unused acreage, which is 3,416 acres, is now available for apportionment. This document revises § 729.803 (21 F. R. 8915) to apportion this unused acreage to the States on exactly the same basis as the 1957 national acreage allotment was previously apportioned to the States.

Farmers in the southernmost areas of the United States will soon begin planting the 1957 crop of peanuts and farmers in the other peanut-producing areas of the nation are completing their plans for the production of peanuts in 1957. In order that the State and county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committees may apportion the additional acreage provided herein at the earliest possible date, it is essential that this revision of apportionment be made effective as soon as possible. Accordingly, it is hereby determined and found that compliance with the notice, public procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1001–1011) is impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and the revised apportionment of the national peanut acreage allotment among the peanut-producing States shall become effective upon filing of this document with the Director, Division of the Federal Register.

State:	1957 State acreage allotment
Alabama	218,429.9
Arizona	718.3
Arkansas	4,228.8
California	942.0
Florida	54,893.2
Georgia	525,729.6
Louisiana	1,967.0
Mississippi	7,573.0
Missouri	246.6
New Mexico	4,916.5
North Carolina	169,174.0
Oklahoma	137,615.7
South Carolina	13,772.3
Tennessee	3,571.5
Texas	355,819.9
Virginia	105,767.1
Total apportionment for old farms	1,605,366.0
Total apportionment for new farms	4,634.0
Total, United States	1,610,000.0

(b) The additional acreage hereby apportioned to each State shall be used for the purpose(s) specified in §§ 729.817 (b) (5), 729.818 and 729.822 of the Allotment and Marketing Quota Regulations for Peanuts of the 1957 and Subsequent Crops (21 F. R. 9370, 9760).

PART 730—RICE

SUBPART—REGULATIONS FOR ESTABLISHMENT OF FARM ACREAGE ALLOTMENTS AND NORMAL YIELDS FOR 1957 CROP OF RICE

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

The amendments herein are issued under and in accordance with the provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, to provide (1) clarification of the conditions under which rice produced for wildlife feed under contract with the Fish and Wildlife Service will not be classified as rice acreage, (2) authorization for the county committee to consider a producer's request for allocation of his preliminary rice acreage allotment to a farm if his reason for filing such request is for the purpose of filing a request for the preservation of his allotment for history purposes, (3) for adding a subparagraph with respect to the disposition of rice history acreage upon dissolution of a partnership, which was inadvertently omitted from the 1957 allotment regulations previously approved, and (4) for State committee approval of the release of rice acreage allotment by producers and the reapportionment of such acreage by county committees to farms.

Since rice producers are currently making plans for seeding their 1957 crop rice it is imperative that they be informed of the amendments herein as soon as possible. Accordingly, it is hereby found that compliance with the notice, procedure, and effective date provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) is impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and these amendments shall become effective upon the date of their publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

1. Section 730.811 (n) is amended by changing subparagraph (4) thereof to read as follows:

(4) any acreage planted to rice on specifically designated fields under a written contract which was or will be entered into prior to planting with the Fish and Wildlife Service for wildlife feed which was not or will not be harvested, provided prior to planting, a certified copy of such contract is filed with the county committee and such contract is approved by the county and State committees after determination that there is no intent by the producer in entering into the contract to defeat the purposes of the acreage allotment or marketing quota program, and

2. Section 730.817 is amended by changing the period at the end of paragraph (d) thereof to a comma and by adding the following: "or (3) he is requesting the allocation of his preliminary rice acreage allotment to the farm or farms for the purpose of requesting the preservation of his rice acreage allotment for history purposes."

3. Section 730.821 is amended by adding a new paragraph (c), as follows:

(c) The release of preliminary rice acreage allotments by producers and the reapportionment of such acreage by the county committee to farms shall not become effective until approved by the State committee or upon behalf of the State committee by the State administrative officer, program specialist, or farmer fieldman.

4. Section 730.822 is amended by adding a new paragraph (d), as follows:

(d) Upon dissolution of a partnership, the partnership's history of rice production shall be apportioned among the partners in such proportion as agreed upon in writing by the partners and approved by the State committee.

5. Section 730.830 is amended by adding a new paragraph (c) which reads as follows:

(c) The release of farm rice acreage allotments by producers and the reapportionment of such acreage by the county committee to other rice farms in the county shall not become effective until approved by the State committee or on behalf of the State committee by the State administrative officer, program specialist, or farmer fieldman.

TITLE 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

[Docket No. 11752; FCC 57-227]

[Rules Amdt. 3-59]

PART 3—RADIO BROADCAST SERVICES

TABLE OF ASSIGNMENTS, TELEVISION BROADCAST STATIONS

In the matter of amendment of § 3.606, Table of Assignments, Television Broadcast Stations (New Orleans, Louisiana-Mobile, Alabama; Beaumont-Port Arthur, Texas; Lake Charles, Louisiana; Lafayette, Louisiana; Houma, Louisiana).

1. The Commission has before it for consideration its Notice of Proposed Rule Making issued in this proceeding on June 26, 1956 (FCC 56-593) proposing to shift Channel 4 from New Orleans, Louisiana, to Mobile, Alabama, by making the following changes in the Table of Assignments for Television Broadcast Stations (§ 3.606 of the Commission's rules):

City	Channel No.
	Present	Proposed
Mobile, Ala	5, 10, *42, 48.	4, 5, 10, *48.
New Orleans, La	4, 6, *8, 20, 26, 32, 61.	6, *8, 20, 26, 32, 42, 61.

As a result of a motion filed by Loyola University, conditional grantee of Channel 4 in New Orleans, the Commission announced that it would also consider in this proceeding any proposal to delete from New Orleans Channel 6 as well as Channel 4. See Memorandum Opinion and Order of November 20, 1956 (released November 26, 1956) FCC 56-1159.

2. Included in the comments filed by interested parties were many counterproposals looking to the assignment of an additional VHF channel to New Orleans as a substitute for the Commission's proposal; (a) add Channel 11 at New Orleans as a "drop-in" or "squeeze-in";[1] (b) shift Channel 2 from Baton Rouge to New Orleans; (c) shift Channel 13 from Biloxi to New Orleans; (d) shift Channel 7 from Laurel-Pachuta, Mississippi to Pass Christian, Louisiana; and (e) add Channel 12 to New Orleans. Some parties suggested that the Commission either completely deintermix New Orleans by deleting Channel 6 as well as Channel 4, or, if that is not done, add an additional VHF channel or channels.

3. The proposal to add Channel 12 to New Orleans included the addition of Channel 12 to Beaumont-Port Arthur, Texas; Channel 3 to Lake Charles, Louisiana; and Channel 11 to Houma, Louisiana, all without disturbing allocations elsewhere. This proposal was advanced in reply comments filed jointly by WKRG, Inc., Mobile, Alabama; Laurel Television Company, Laurel, Mississippi; and KTAG Associates, Lake Charles, Louisiana. Since the interested parties had no opportunity to comment on this counterproposal, the Commission on January 18, 1957, released a Notice of Further Proposed Rule Making (FCC 57-62) in this proceeding, inviting comments on this jointly filed counterproposal and two conflicting petitions for changes in the Table of Assignments: (1) a petition filed August 7, 1956, by KTAG Associates requesting the assignment of Channel 3 to Lake Charles, Louisiana, and (2) a petition filed September 2, 1956, by Evangeline Broadcasting Company requesting the assignment of Channel 3 to Lafayette, Louisiana, and Channel 12 to Lake Charles. Comments and reply comments invited by the Notice of Further Proposed Rule Making have now been received, and the proceeding is ready for decision.

4. Comments in opposition to the Commission's proposal to shift Channel 4 to Mobile and the counterproposal to delete both Channel 6 and Channel 4 from New Orleans were filed by Loyola University, conditional grantee of a Channel 4 station in New Orleans; the Times-Picayune Publishing Company, unsuccessful applicant for Channel 4; WDSU Broadcasting Corporation, licensee of WDSU-TV, Channel 6, New Orleans; the City of New Orleans; and United States Representatives F. Edward Hebert and Hale Boggs, jointly. Comments in favor of the deletion of Channel 4 as proposed and the ultimate deletion of Channel 6 as well were filed by Supreme Broadcasting Company, WJMR-TV, Channel 20, New Orleans. American Broadcasting Company favored the addition of one or more VHF channels to New Orleans, but indicated consideration should be given to the alternative of making the city predominantly UHF. WWEZ Radio, Inc., permittee of WWEZ-TV (not constructed), Channel 32, New Orleans, supported deintermixture, but had no preference as to whether this should be accomplished by making New Orleans all VHF or all UHF. There were no comments from interested parties in the Mobile area favoring the shift of Channel 4 to Mobile, and WKRG-TV, Inc., licensee of WKRG-TV, Channel 5, Mobile, joined in the reply comments suggesting inter alia the addition of Channel 12 to New Orleans.

5. In response to the Notice of Further Proposed Rule Making a great variety of comments were received. WKRG-TV, Inc. (WKRG-TV, Channel 5, Mobile, Alabama), Pape Television Company, Inc. (WALA-TV, Channel 10, Mobile), Laurel Television Company, Inc. (permittee for Channel 7, Laurel-Pachuta, Mississippi), and St. Anthony Television Corporation, Houma, Louisiana, supported the assignments of Channel 12 to both New Orleans and Beaumont-Port Arthur, Channel 11 to Houma, and Channel 3 to Lake Charles.[2] Southern Television Corporation (WTOK-TV, Channel 11, Meridian, Mississippi) supported the assignment of Channel 11 to Houma. Television Broadcasters, Inc. (KBMT, Channel 31 (operation suspended), Beaumont) favored the assignment of Channel 12 to Beaumont-Port Arthur and requested that the Commission order it to show cause why its outstanding authorization for KBMT should not be modified to specify operation on Channel 12 in lieu of Channel 31. BMT-Tri-Cities Broadcasting Company, Beaumont, also supported the allocation of Channel 12 to Beaumont-Port Arthur, but opposed Television Broadcaster's request for a show-cause order. American Broadcasting Company (ABC) supported the assignment of Channel 12 to both New Orleans and Beaumont-Port Arthur. KTAG Associates (KTAG, Channel 25, Lake Charles) supported the assignment of Channel 3 to Lake Charles and requested that the Commission issue an order for it to show cause why its outstanding authorization for Station KTAG-TV should not be modified to specify operation on Channel 3 in lieu of Channel 25. Evangeline Broadcasting Company, licensee of a standard broadcast station in Lafayette, Louisiana, supported the assignments of Channel 12 to New Orleans, Channel 11 to Houma, and Channel 3 to Lafayette, and also proposed that Channel 12 be assigned to Beaumont-Port Arthur-Lake Charles.[3] This latter proposal was opposed by Television Broadcasters (KBMT, Beaumont).

6. Still another counterproposal was advanced by Calcasieu Broadcasting Company (KPLC-TV, Channel 7, Lake Charles), which supported the assignments of Channel 11 to Houma and Channel 12 to Beaumont-Port Arthur, but suggested that action on the assignment of Channel 12 to New Orleans and Channel 3 to Lake Charles be delayed until after action on the application for the move of the transmitter site of Station WLBT, Jackson, Mississippi (see footnote 3). Calcasieu proposed that Channel 13 be assigned to New Orleans by making the following changes in the Table of Assignments:

(a) Shift Channel 13 from Biloxi, Mississippi, to New Orleans;

(b) Shift Channel 9 from Hattiesburg, Mississippi, to Biloxi;

(c) Shift Channel 7 from Laurel-Pachuta, Mississippi, to Hattiesburg, leaving Laurel-Pachuta without an assigned channel.

This counterproposal was opposed by Laurel Television Company, Inc., permittee of Channel 7 at Laurel, and supported by Capitol Broadcasting Company (WJTV, Channel 12, Jackson, Mississippi). Of the New Orleans parties who participated, the Times-Picayune Publishing Company supported the Calcasieu proposal for the addition of Channel 13, while WSMB, Inc., licensee of a standard broadcast station, favored the assignment of Channel 12. Loyola University, conditional grantee of Channel 4, announced that it took no position as to which channel should be added. WWEZ Radio, Inc. (WWEZ-TV, Channel 32, not constructed) opposed the allocation of any VHF channels to New Orleans unless two channels could be assigned in addition to Channels 4 and 6. Supreme Broadcasting Company, Inc. (WJMR-TV, Channel 20, on the air) reaffirmed its previous position that New Orleans should ultimately be made all UHF, but requested that, if Channel 12 should be assigned, it be ordered to show cause why its authorization should not be modified to specify operation on Channel 12 in lieu of Channel 20.

7. The above recitation of the various proposals and comments thereon reveals a great variety of ideas as to how the television allocations in the New Orleans area could be improved. Although the New Orleans participants are apparently agreed that the assignments in the city should be either all VHF or all UHF, there is no unanimity even among the advocates on one side, and especially among those favoring VHF, as to how either course could best be accomplished. We have carefully considered all the proposals and the data and arguments submitted by the parties, and we have reached the conclusion that it would be more in the public interest to add an additional VHF channel, thus making New Orleans a predominantly VHF community, than it would to make New Orleans a UHF city by deleting one or both of the present VHF assignments.

8. New Orleans, by far the largest city in its general area, is rated as the nation's 23rd market. It has a population of 570,445, and a metropolitan area population of 685,405.[4] In area, the city is the third largest in the country with an area of 363.5 square miles, and the distance from its southwest to its northeast boundary is approximately 35 miles. Its metropolitan area covers approximately 1,769 square miles, and its normal trade area is still more extensive. We concluded in the Sixth Report and Order (paragraph 66) that, since VHF can effectively cover large areas, VHF channels should be assigned whenever possible to such a large metropolitan center as New Orleans. Only if the deletion of the presently assigned VHF channels and the assignment of additional UHF channels would make for a more fair, efficient and equitable distribution of the available facilities in New Orleans and other communities should we reverse that conclusion here.

9. The present allocations to New Orleans are Channels 4, 6, 8 (reserved for educational use), 20, 26, 32 and 61. There is a conditional grant for Channel 4, the conditions being that construction be not commenced pending the outcome of this rule making proceeding, and that, if the channel is deleted from the city, a UHF channel may be substituted therefor without the necessity of further proceedings. Channels 6 (WDSU-TV) and Channel 20 (WJMR-TV) are on the air. A noncommercial educational station (WYES) is reported as about ready to commence operation on Channel 8. Construction permits for Channels 26 (WCKG) and 32 (WWEZ-TV) have been issued, but the stations have not yet been constructed.[5] Construction permits for Channels 20 (WTLO) and 32 (WCNO-TV) have been deleted without the stations having gone on the air.[6] Thus, only one UHF station is presently operating in New Orleans, and there has never been any other UHF station operating in the city. The only other UHF station operating in the area is WAFB-TV, Channel 28, Baton Rouge, Louisiana,[7] 75 miles from New Orleans, and that station is controlled by the ownership of WDSU-TV in New Orleans. The city of New Orleans presently receives Grade B service from WBRZ, Channel 2, Baton Rouge, and will receive a second Grade B service (or the approximate equivalent) from a Channel 13 station at Biloxi, Mississippi (78 miles). Portions of the New Orleans trade area are served by KLFY-TV (Channel 10, Lafayette, Louisiana, 118 miles), WDAM-TV (Channel 9, Hattiesburg, Mississippi, 106 miles), and WKRG-TV and WALA-TV (Channels 5 and 10, Mobile, Alabama, 132 miles). The only other service presently available in New Orleans is that from its two local operating stations, WDSU-TV (VHF) and WJMR-TV (UHF). There has been no interest displayed in the activation of UHF allocations in such cities in the New Orleans area as Houma, Hammond, Franklin, Morgan City, and Thibodaux.

10. The New Orleans area is considered to be one of the most favorable areas in the country for UHF propagation. Yet, despite the relative scarcity of television signals (VHF or UHF) in the city and the fact that a UHF station (WJMR-TV) has been on the air since November 1953, sets have not been converted to receive UHF transmissions at as high a rate as in cities where we have determined VHF channels should be replaced by UHF assignments, for example, in Springfield and Peoria, Illinois, and Albany-Schenectady, New York.[8] Further, surveys have shown that viewers in the New Orleans area show a marked preference for the VHF station (WDSU-TV) and that the percentage of viewers who watch popular network shows on the UHF station (WJMR-TV) in New Orleans is much lower than in other cities where the same programs are presented on UHF stations with VHF competition.

[1] The Commission recently denied a petition by Loyola University for a change in the boundary between Zones II and III to permit the "drop-in" of Channel 11 at New Orleans. See Memorandum Opinion and Order of November 8, 1956 (FCC-56-1093).

[2] In a supplemental comment Pape Television Company expressed the view that the assignment of Channel 3 to Lafayette would be in the public interest, would be consistent with a fair, efficient distribution of facilities, and would not preclude the proposed assignments to New Orleans, Houma, and Beaumont-Port Arthur.

[3] Evangeline also requested that the boundary of Zone III be changed so as to permit both the assignment of Channel 3 to Lafayette and the grant of an application to move the transmitter site of Station WLBT, Channel 3, Jackson, Mississippi, in a southerly direction. Lamar Life Broadcasting Company (WLBT) and Gulfport Broadcasting Company, Inc. (WEAR-TV, Channel 3, Pensacola, Florida), which has a pending application to move its transmitter site in the direction of Jackson, supported Evangeline's request for a change in the boundary of Zone III.

[4] The population figures are derived from the United States Census for 1950. As of January 1, 1956, the city's population is estimated as 629,000, and the metropolitan area population as 801,000.

[5] The construction permit for WCKG was issued April 2, 1953; that for WWEZ-TV was issued September 26, 1956.

[6] Station WJMR-TV, formerly operated on Channel 61, but transferred to Channel 20 when the construction permit for WTLO was deleted on September 17, 1954. The construction permit for WCNO-TV was deleted March 10, 1955.

[7] There is an outstanding construction permit (issued July 18, 1956) for Channel 40 (WCNS) at Baton Rouge, and there is an application for operation on Channel 18. The permittee for Channel 40 has filed an application for modification of its authorization to specify operation on Channel 18.

[8] The most optimistic estimate as to the conversion rate in New Orleans is 75 percent, while estimates based on other surveys run from 60 percent to 72 percent. It must be stated, however, that the rate of conversion has been on the increase and that reportedly only all-channel receivers are at present being retailed in New Orleans.

Hence, it is clear that, from the standpoint of both the use made of the UHF allocations by broadcasters and of acceptance by viewers, New Orleans cannot be described as a UHF community.

11. The flat terrain in the vicinity of New Orleans is eminently favorable for the reception of UHF transmissions in the areas within line of sight distances, so that at distances up to 40 to 50 miles UHF stations can provide as good, if not better, service as VHF stations at similar power levels. However, inasmuch as UHF signals become significantly poorer beyond line of sight on smooth terrain, it is clear that under present conditions UHF stations could not provide satisfactory coverage of the large New Orleans trade area. Indeed, it appears that, if both Channels 4 and 6 were deleted from New Orleans, several thousand persons in southern Louisiana, now receiving service from WDSU–TV, would be deprived of their only television service, and that substantial portions of the northern segment of the New Orleans trade area would have to depend upon VHF stations in other cities for their television service. We conclude, therefore, that the best answer to the New Orleans problem is the assignment of additional VHF channels.

12. This conclusion may not be overcome, but rather is strengthened, by consideration of the use that could be made of Channels 4 and 6 elsewhere. The proposal set out in the original Notice of Proposed Rule Making in this proceeding was to shift Channel 4 to Mobile, Alabama, where two VHF stations are currently on the air. That city also receives a Grade B signal from a VHF station at Pensacola, Florida; will receive a Grade A signal if an application for change in the transmitter location of the Pensacola station is granted; and will receive another Grade B signal when a VHF assignmnet at Biloxi, Mississippi, is activated. Mobile is rated as the 82nd market and has a population of 129,009, with a metropolitan area population of 231,105. Plainly, under all the circumstances (see paragraphs 8–11), there is a greater need for Channel 4 at New Orleans than at Mobile. Moreover, in view of the size of Mobile and the services available to the city now and in the near future, and inasmuch as no party in this proceeding has evidenced any interest in making use of Channel 4 if it should be assigned to Mobile,* there is a strong likelihood that the channel would lie fallow if allocated to that city. With respect to Channel 6, minimum transmitter separation requirements would prevent the reallocation of that channel except in close proximity to New Orleans. Hence, a reallocated channel 6 station would in effect remain a New Orleans station, so that the competitive situation in New Orleans would not be improved. And the alternative of leaving the channel unassigned in the area, thus wasting a scarce VHF frequency, is not an appealing one.

13. Having concluded that we should assign additional VHF channels to New Orleans, we must decide whether the new VHF channel should be Channel 12 or Channel 13. The assignment of Channel 13 would permit greater flexibility in the location of a transmitter site, but would require the modification of an existing VHF authorization in Laurel, Mississippi to a UHF frequency and shifts from one VHF channel to another in two other communities (see paragraph 6). In one of these cities (Hattiesburg, Mississippi) the assigned VHF channel is in use. The modification of the outstanding authorizations would require time-consuming evidentiary hearing. The assignment of Channel 12 can be made without disturbing authorizations and for that reason is to be preferred if at all feasible.

14. It is pointed out that because of the necessity of maintaining a 190 mile separation from the transmitter site of co-channel Station WJTV in Jackson, Mississippi, the transmitter sites available for a New Orleans Channel 12 station would be severely limited. The assignment would require a transmitter site south of the city about 35 miles from the outer portion of the built-up area of New Orleans. Some parties point out that all of New Orleans could not possibly be covered with the required city grade signal from such a location, since the site would be at least 50 miles from the northeast city boundary. But New Orleans, because of its extremely large area, presents a special case as is demonstrated by the fact that in the granting of five authorizations for the city the Commission has waived the city grade signal requirement. Since the area which would not receive a city grade signal is largely swampland and sparsely populated, we would likewise waive the city grade signal requirement for a Channel 12 operation.

15. It now remains for us to consider the various proposals for the addition of VHF channels to other communities as set forth in the Notice of Further Proposed Rule Making. First considered is the proposal for the assignment of Channel 11 to Houma, Louisiana (population of 11,505), a growing community in the midst of activity in the oil industry. There has been no opposition to the proposed assignment. The most critical of the transmitter spacing requirements is the 60 mile separation from a New Orleans Channel 12 station. It appears that transmitter sites are available which would meet this and all other spacing requirements and from which the required city grade signal could be placed over Houma with reasonable power and antenna height. However, with the assignment of Channel 12 to New Orleans and Channel 11 to Houma, all parties concerned would have to cooperate on the selection of sites in order to provide both areas and communities with the best possible service.

16. The proposal to allocate Channel 12 to Beaumont-Port Arthur, Texas, presents no special problems. But we must consider this proposal in connection with proposals to allocate Channel 12 to Lake Charles, Louisiana or to Beaumont-Port Arthur-Lake Charles on a hyphenated basis. Neither of those proposals takes precedence over the allocation to Beaumont-Port Arthur. Beaumont-Port Arthur has a metropolitan area population of 185,507. It has two VHF and one UHF commercial assignments. The UHF assignment and one of the VHF assignments are in use, and the second VHF assignment is in hearing status. Lake Charles has a population of 41,272 and has two television stations in operation, one VHF and one UHF. Clearly, the assignment of Channel 12 to Beaumont-Port Arthur would better meet the requirement of section 307 (b) of the act for a fair, efficient and equitable distribution of the available facilities than would the assignment to Lake Charles.[10] In view of these same section 307 (b) considerations, the suggested hyphenated assignment to Beaumont-Port Arthur-Lake Charles would be an empty gesture insofar as Lake Charles is concerned. Even a proposal by a Lake Charles applicant to serve Beaumont-Port Arthur as well as Lake Charles would not change the result. For the two areas (Beaumont-Port Arthur and Lake Charles) are separate and distinct with no common interests, and the area in which a transmitter would have to be located in order to serve both communities lies in remote, uninhabited swampland unsuited for a transmitter site.

17. We have left the conflicting proposals for the assignment of Channel 3 to Lake Charles or Lafayette, Louisiana, about 70 miles apart. As we have previously stated, Lake Charles has a population of 41,272, and one VHF station (KPLC–TV) and one UHF station (KTAG–TV) are presently operating in the city. Lafayette has a population of 33,541 and a VHF station (KLFY–TV) is presently operating in the city. Each city has an unused UHF assignment for which no application has ever been made. The proponents of the allocation to Lake Charles assert that this would be the only way in which a second competitive service could be provided for the city. Those favoring the assignment to Lafayette assert that only by such assignment could a second service be brought to that area. Under present co-channel authorizations (KTBS–TV, Shreveport, Louisiana; WLBT, Jackson, Mississippi; KBTX, Bryan, Texas) suitable transmitter sites are available within 12 miles of Lafayette. The proponents of the assignment to Lake Charles assert that sites are available about 30 miles from the city from which a station could provide city grade service to Lake Charles with 100 kw power and an antenna height of 2,000 feet. The Lafayette party contends that such an operation would be inefficient and financially prohibitive, and that the site would meet with vigorous opposition from aviation interests. All these contentions are denied by the Lake Charles party. It is our view that the issue as to the proper assignment of Channel 3 can best be decided in an adjudicatory hearing, and we will assign the channel to Lafayette-Lake Charles.

18. We point out that there is pending before the Commission an application (BPCT–2271) for a change in the transmitter location of Station WLBT, Jackson, Mississippi, from a point in Zone II to a point a few miles within Zone III. This proposed operation of WLBT would require a co-channel transmitter separation of 220 miles, instead of 190 miles, and would conflict with the assignment of Channel 3 to either Lafayette or Lake Charles. All parties concerned have requested a change in the boundary between Zones II and III to eliminate this conflict and also a conflict between the WLBT application and a similar application for change in transmitter sites by WEAR–TV, Pensacola, Florida. We have made it clear in a number of previous decisions on proposals to change zone lines that we would not consider zone line changes merely for the purpose of accommodating particular channel assignments or authorizations.[11] We can accede to the requests for a change in the location of reference point (e) to a point about 5 miles south of its present location without doing violence to those decisions. In our Sixth Report and Order the location of reference point (e) was described as North Latitude 30°23'00", West Longitude 90°12'00". On petition for reconsideration by Lamar Life Broadcasting Company (WLBT), we amended the location of reference point (e) to North Latitude 30°05'00", West Longitude 90°38'30". Lamar Life Insurance Co., 8 RR 340a. At that time we deemed it reasonable to amend the zone line because, due to the irregularities in the Gulf Coast shore line near reference point (e) (the Louisiana Peninsula), the boundary of Zone III in this vicinity had been placed farther north, relatively, from the Gulf Coast than at any other part of the boundary. At that time reference point (e) was moved 33 miles to the south and 11 miles to the west, and we pointed out that the proposed new reference point would still be 22 miles farther north from the outermost extremity of the coast than any other reference point, and that adoption of the proposal would make the boundaries of Zone III more closely approximate the outline of the shore of the Gulf Coast. Similarly, the grant of the instant requests to move the reference point about 5 miles farther south would result in reference point (e) still being 17 miles farther north from the outermost extremity of the coast than any other reference point and the boundary of Zone III more closely approximating the outline of the shore.

19. In view of the foregoing: It is ordered, That effective April 20, 1957, §§ 3.609 and 3.699 of the Commission's rules are amended as follows:

1. Substitute the following coordinates for reference point (e) in § 3.609 (a) (3):

(e)	30°00'00"	90°38'30"

2. Delete Figure 2 of § 3.699 and substitute new Figure 2—March 1957 as set forth below.

20. It is further ordered, That effective April 20, 1957, § 3.606 Table of Television channel assignments with respect to the cities named, is amended, to read as follows: [12]

City	Channels
Houma, La	11, 30+.
Lafayette-Lake Charles, La	3.
New Orleans, La	4+, 6+, *8, 12, 20–, 26, 32+, 61.
Beaumont-Port Arthur, Tex	4–, 6–, 12–, 31+, *37.

21. Authority for the adoption of the amendments is contained in sections 1, 4 (i), and (j), 301, 303 (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), and (r), and 307 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act.

22. Supreme Broadcasting Company (WJMR–TV, Channel 20, New Orleans), KTAG Associates (KTAG–TV, Channel 25, Lake Charles) and Television Broadcasters, Inc. (KBMT, Channel 31, Beaumont) have each requested that, in the event of a VHF assignment being added to its community, it be ordered to show cause why its authorization should not be modified to specify operation on the newly added channel. Inasmuch as the amendments we have made require no changes in existing authorizations, the several requests for show cause orders are denied.

[F. R. Doc. 57-1877; Filed, Mar. 15, 1957; 8:45 a. m.]

* WKAB–TV operated on Channel 48 in Mobile from December 29, 1952, to August 1, 1954, and its construction permit was deleted on February 28, 1956. WALA–TV commenced operation on Channel 10 in Mobile on January 14, 1953; WEAR–TV began operation on Channel 3 in Pensacola on January 13, 1954; and WKRG–TV, Channel 5 in Mobile, went on the air August 29, 1955.

[10] For the same reason, insofar as the assignment of Channel 12 to New Orleans might be considered as foreclosing the assignment of the same channel to Lake Charles, we must prefer, to an even greater degree, the assignment to New Orleans.

[11] See Daily Telegraph Printing Co., 9 RR 1104a; Logansport Broadcasting Corp., 9 RR 1175; American Broadcasting Company, 11 RR 1552; Loyola University, 14 RR 1569.

[12] The Commission's public notice of February 26, 1957, Report No. 1 indicated that Channel 12— was to be added to New Orleans. Since we believe that the assignment of Channel 12 even to New Orleans would make for a better allocation, Channel 12 even is being added to New Orleans herein.

TITLE 14—CIVIL AVIATION

Chapter II—Civil Aeronautics Administration, Department of Commerce

[Amdt. 14]

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

The minimum en route IFR altitudes appearing hereinafter have been coordinated with interested members of the industry in the regions concerned insofar as practicable. The altitudes are adopted without delay in order to provide for safety in air commerce. Compliance with the notice, procedures, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act would be impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and therefore is not required.

Part 610 is amended as follows: (Listed items to be placed in appropriate sequence in the sections indicated.)

TITLE 31—MONEY AND FINANCE: TREASURY

Chapter II—Fiscal Service, Department of the Treasury

Subchapter C—Office of the Treasurer of the United States

PART 360—INDORSEMENT AND PAYMENT OF CHECKS DRAWN ON THE TREASURER OF THE UNITED STATES

CHECKS INDORSED BY AN ATTORNEY IN FACT; INCOMPETENT PAYEES

Part 360, Subchapter C, Chapter II, Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations of the United States of America (appearing also as Treasury Department Circular No. 21 (Revised) dated September 5, 1946, as amended) is hereby amended in the following respects:

1. By revising § 360.5 to read as follows:

§ 360.5 Checks indorsed by an attorney in fact. (a) Checks indorsed by an attorney in fact for the payee and presented for payment by a bank will be paid by the Treasurer without the submission to the Treasurer of documentary proof of the authority of the attorney in fact. A general power of attorney in favor of an individual, bank or other appropriate entity is acceptable as authority for the indorsement of checks issued for the following purposes:

1. Principal or interest on public debt obligations or obligations guaranteed by the United States.
2. Tax refunds.
3. Payments for goods and services.

(b) Other classes of checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States may be negotiated only under a specific power of attorney executed after the issuance of the check and describing it in full, except that such classes of checks may be negotiated also under a special power of attorney naming a bank as attorney in fact, limited to a period not exceeding twelve months and reciting that it is not given to carry into effect an assignment of the right to receive payment, either to the attorney in fact or to any other person. Powers of attorney are revoked by the death of the grantor and may also be revoked by notice from the grantor to the parties concerned. Notice of revocation to the Treasury will not ordinarily serve to revoke the power.

2. By revising § 360.6 to read as follows:

§ 360.6 Incompetent payees. (a) Where the payee of a check of any class not listed in § 360.4 (a) has been declared incompetent, the check should not be indorsed by a guardian or other fiduciary but, instead, should be returned to the drawer, or to the administrative office which authorized the issuance of the check, with information as to the incompetency of the payee and submission of documentary evidence showing the appointment of the guardian, in order that the particular check, and others to be issued subsequently, may be drawn in favor of the guardian. If a guardian has not been and will not be appointed the full circumstances should be stated.

(b) Checks of the classes listed in § 360.4 (a) indorsed by a guardian or other fiduciary and presented for payment by a bank will be paid by the Treasurer without the submission to the Treasurer of documentary proof of the authority of the guardian or other fiduciary. If a guardian has not been and will not be appointed, the check should be forwarded for advice to the Treasurer of the United States, Check Claims Division, Washington 25, D. C.

TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter III—International Regulatory Agencies (Fishing and Whaling)

Subchapter B—International Whaling Commission

PART 351—WHALING

REPUBLICATION OF REGULATIONS

Basis and purpose. Section 13 of the Whaling Convention Act of 1949 (64 Stat. 421, 425; 16 U. S. C., 1952 ed., 916k), the legislation implementing the International Convention for the Regulation of Whaling signed at Washington December 2, 1946, by the United States of America and certain other Governments, provides that regulations of the International Whaling Commission shall be submitted for publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER by the Secretary of the Interior. Regulations of the Commission are defined to mean the whaling regulations in the schedule annexed to and constituting a part of the Convention in their original form or as modified, revised, or amended by the Commission. The provisions of the whaling regulations, as originally embodied in the schedule annexed to the Convention, have been amended several times by the International Whaling Commission, the last amendments having been made in July 1956. The whaling regulations, as last amended in July 1956, have been edited to conform the numbering, internal references, and similar items to regulations of the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register but no changes have been made in the substantive provisions. The provisions of these regulations are applicable to nationals and whaling enterprises of the United States.

Amendments to the whaling regulations are adopted by the International Whaling Commission pursuant to Article V of the Convention without regard to the notice and public procedure requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1001). Accordingly, in fulfillment of the duty imposed upon the Secretary of the Interior by section 13 of the Whaling Convention Act of 1949, the whaling regulations published as Part 351, Title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, as the same appeared in 21 F. R. 4668, June 27, 1956, are amended and republished to read as hereinafter set forth.

ROSS LEFFLER,
Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

[1] This paragraph was objected to within the prescribed period ending November 7, 1954, by the Government of Iceland, and subsequently by that of Denmark. Neither objection was withdrawn and the paragraph came into force on February 24, 1955, but is not binding on Iceland and Denmark. It ceases to operate as from February 24, 1960.

whale catchers attached thereto under its jurisdiction one continous open season not to exceed six months out of any period of twelve months during which the taking or killing of minke whales by the whale catchers may be permitted: Provided, That:

(1) A separate open season may be declared for each factory ship and the whale catchers attached thereto:

(2) The open season need not necessarily include the whole or any part of the period declared for other baleen whales pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section.

(e) Each Contracting Government shall declare for all whale catchers under its jurisdiction not operating in conjunction with a factory ship or land station one continuous open season not to exceed six months out of any period of twelve months during which the taking or killing of minke whales by such whale catchers may be permitted.

§ 351.8 Catch quota for baleen whales. (a) The number of baleen whales taken during the open season caught in any waters south of 40° South Latitude by whale catchers attached to factory ships under the jurisdiction of the Contracting Governments shall not exceed fifteen thousand blue-whale units in any one season, provided that in the season 1956–57 the number shall not exceed fourteen thousand five hundred blue-whale units.

(b) For the purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, blue-whale units shall be calculated on the basis that one blue whale equals:

(1) Two fin whales or

(2) Two and a half humpback whales or

(3) Six sei whales.

(c) Notification shall be given in accordance with the provision of Article VII of the Convention, within two days after the end of each calendar week, of data on the number of blue-whale units taken in any waters south of 40° South Latitude by all whale catchers attached to factory ships under the jurisdiction of each Contracting Government; provided that when the number of blue-whale units is deemed by the Bureau of International Whaling Statistics to have reached 13,500 in the season 1955–56 and 13,000 thereafter, notification shall be given as aforesaid at the end of each day of data on the number of blue-whale units taken.

(d) It it appears that the maximum catch of whales permitted by paragraph (a) of this section may be reached before April 7 of any year, the Bureau of International Whaling Statistics shall determine, on the basis of the data provided, the date on which the maximum catch of whales shall be deemed to have been reached and shall notify the master of each factory ship and each Contracting Government of that date not less than four days in advance thereof. The killing or attempting to kill baleen whales by whale catchers attached to factory ships shall be illegal in any waters south of 40° South Latitude after midnight of the date so determined.

except that blue whales of not less than 65 feet (19.8 metres) and sei whales of not less than 35 feet (10.7 metres) in length may be taken for delivery to land stations, provided that the meat of such whales is to be used for local consumption as human or animal food.

(b) It is forbidden to take or kill any fin whales below 57 feet (17.4 metres) in length for delivery to factory ships or land stations in the Southern Hemisphere, and it is forbidden to take or kill fin whales below 55 feet (16.8 metres) for delivery to factory ships or land stations in the Northern Hemisphere; except that fin whales of not less than 55 feet (16.8 metres) may be taken for delivery to land stations in the Southern Hemisphere and fin whales of not less than 50 feet (15.2 metres) may be taken for delivery to land stations in the Northern Hemisphere provided in each case that the meat of such whales is to be used for local consumption as human or animal food.

The tape measure shall be stretched in a straight line parallel with the whale's body and read abreast the other end of the whale. The ends of the whale, for measurement purposes, shall be the point of the upper jaw and the notch between the tail flukes. Measurements, after being accurately read on the tape measure, shall be logged to the nearest foot, that is to say, any whale between 75 feet 6 inches and 76 feet 6 inches shall be logged as 76 feet, and any whale between 76 feet 6 inches and 77 feet 6 inches shall be logged as 77 feet. The measurement of any whale which falls on an exact half foot shall be logged at the next half foot, e. g. 76 feet 6 inches precisely shall be logged as 77 feet.

§ 351.10 Closed seasons for land stations. (a) It is forbidden to use a whale catcher attached to a land station for the purpose of killing or attempting to kill baleen and sperm whales except as permitted by the Contracting Government in accordance with paragraphs (b), (c), and (d) of this section.

(b) Each Contracting Government shall declare for all land stations under its jurisdiction, and whale catchers attached to such land stations, one open season during which the taking or killing of baleen (excluding minke) whales by the whale catchers shall be permitted. Such open season shall be for a period of not more than six consecutive months in any period of twelve months and shall apply to all land stations under the jurisdiction of the Contracting Government; provided that a separate open season may be declared for any land station used for the taking or treating of baleen (excluding minke) whales which is more than 1,000 miles from the nearest land station used for the taking or treating of baleen (excluding minke) whales under the jurisdiction of the same Contracting Government.

(c) [1] Each Contracting Government shall declare for all land stations under its jurisdiction and for whale catchers attached to such land stations, one open season not to exceed eight continuous months in any one period of twelve months, during which the taking or killing of sperm whales by the whale catchers shall be permitted, such period of eight months to include the whole of the period of six months declared for baleen whales (excluding minke whales) as provided for in paragraph (b) of this section; provided that a separate open season may be declared for any land station used for the taking or treating of sperm whales which is more than 1,000 miles from the nearest land station used for the taking or treating of sperm whales under the jurisdiction of the same Contracting Government.

(d) Each Contracting Government shall declare for all land stations under its jurisdiction and for whale catchers attached to such land stations one open season not to exceed six continuous months in any period of twelve months during which the taking or killing of minke whales by the whale catchers shall be permitted (such period not being necessarily concurrent with the period declared for other baleen whales, as provided for in paragraph (b) of this section); provided that a separate open season may be declared for any land station used for the taking or treating of minke whales which is more than 1,000 miles from the nearest land station used for the taking or treating of minke whales under the jurisdiction of the same Contracting Government.

Except that a separate open season may be declared for any land station used for the taking or treating of minke whales which is located in an area having oceanographic conditions clearly distinguishable from those of the area in which are located the other land stations used for the taking or treating of minke whales under the jurisdiction of the same Contracting Government; but the declaration of a separate open season by virtue of the provisions of this paragraph shall not cause thereby the period of time covering the open seasons declared by the same Contracting Government to exceed

[1] Section 351.10, paragraph (c) came into force as from February 21, 1952, in respect to all Contracting Governments, except the Commonwealth of Australia, who lodged an objection to it within the prescribed period, and this objection was not withdrawn. The provisions of this paragraph are not therefore binding on the Commonwealth of Australia.

(e) The prohibitions contained in this section shall apply to all land stations as defined in Article II of the Whaling Convention of 1946 and to all factory ships which are subject to the regulations governing the operation of land stations under the proivsions of § 351.17.

§ 351.11 Use of factory ships in waters other than south of 40° South Latitude. It is forbidden to use a factory ship which has been used during a season in any waters south of 40° South Latitude for the purpose of treating baleen whales, in any other area for the same purpose within a period of one year from the termination of that season.

§ 351.12 Limitations of processing of whales. (a) It is forbidden to use a factory ship or a land station for the purpose of treating any whales (whether or not killed by whale catchers under the jurisdiction of a Contracting Government) the killing of which by whale catchers under the jurisdiction of a Contracting Government is prohibited by the provisions of § 351.2, § 351.4, § 351.5, § 351.6, § 351.7, § 351.8 or § 351.10.

(b) All other whales (except minke whales) taken shall be delivered to the factory ship or land station and all parts of such whales shall be processed by boiling or otherwise, except the internal organs, whale bone and flippers of all whales, the meat of sperm whales and of parts of whales intended for human food or feeding animals.

(c) Complete treatment of the carcasses of "Dauhval" and of whales used as fenders will not be required in cases where the meat or bone of such whales is in bad condition.

§ 351.13 Prompt processing required. (a) The taking of whales for delivery to a factory ship shall be so regulated or restricted by the master of person in charge of the factory ship that no whale carcass (except of a whale used as a fender, which shall be processed as soon as is reasonably practicable) shall remain in the sea for a longer period than thirty-three hours from the time of killing to the time when it is hauled up for treatment.

(b) Whales taken by all whale catchers, whether for factory ships or land stations, shall be clearly marked so as to identify the catcher and to indicate the order of catching.

(c) All whale catchers operating in conjunction with a factory ship shall report by radio to the factory ship:

(1) The time when each whale is taken,

(2) Its species, and

(3) Its marking effected pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section.

(d) The information reported by radio pursuant to paragraph (c) of this section shall be entered immediately in a permanent record which shall be available at all times for examination by the whaling inspectors; and in addition there shall be entered in such permanent record the following information as soon as it becomes available:

(1) Time of hauling up for treatment,

(2) Length, measured pursuant to paragraph (d) of § 351.9,

(3) Sex,

(4) If female, whether milk-filled or lactating,

(5) Length and sex of foetus, if present, and

(6) A full explanation of each infraction.

(e) A record similar to that described in paragraph (d) of this section shall be maintained by land stations, and all of the information mentioned in the said paragraph shall be entered therein as soon as available.

§ 351.14 Remuneration of employees. Gunners and crews of factory ships, land stations, and whale catchers, shall be engaged on such terms that their remuneration shall depend to a considerable extent upon such factors as the species, size and yield of whales taken and not merely upon the number of the whales taken. No bonus or other remuneration shall be paid to the gunners or crews of whale catchers in respect to the taking of milk-filled or lactating whales.

§ 351.15 Submission of laws and regulations. Copies of all official laws and regulations relating to whales and whaling and changes in such laws and regulations shall be transmitted to the Commission.

§ 351.16 Submission of statistical data. Notification shall be given in accordance with the provisions of Article VII of the Convention with regard to all factory ships and land stations of statistical information (a) concerning the number of whales of each species taken, the number thereof lost, and the number treated at each factory ship or land station, and (b) as to the aggregate amounts of oil of each grade and quantities of meal, fertilizer (guano), and other products derived from them, together with (c) particulars with respect to each whale treated in the factory ship or land station as to the date and approximate latitude and longitude of taking, the species and sex of the whale, its length and, if it contains a foetus, the length and sex, if ascertainable, of the foetus. This data referred to in (a) and (c) above shall be verified at the time of the tally and there shall also be notification to the Commission of any information which may be collected or obtained concerning the calving grounds and migration routes of whales. In communicating this information there shall be specified:

(1) The name and gross tonnage of each factory ship;

(2) The number and aggregate gross tonnage of the whale catchers;

(3) A list of the land stations which were in operation during the period concerned.

§ 351.17 [2] Factory ship operations within territorial waters. (a) A factory ship which operates solely within territorial waters is one of the areas specified in paragraph (c) of this section, by permission of the Government having jurisdiction over those waters, and which flies the flag of that Government shall, while so operating, be subject to the regulations governing the operation of land stations and not to the regulations governing the operation of factory ships.

(b) Such factory ship shall not, within a period of one year from the termination of the season in which she so operated, be used for the purpose of treating baleen whales in any of the other areas specified in paragraph (c) of this section or south of 40° South Latitude.

(c) The areas referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section are—

(1) On the coast of Madagascar and its dependencies;

(2) On the west coasts of French Africa;

(3) On the coasts of Australia, namely on the whole east coast and on the west coast in the area known as Shark Bay and northward to North-west Cape and including Exmouth Gulf and King George's Sound, including the Port of Albany.

§ 351.18 Definitions. (a) The following expressions have the meanings respectively assigned to them, that is to say:

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

[39 CFR Parts 37, 47]

POSTAGE REFUNDS; FORWARDING POSTAGE

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

The following are amendments proposed to be made by the Department to the regulations in Part 37 and Part 47 of Title 39, Code of Federal Regulations, respecting postage refunds and forwarding postage, respectively.

The regulations relate to a proprietary function of the Government, and therefore are exempted from the rule making requirements of section 1003 of Title 5, United States Code. However, it is the desire of the Postmaster General to voluntarily observe the rule making requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act in matters of this kind, and to afford patrons of the Postal Service an opportunity to present written views concerning the proposed amendments. Such written views may be submitted to E. A. Riley, Director, Division of Mail Classification, Bureau of Post Office Operations, Post Office Department, Washington 25, D. C., at any time prior to April 15, 1957.

1. Section 37.2 Refunds is amended to read as follows:

§ 37.2 Refunds—(a) Conditions that justify refund. (1) When postage or special service fees have been paid on mail for which no service is rendered, or collected in excess of the lawful rate, a refund may be made.

(2) The Postal Service is considered to be at fault and "no service is rendered" in cases involving returned articles improperly accepted in both domestic and international services because of excess size or weight.

(3) The responsibility for proper enclosing, packing, and sealing of international mail rests with the sender, and no liability for returned articles will be assumed for defects not observed at the time of mailing.

(4) Mailers who customarily weigh and rate their mail are expected to be familiar with basic requirements and the Postal Service is not considered to be at fault when these mailers are required to withdraw articles from the mail prior to dispatch.

(5) See paragraphs (c) (2) and (f) of this section for special provisions for refunding the postage value of unused meter stamps.

(b) Application. Submit an application on Form 3533 (Application and Voucher for Refund of Postage and Fees), in duplicate, to the postmaster together with the envelope or wrapper, or the portion thereof having names and addresses of sender and addressee, canceled postage and postal markings, or other evidence of payment of the amount of postage and fees for which refund is desired.

(c) Amount of refund allowable. (1) Refund of 100 percent will be made:

(i) When the Postal Service is at fault.

(ii) For the excess when postage or fees have been overpaid the lawful rate.

(iii) When service to the country of destination has been suspended.

(iv) When postage is fire-scarred while in the custody of the Postal Service, including fire in letter box, and the mail is returned to sender without service.

(v) When special-delivery stamps are erroneously used in payment of postage, and the mail is returned to the sender without service.

(vi) When fees are paid for special delivery, special handling and certified mail, and the article fails to receive the special service for which the fee has been paid.

(vii) When surcharges are erroneously collected on domestic registered mail or collected in excess of the proper amount, or represented by stamps affixed to matter not actually accepted for registration.

(viii) For fees paid for return receipts or for restricted delivery when the failure to furnish return receipt or its equivalent, or erroneous delivery, or nondelivery, is due to fault or negligence of Postal Service.

(ix) For annual bulk mailing fee when no bulk mailings of third-class matter are made during the year for which the annual fee has been paid.

(x) When customs clearance and delivery fees are erroneously collected.

(xi) When fees are paid for registry or insurance service on mail addressed to a country to which such services are not available, unless claim for indemnity is made.

(2) Refund of 90 percent shall be made:

(i) When it is determined that there is no fault or negligence attributable to the Postal Service.

(ii) When complete and legible unused meter stamps are submitted within 1 year from the dates appearing in the stamps. See paragraph (f) of this section.

(3) When mail is returned at the request of the sender or for a reason not the fault of the Postal Service, any difference between the amount paid and the appropriate domestic air or surface rate chargeable from mailing office to interception point and return will be refunded.

(4) On articles prepaid at airmail rates but actually transported by surface means, the difference between the postage computed at the airmail and surface rates is refundable. The fact that surface transportation was used must be confirmed.

(5) One-half of an original second-class application fee will be refunded if the application is not approved. See § 22.3 (e) of this chapter.

(d) Unallowable refunds. No refund will be made:

(1) For an application fee to use permit imprints.

(2) For registered, insured, and c. o. d. fees after the mail has been accepted by the post office even though it is later withdrawn from the mailing post office.

(e) Meters. The postage value of unused units set in a meter surrendered to the post office to be checked out of service may be refunded or, if desired, an equivalent amount will be transferred to another meter used by the same license holder. If the meter is withdrawn from service because of faulty mechanical operation, a final postage adjustment or refund may be withheld pending report of the meter manufacturer of the cause of faulty operation. If the meter is damaged by fire, a refund or transfer of postage will be made only if the registers are legible, or can be reconstructed by the meter manufacturer.

(f) Meter stamps—(1) What to submit. (i) Unused meter stamps that are complete and legible accompanied by an application, in duplicate, on Form 3533 within 1 year from dates appearing in the stamps, will be considered for refund. Arrange the stamps so that all of one denomination are together.

(ii) If portion of stamp is printed on one envelope or card and remaining portion on another, fasten the two together to show that the two portions represent one stamp.

(iii) Meter stamps printed on labels or tapes which have not been stuck to wrappers or envelopes must be submitted loose.

(iv) Refunds are allowable for stamps on metered reply envelopes only when it is obvious that an incorrect amount of postage was printed thereon.

NON-ISSUANCE OF REVISED STANDARDS

A notice of proposed rule making was published in the April 24, 1956, issue of the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 2627) concerning the issuance of revised United States Standards for Grades of Comb Honey, pursuant to the authority contained in the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 1087, as amended, et seq.; 7 U. S. C. 1621 et seq.).

This notice provided a period until December 31, 1956, for all persons to submit written data, views, or arguments for consideration in connection with the proposed amendment. An extension until February 28, 1957, of the period within which such data, views, or arguments could be filed was published July 9, 1956, in the FEDERAL REGISTER (21 F. R. 5236).

In consideration of data, views, and arguments which have been filed with the Chief, Processed Products Standardization and Inspection Branch, Agricultural Marketing Service, and all relevant matters presented pursuant to such notice, it has been concluded that it would not be desirable to issue the proposed standards at this time.

MILK IN KANSAS CITY-TOPEKA MARKETING AREA (PRESENTLY GREATER KANSAS CITY AND TOPEKA, KANSAS, MARKETING AREA)

HEARING ON PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENTS AND ORDERS, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held at the Bellerive Hotel, 214 East Armour, Kansas City, Missouri, beginning at 10 a. m., on April 2, 1957, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreements and orders, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Great Kansas City, and Topeka, Kansas, marketing areas.

The public hearing is for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to the economic and marketing conditions which relate to the proposed amendments, hereinafter set forth, and any appropriate modifications thereof, to the tentative marketing agreements, and orders, as amended.

The proposals to redesignate the Greater Kansas City marketing area to include the Topeka, Kansas, marketing area and substantial additional territory contemplates suspension of all provisions of Order No. 80, with a merger of the marketing service funds, administrative funds, and producer-settlement funds upon the adoption of such redesignation. These proposals raise the issue as to whether the present provisions of Order No. 13 regulating the handling of milk in the Greater Kansas City marketing area would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the Act if applied to the marketing area as proposed to be redesignated and extended and if not, what modifications of the order, in effect, should be made to effectuate the declared policy of the Act.

The proposed amendments, set forth below, have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

By Pure Milk Producers Association:

Delete § 913.6 and amend to read as follows:

§ 913.6 Kansas City-Topeka marketing area. "Kansas City-Topeka marketing area" hereinafter called "marketing area" means all of the territory in Jackson County, Platte County, Clay County and Cass County, all in the State of Missouri; Leavenworth County, Wyandotte County, Johnson County, the City of Lawrence and all of Douglas County, the City of Topeka and all of Shawnee County, and the City of Emporia and all of Lyon County, all in the State of Kansas.

By Shawnee County Milk Producers Association:

2. Delete § 913.6 of Federal Order No. 13 and amend to read as follows:

§ 913.6 Kansas City-Topeka marketing area. "Kansas City-Topeka marketing area" hereinafter called "marketing area", means all of the territory in Jackson County, Platte County, Clay County, and Cass County, all in the State of Missouri; Leavenworth County, Wyandotte County, Johnson County, the City of Lawrence and all of Douglas County, the City of Topeka and all of Shawnee County, the City of Emporia and all of Lyon County, and the City of Manhattan and all of Riley County, all in the State of Kansas.

By Fairmont Foods Company:

3. To the counties already listed in the State of Kansas, add "Morris County" as part of the marketing area.

By Pure Milk Producers Association and Shawnee County Milk Producers Association:

4. Amend § 913.10 by deleting paragraph (b) and substitute the following:

(b) Which during any delivery period of August through January transfers in bulk to a plant described in paragraph (a) of this section an amount of milk equal to fifty (50%) percent or more of such plant's receipts of milk from dairy farmers qualified to become producers (as defined in § 913.7) less any milk regularly disposed of as Class I on routes. Any such plant which is a pool plant in each of the delivery periods of August through January shall be a pool plant in each of the following delivery periods of February through July, regardless of the quantity of milk then disposed of to other pool plants, if a written request for pool plant status for such six-month period is received from the operator of such plant by the market administrator before February 1, or.

5. Amend § 913.11 (b) by adding the following:

(3) The milk of members of such cooperative association collected by bulk tank when it is transferred from one pool plant to another pool plant during any delivery period.

By DeCoursey Tastemark Dairy:

6. Amend such provisions in the order as are necessary to permit shrinkage allowance at Class 2 cost on inter-handler transfers to the extent shown below:

a. To the receiving handler of producer milk at a pool plant or receiving station, allow up to one-half of one percent shrinkage at Class 2 cost on the pounds of skimmed milk and butterfat sold in bulk form to another handler.

b. To the transferee handler, allow up to one and one-half percent shrinkage at Class 2 cost on the pounds of skimmed milk and butterfat purchased in bulk form from another handler.

By Pure Milk Producers Association and Shawnee County Milk Producers Association:

7. Amend § 913.44 (c) and (d) as follows:

(c) As Class I milk if transferred or diverted in the form of milk, skim milk or cream to a nonpool plant located more than 200 miles from the closest point in the marketing area by the shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, except that (1) cream so transferred may be classified as Class II milk if its utilization as Class II milk is established through the operation of another Federal order for another milk marketing area; or (2) cream so transferred with prior notice to the market administrator, and with each container labeled or tagged with a certificate of the transferor that such cream is sold as "Grade C cream for manufacturing only", may be classified as Class II milk, subject to such verification of alternate utilization as the market administrator may make.

(d) As Class I milk, if transferred or diverted in the form of milk, skim milk or cream to a nonpool plant located not more than 200 miles from the closest point in the marketing area by shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, unless the market administrator is permitted to audit the records of receipts and utilization at such nonpool plant, in which case the classification of all skim milk and butterfat received at such nonpool plant shall be determined and the skim milk and butterfat transferred from the pool plant shall be allocated to the highest use remaining after subtracting, in series beginning with Class I milk, receipts of skim milk and butterfat as such nonpool plant directly from dairy farmers who the market administrator determines constitute the regular source of supply for fluid usage of such nonpool plant in markets supplied by such plant.

8. Amend § 913.51 (a) to provide for a supply demand adjustment that will result in less erratic fluctuation of the Class I price.

9. Consider the level of Class II pricing provided under § 913.51 (b).

10. Amend § 913.53 as follows:

§ 913.53 Location adjustment to handlers. (a) For milk which is received from producers at a pool plant located more than 55 miles by shortest highway distance, as determined by the market administrator from the City Hall in either Kansas City, Missouri, Lawrence, Kansas, Topeka, Kansas, or Emporia, Kansas, whichever is closer, and which is classified as Class I milk, the price computed pursuant to § 913.51 (a) shall be reduced by sixteen (16¢) cents if such plant is located more than 55 miles but not more than 70 miles from such City Hall and by an additional one-half (½) cent for each ten miles or fraction thereof that such distance exceeds 70 miles.

(b) In case such pool plant is operated by a handler who also has a plant in the marketing area, milk moved to such plant in the marketing area shall be considered to be Class I milk to the extent that the Class I milk disposed of from such plant in the marketing area exceeds receipts of milk from producers at such plant in the marketing area: Provided, That, if such handler has two or more pool plants to which location adjustments apply, then milk so classified as Class I milk shall be deemed to have been transferred from such pool plants in the order of their distance from the closest of such City Halls in Kansas City, Lawrence, Topeka, or Emporia.

(c) Location adjustments on milk transferred as Class I milk from a pool plant to the pool plant of another handler shall apply only to that portion of such milk which is not in excess of the amount by which the total Class I sales of the receiving handler are greater than the total receipts of such handler from producers.

11. Amend § 913.63 by deleting paragraph (c) and substitute the following:

(c) Milk diverted by a cooperative association from a pool plant to another milk plant for the account of such cooperative association shall be deemed to have been received by such cooperative association at a pool plant at the same location as the pool plant from which such milk was diverted.

12. Amend § 913.71 (f) to conform to proposed amendment to § 913.53.

13. Amend § 913.72 (f) and (i) to conform to proposed amendment to § 913.53.

14. Amend § 913.81 as follows:

§ 913.81 Location adjustment to producers. In making payments to producers, pursuant to § 913.80 (a), for milk received at a pool plant located 55 miles or more from the City Hall in either Kansas City, Missouri, Lawrence, Kansas, Topeka, Kansas, or Emporia, Kansas, whichever is closer, by shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, there shall be deducted sixteen (16) cents per hundredweight of milk for distances of 55 to 70 miles, inclusive, plus an additional one-half (½) cent for each additional ten miles or fraction thereof in excess of 70 miles.

By Bates County Milk Producers Association:

15. To amend § 913.81, Order No. 13, to read as follows:

§ 913.81 Location adjustment to producers. In making payments to producers, pursuant to § 913.80 (a), for milk received at a pool plant located 50 miles or more from the City Hall in Kansas City, Missouri, by shortest highway distance as determined by the market administrator, there shall be deducted 10 cents per hundredweight of milk for distances of 50 to 70 miles, inclusive, plus an additional one-half cent for each additional 10 miles or fraction thereof in excess of 70 miles.

By Dairy Division, Agricultural Marketing Service:

16. Increase the time available to the market administrator between the filing of reports by handlers and the announcement of the uniform price.

17. Make such other changes as are necessary to make the order conform with any amendments thereto as may result from the hearing.

Copies of this notice of hearing and of the order as now in effect may be obtained from the market administrator, Room 297, Plaza Theatre Building, 231 West 47th Street, Kansas City 12, Missouri, or from the Hearing Clerk, Room 112, Administration Building, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., or may be there inspected.

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 13th day of March 1957.

Acting Deputy Administrator.

GRACE LINE, INC., ET AL

NOTICE OF HEARING ON APPLICATIONS TO BAREBOAT CHARTER DRY-CARGO VESSELS

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held pursuant to section 5 (e) of the Merchant Ship Sales Act, 1946, as amended (Public Law 591, 81st Cong., 50 U. S. C. App. 1738), on March 28, 1957, in Chicago, Illinois, at a time and place to be announced, upon the application of Grace Line, Inc., to bareboat charter four (4) N3-S-A2 type vessels to be used in trade between Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River ports and the Caribbean. Grace Line, Inc., seeks operating-differential subsidy for operation of these vessels in this service, and its petition for a determination under section 211 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 U. S. C. 1121), that this route is an essential trade route is being considered by the Maritime Administrator.

Documents expressing desires for charter of N3-S-A2 type vessels for use on Trade Route 32 have been received from:

Isbrandtsen Company, Inc., 8 vessels;
United States Lines Company, 8 vessels;
T. J. McCarthy Steamship Company, 4 vessels; and Einar H. Crown, 2 vessels.

All of these applicants seek operating-differential subsidy for operation of these vessels. If any of these applicants request, within seven (7) days from publication hereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER, the applications will be considered in these proceedings. Prerequisite to consideration of any application to charter is receipt of an application substantially in the forms prescribed in General Order 60 (See 46 CFR 299.31, 299.80 and 299.81) which must be filed before, and made available at, the hearing.

The purpose of the hearing is to receive evidence with respect to whether the services for which such vessels are proposed to be chartered are required in the public interest and are not adequately served, and with respect to the availability of privately owned American-flag vessels for charter on reasonable conditions and at reasonable rates for use in such services. Evidence will be received with respect to any restrictions or conditions that may be necessary or appropriate to protect the public interest in respect of such charters as may be granted and to protect privately owned vessels against competition from vessels chartered as a result of this proceeding. All persons having an interest in the applications will be given an opportunity to be heard if present.

An Examiner from the Hearing Examiners' Office will preside at the hearing which will be conducted in accordance with the Board's rules of practice and procedure, and an initial decision will be issued.

PETER MEYNS AND PETER MEYNS & CO.

APPEALS BOARD DECISION

In the matter of: Peter Meyns, Peter Meyns & Co., Gertrudenkirchhof 10, Hamburg 1, Germany; Appeals Board Docket No. FC-36; B. F. C. Case No. 207.

Peter Meyns, doing business under the firm name and style of Peter Meyns & Company, of Hamburg, Germany, hereinafter referred to as the appellant, has appealed from the order revoking export licenses and denying export privileges issued April 10, 1956 by John C. Borton, Director, Office of Export Supply, Bureau of Foreign Commerce. (21 F. R. 2415 April 13, 1956).

The appellant was allowed an extended time by the Appeals Board to submit documentation in support of his appeal.

Preceding, during, and following a hearing on the record at which appellant, although given ample opportunity, did not appear and was not represented by counsel, the Appeals Board examined the record closely, questioned counsel for the Bureau of Foreign Commerce in the interest of the appellant's defense, and finds that the order from which the appeal was taken is supported by the record.

Therefore, the Board finds that the appellant, as stated in the order, with knowledge that potassium bichromate, sodium bichromate, paraffin wax, and butyl alcohol of U. S. origin could not be exported to Hong Kong or Communist China without specific approval therefore by the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, did transship and divert or cause to be transshipped and diverted the above commodities in quantity to Hong Kong and/or Communist China in violation of United States laws and United States regulations applicable thereunder.

Therefore, it is ordered, That: The appeal hereby be denied.

FREDERIC W. OLMSTEAD,
Chairman, Appeals Board.

BOROUGH OF LEMOYNE, PA.

MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER DESIGNATING APPLICATION FOR HEARING ON STATED ISSUES

In re application of Borough of Lemoyne, Pennsylvania; Lemoyne, Pennsylvania; Docket Number 11945, File Number 9350-PF-P/L-L; for authorization in the Fire Radio Service.

1. The Commission has before it for consideration a protest filed February 8, 1957, pursuant to section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, by the Commissioners of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania,[1] protesting the Commission's action of January 9, 1957, granting, without a hearing, the application of the Borough of Lemoyne, Pennsylvania[2] for permission to construct and operate a radio station in the Fire Radio Service utilizing one base transmitter and a maximum of ten mobile units on the frequency 46.06 Mc.

2. The protestant contends that the Commission's action in granting the protested application was not in the public interest. In support of this contention, the protestant alleges: that it has in operation a "mutual aid fire network" authorized by the Commission to utilize the frequency 46.06 Mc; that the operation by the Borough of Lemoyne, a political subdivision of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, of a radio station utilizing the frequency 46.06 Mc "would be extremely harmful and detrimental to the public safety of Cumberland County as a whole in granting mutual aid fire assistance in the county and * * * will interfere with the use of the network presently being operated by the County of Cumberland;" that it "is charged with the complete supervision of the mutual aid fire network for Cumberland County;" and that applicant's proposed operation will compete with the mutual aid fire network of Cumberland County; and that it "has not given its consent to this application by the Borough of Lemoyne." The protestant also alleges it "has a substantial financial interest in the equipment used or to be used by the Borough of Lemoyne."

The protestant states that a copy of its protest has been served upon the applicant. No timely opposition to this protest was received by the Commission.

3. In view of the allegations referred to above, we find that the protestant is a "party in interest" with standing to protest under section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

4. Although the protestant has set out no specific issues, denominated as such, the facts particularly alleged, in support of its contention that the grant of the protested application was not in the public interest, are sufficiently specific to comply with section 309 (c) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, and support the following issues:

To determine whether the applicant has complied with the provisions of § 10.101 (a) of the Commission's rules governing the Public Safety Radio Services requiring cooperation by all applicants and licensees in the selection of frequencies.

To determine whether operation under the protested grant will cause harmful interference, as defined in Part 10 of the Commission's rules, to the operation of the "mutual aid fire network" of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania.

To determine the facts with respect to the financial interest, if any, of the protestant in the radio facilities specified in the protested application.

5. The Commission's records show that one of the base stations which the protestant is licensed to operate in the Fire Radio Service is presently located on the same premises which the applicant states it is leasing with "the right to exclusive possession and occupancy." In view of this fact, the Commission, on its own motion, is including the following issue:

To determine whether the applicant will have the necessary degree of ownership and control over the operation of the proposed facilities as to warrant its licensing in the public interest.

6. The Commission, on its own motion, is also including the following additional issue:

To determine, in the light of the evidence adduced on all other specified issues, whether the public interest, convenience, and necessity will be served by a grant of the subject application.

7. It appearing, that the subject application sought authorization to construct and operate a radio station in the Fire Radio Service; and it further appearing that postponement of the effective date of the Commission's action granting such application may adversely affect the public safety of the Borough of Lemoyne, Pennsylvania, the Commission affirmatively finds that the public interest requires that the grant remain in effect pending a final decision by the Commission with respect to the evidentiary hearing hereinafter provided.

Therefore, it is ordered, That the applicant may utilize the facilities authorized by the Commission's action of January 9, 1957, pending the Commission's decision after the evidentiary hearing hereinafter provided;

It is further ordered, That the above-entitled application is designated for hearing, at a time and place to be specified by subsequent order, upon the following issues:

(1) To determine whether operation under the protested grant will cause harmful interference, as defined in Part 10 of the Commission's rules, to the operation of the mutual aid fire network of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania.

(2) To determine the facts with respect to the financial interest, if any, of the protestant in the radio facilities specified in the protested application.

(3) To determine whether the applicant has complied with the provisions of § 10.101 (a) of the Commission's rules governing the Public Safety Radio Services requiring cooperation in the selection of frequencies.

(4) To determine whether the applicant will have the necessary degree of ownership and control over the operation of the proposed facilities as to warrant its licensing in the public interest.

(5) To determine, in the light of evidence adduced on all other specified issues, whether the public interest, convenience, and necessity will be served by a grant of the subject application; and

It is further ordered, That the burden of proof on issues (1), (2) and (3) is placed on the protestant and the burden of proof on issues (4) and (5) is placed on the applicant; and

It is further ordered, That the Commissioners of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, and the Chief, Safety and Special Radio Services Bureau are made parties to the proceeding herein; and

It is further ordered, That, to avail themselves of the opportunity to be heard, the applicant herein and the above parties hereto, shall, pursuant to § 1.387 of the Commission's rules, in person or by an attorney, within 20 days, of the mailing of this memorandum opinion and order, file with the Commission, in triplicate, a written appearance stating an intention to appear on the date fixed for the hearing, when determined, and present evidence on the issues specified in this memorandum opinion and order.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

MAGNOLIA PETROLEUM CO.

ORDER SUSPENDING PROPOSED CHANGE IN RATES

MARCH 12, 1957.

Magnolia Petroleum Company (Magnolia) on February 11, 1957 tendered for filing a proposed change in its presently effective rate schedule for a sale of natural gas subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. The proposed change, which constitutes an increased rate and charge, is contained in the following designated filing:

Description: Notice of change undated.
Purchaser: Cities Service Gas Company.
Rate schedule designation: Supplement No. 2 to Magnolia's FPC Gas Rate Schedule No. 34.
Effective date: [1] March 14, 1957.

In support of the proposed increase, Magnolia states that the increased rate occurred under the provision of a letter agreement between the parties, to be effective as of July 6, 1954, and that the increase is necessary to offset the increased costs of production, exploration and development.

The increased rate and charge proposed in the aforesaid filing has not been shown to be justified, and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory, or preferential, or otherwise unlawful.

The Commission finds: It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Natural Gas Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of the said proposed change, and that the above-designated supplement be suspended and the use thereof deferred as hereinafter ordered.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to the authority contained in sections 4 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's rules and regulations (18 CFR Ch. I), a public hearing be held upon a date to be fixed by notice from the Secretary concerning the lawfulness of said proposed change in rates and charges; and, pending such hearing and decision thereon, the above-designated supplement be and the same hereby is suspended and the use thereof deferred until August 14, 1957, and until such further time as it is made effective in the manner presented by the Natural Gas Act.

(B) Neither the supplement hereby suspended nor the rate schedule sought to be altered shall be changed until this proceeding has been disposed of, or until the period of suspension has expired, unless otherwise ordered by the Commission.

(C) Interested state commissions may participate as provided by §§ 1.8 and 1.37 (f) of the Commission's rules of practice and procedure (18 CFR 1.8 and 1.37 (f)).

[Project No. 2145]

PUBLIC UTILITY DISTRICT NO. 1 OF CHELAN COUNTY, WASH.

ORDER FIXING HEARING

MARCH 14, 1957.

On July 12, 1956, the Commission issued an order issuing license (major) to Public Utility District No. 1 of Chelan County, Washington, hereinafter called Chelan, under section 4 (e) of the Federal Power Act, hereinafter called act, for proposed Project No. 2145, known as Rocky Reach Hydroelectric Power Project, to be located on the Columbia River, a navigable waterway of the United States, in Chelan and Douglas Counties, Washington, and affecting lands of the United States. On the same date, the Commission issued an order granting intervention to Public Utility District No. 1 of Douglas County, Washington (hereinafter called Douglas or Petitioner) in this proceeding.

On August 10, 1956, Douglas filed an application for rehearing by the Commission of its aforementioned order issuing a license to Chelan and requested modification of Article 42 of the license. By its order issued September 7, 1956, the Commission denied the application for rehearing.

Subsequently, Douglas filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit a petition for review of Article 42 of the Commission's order issuing the license. On February 28, 1957, the Court filed its opinion stating that "The cause must be remanded to the Commission with directions to grant a new hearing upon the questions presented by petitioner's protest and application for rehearing, * * *" In connection with this remand, the Court stated it saw no reason why its action called for a modification of any other provisions of the license, but that matter "is for the Commission to determine", citing F. P. C. v. Idaho Power Co., 344 U. S. 17, 20–21.

The Commission finds: It is appropriate in carrying out the directions of the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit contained in its aforementioned opinion filed February 28, 1957, that a hearing be held upon the questions presented by Petitioner's protest and application for rehearing respecting Article 42 of the Commission's July 12, 1956, order issuing license (major) to Public District No. 1 of Chelan County, Washington, for Project No. 2145 as hereinafter provided.

The Commission orders: Pursuant to and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by the Federal Power Act, particularly sections 4 and 308 thereof, and the Commission's rules of practice and procedure, a public hearing shall be held commencing April 3, 1957 at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., in a Hearing Room of the Federal Power Commission, 441 G Street, NW., Washington 25, D. C., upon the questions presented by Petitioner's protest and application for rehearing respecting Article 42 of the Commission's July 12, 1956 order issuing license (major) to Public Utility District No. 1 of Chelan County, Washington, for Project No. 2145.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-3560]

EASTERN UTILITIES ASSOCIATES ET AL.

ORDER AUTHORIZING ISSUANCE AND SALE OF COMMON STOCK BY REGISTERED HOLDING COMPANY

MARCH 12, 1957.

In the matter of Eastern Utilities Associates, Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric Company, Brockton Edison Company, Fall River Electric Light Company, File No. 70-3560.

Eastern Utilities Associates ("EUA"), a registered holding company, and its public-utility subsidiary companies, Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric Company ("Blackstone"), Brockton Edison Company ("Brockton"), and Fall River Electric Light Company ("Fall River") have filed with this Commission a joint application-declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to sections 6 (a), 6 (b), 7, 9 (a), 10, 12 (e), and 12 (f) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") and Rules U-43 and U-50 thereunder with respect, inter alia, to the following proposed transaction:

EUA proposes to issue and offer for sale to the holders of its outstanding common stock 89,322 additional common shares, and to use the proceeds to purchase its proportionate part of additional common shares to be issued and sold by Blackstone, Brockton, and Fall River. EUA requests that an order be issued forthwith permitting its declaration to become effective with respect to the proposed issuance and sale of its common stock, reserving for later authorization (after appropriate action by the State regulatory commission) the investment of the proceeds in additional common shares of its said subsidiaries. Jurisdiction will therefore be reserved with respect to all proposed transactions except the issuance and sale of common stock by EUA.

EUA's proposed common stock offering to its stockholders will be on the basis of one new common share for each 12 common shares held of record on March 20, 1957, with the privilege of subscribing for additional new shares, subject to allotment (in the event of oversubscription) on the basis of the primary subscription privilege. The subscription price will be determined by EUA shortly prior to the proposed offering, such price to be not less than 85 percent of the average bid price on the day preceding the day on which the price will be set. All unsubscribed shares will be sold to underwriters, selected pursuant to the competitive bidding requirements of Rule U-50.

Pursuant to Amended Reorganization Plan No. 4 of EUA, some of its common shares are held by a Distribution Agent for exchange for old convertible shares. Rights applicable to these common shares will be sold and the net proceeds held by the Distribution Agent and paid pro rata to the holders of such unexchanged convertible shares upon surrender thereof for exchange.

No State or Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the proposed issue and sale by EUA of new common shares.

The record is incomplete with respect to the fees and expenses incurred or to be incurred in respect of the various proposals, and jurisdiction will be reserved with respect thereto.

Due notice having been given of the filing of said application-declaration (Holding Company Act Release No. 13396) and a hearing not having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable provisions of the act and the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied, and that no adverse findings are necessary in respect of the proposed issuance and sale of common stock by EUA; and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that the application-declaration, in so far as it relates to the issuance and sale of common stock by EUA, be granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, and that jurisdiction be reserved with respect to the remaining proposed transactions:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that said application-declaration, as amended, to the extent that it relates to the issuance and sale of common stock by EUA, be, and hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rules U-50 and U-24.

It is further ordered, That jurisdiction be, and hereby is, reserved with respect to (1) all other transactions proposed in the application-declaration, and (2) all fees and expenses incurred or to be incurred in the premises.

By the Commission.

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

Findings. 1. Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 53, as amended (7 CFR Part 953; 21 F. R. 4393), regulating the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Lemon Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of the quantity of such lemons which may be handled, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

2. It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice and engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this amendment until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this amendment is based became available and the time when this amendment must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, is insufficient, and this amendment relieves restriction on the handling of lemons grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona.

Order, as amended. The provisions in paragraph (b) (1) (ii) of § 953.784 (Lemon Regulation 677, 22 F. R. 1546) are hereby amended to read as follows:

(ii) District 2: 251,100 cartons.

PART 244—BUSINESS PRACTICES OF FREIGHT FORWARDERS

STATEMENT OF POLICY

The Maritime Administrator has revoked Maritime Commission General Order 70 (Part 243),[1] and, simultaneously with such revocation, has established the following policy:

The Maritime Administrator finds that it is appropriate and in the public interest to maintain a list of foreign freight forwarders to assist other government agencies in selecting freight forwarders to handle shipments where such agencies decide that the services of forwarders are necessary. The list will include the names and business addresses of foreign freight forwarders who the Maritime Administrator finds:

1. Are American citizens as defined in section 2 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended (46 U. S. C. 802);

2. Are cleared as to security requirements;

3. Are registered with the Federal Maritime Board under General Order 72 (46 CFR Part 244); and

4. Have applied to the Maritime Administrator for inclusion on the list.

The initial list shall include all United States citizen forwarders whose names appeared on the list prepared by the Maritime Administration under General Order 70 as of its revocation date.

Foreign freight forwarders who meet the requirements set forth above, and who desire to be included on the list, shall apply in writing to the Secretary, Maritime Administration, Washington 25, D. C., and shall accompany such application with:

1. A copy of their most recent application to the Federal Maritime Board for registration under General Order 72 (46 CFR Part 244) with any amendment necessary to bring it up to date; and

2. An affidavit stating that the applicant is a citizen of the United States as defined in section 2 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended (46 U. S. C. 802).

If the forwarder is an individual, the affidavit of citizenship shall state whether he is a citizen of the United States by birth or naturalization, and the facts upon which that statement is based, such as the date and place of birth or the date and number of the naturalization certificate. If the forwarder is a partnership, each partner shall furnish an affidavit of citizenship giving the same information as is required of an individual. If the forwarder is a corporation, the affidavit shall be in the form prescribed by the Maritime Administrator, and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of October 27, 1956, 21 F. R. 8240.

The Maritime Administrator reserves the right to request such additional information as he considers to be necessary or desirable, in order to determine the eligibility of the applicant for inclusion on the list.

Any foreign freight forwarder who desires may have his name removed from the list upon written request to the Secretary, Maritime Administration.

Copies of the list of forwarders maintained pursuant to this Statement of Policy may be obtained upon request from the Secretary, Maritime Administration, Washington 25, D. C.

TITLE 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

[FCC 57-249; Rules Amdts. 2-29, 9-9]

PART 2—FREQUENCY ALLOCATIONS AND RADIO TREATY MATTERS; GENERAL RULES AND REGULATIONS

PART 9—AVIATION SERVICES

CHANNEL SPACING FOR VHF AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL OPERATIONS

In the matter of amendment of §§ 9.312, 9.331, and 9.411, Part 9, Aviation Services, and § 2.104 (a) (5), Part 2 Frequency Allocations and Radio Treaty Matters, to provide 100 kc channel spacing for VHF air traffic control operations.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C., on the 13th day of March 1957.

The Commission having under consideration the amendment of Parts 2 and 9 of its rules to provide 100 kc channel spacing for VHF air traffic control operations; and

It appearing that the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) has requested the Commission to make provisions for the use of 100 kc-spaced VHF air traffic control frequencies by civil aircraft, stating that the loading of existing 200 kc-spaced frequencies necessitates immediate implementation of additional frequencies at CAA ground stations, and

It further appearing that the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA) has submitted a similar request for Commission action; and

It further appearing that Aeronautical Radio, Inc. (ARINC) also has requested, on behalf of civil aviation interests, that the Commission amend § 9.312 of its rules to permit employment of 100 and 50 kc-spaced frequencies by FCC-licensed aircraft; and

It further appearing that insofar as ARINC's request for 100 kc. channel spacing is concerned, use by civil aircraft of such frequencies in areas of high traffic density, is a matter of urgency which is justified on the basis of information presently available; and

It further appearing that inasmuch as immediate air traffic control operation on 50 kc-spaced channels is not contemplated, and since questions of equipment capability and band-edge frequency utilization are involved, the part of the ARINC request concerning 50-kc-spaced channels can be handled more appropriately in a later proceeding; and

It further appearing that the public interest would be served by permitting FCC-licensed aircraft to commence operation on the new 100 kc-spaced air traffic control frequencies as they are implemented at CAA ground stations; and

It further appearing that since the additional frequencies are within the existing VHF air traffic control band, holders of current aircraft radio station licenses may, upon the effective date of this order, commence the use of such frequencies without applying for or obtaining specific authorization therefor, and

It further appearing that issuance of Notice of Proposed Rule Making pursuant to section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedures Act would unnecessarily delay the timely adoption of the amendments herein ordered and would not therefore serve the public interest; and

It further appearing that since adoption of the amendments herein ordered imposes no new requirement on any applicant or licensee, but rather makes additional frequencies available, the use of which is directly related to the safety of life property in the air, this order may be made effective without delay in accordance with section 4 (c) of the Administrative Procedures Act; and

It further appearing that authority for issuance of this Order is contained in section 303 (b), (c), and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended:

It is ordered, That effective March 13, 1957, §§ 9.312, 9.331, 9.411 and 2.104 (a) (5) of the Commission's rules are amended as set forth below.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 154. Interpret or apply sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1082, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 303)

Released: March 14, 1957.

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

In the matter of amendment of §§ 3.183 and 3.190 of the Commission's rules and regulations.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C. on the 13th day of March 1957;

The Commission has before it for consideration the deletion of Figure 4 of § 3.190 and the reference to Figure 4 in § 3.183 (c).

Figure 4 of § 3.190 is a reproduction of a map depicting ground conductivities in Canada, prepared by the Department of Transport of that country, and submitted to the Commission on February 18, 1948. It was incorporated in the Commission's Technical Standards on June 29, 1949, after permission had been obtained from the Department.

Appendix H to the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement, Washington, D. C., 1950 (NARBA) is a map of ground conductivities in countries in the North American Region. The Canadian portion of thig map was intended to be an accurate reproduction of the data on the original Canadian map (i. e., Figure 4). However, it appears that the NARBA map departs from the original in such degree that the results of determinations involving ground conductivities in Canada may differ substantially, depending upon which of the two conductivity maps is employed.

It had previously been assumed that Canada was continuing to utilize its original map, but the Commission has recently been advised by the Canadian Department of Transport that Appendix H of the NARBA is employed by Canada in all cases involving conductivities in that country.

It is evident that the continued use of Figure 4 is inappropriate, and can lead to international conflicts with respect to standard broadcasting assignments. For this reason we are deleting Figure 4 of § 3.190 and the reference thereto in § 3.183 (c). In place of Figure 4 we are indicating the proper source of information regarding ground conductivities in Canada, and for the first time in the Commission's rules, this reference provides a statement of bases for acceptable estimates of conductivity in Mexico and Cuba.

Because of the informational nature of the proposed changes, notice and public procedure hereon as prescribed by section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act are unnecessary.

In view of the above: It is ordered, That, pursuant to authority contained in sections 303 (f) and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, §§ 3.183 and 3.190 of the Commission's rules and regulations are amended, effective March 20, 1957, as follows:

1. Delete the last three sentences of § 3.183 (c) and substitute the following parenthetical expression: "(for determinations of interference and service requiring a knowledge of ground conductivities in Canada and Mexico, Appendix H to the North American Regional Broadcasting Agreement, Washington, D. C. 1950, may be used. Where different conductivities appear in the maps of the several countries on different sides of the border not explained by geophysical cleavages, such cleavages are to be considered as real. A uniform ground conductivity of 10 millimhos per meter may be assumed for Cuba)."

2. Delete Figure 4 of § 3.190.

Released: March 14, 1957.

PART 62—APPLICATIONS TO HOLD INTERLOCKING DIRECTORATES

In the matter of amendment of Part 62 of the Commission's rules governing applications under section 212 of the act to hold interlocking directorates; Docket No. 11894.

1. On December 21, 1956, the Commission released a notice of proposed rule making proposing to amend Part 62 of its Rules to implement amendments to section 212 of the Communications Act of 1934, which became effective on August 2, 1956 (Pub. Law. No. 914), and which provide that the Commission may authorize persons to hold the position of officer or director in more than one carrier subject to the Act, without regard to the other requirements of this section, where it has found that one of the two or more carriers directly or indirectly owns more than 50 percent of the stock of the other or others, or that 50 percent or more of the stock of all such carriers is directly or indirectly owned by the same person. This notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 28, 1956 (F. R. 10414) in accordance with Section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act. Interested persons were given until February 1, 1957, to file comments on the proposed amendments and ten days thereafter were allowed for filing comments or briefs in reply to the original comments.

2. The time for filing comments regarding the above-mentioned proposed rule making has expired. The Commission received timely comments from the American Telephone and Telegraph Company (AT&T) on behalf of itself and the Bell System Associated Companies. No comments or briefs in reply to the original comments were received, and no one requested a public hearing in this matter.

3. AT&T generally supported the proposed amendments but suggested minor changes as discussed below.

4. AT&T observed that the proposed text of § 62.2 (a) appears to include a number of positions which would not ordinarily be considered as officers. AT&T suggested defining "officer or director" to mean any person performing any of the duties ordinarily performed by a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer or other officer of a carrier. While this suggestion has some merit, we feel that there is a decided advantage in continuing to list the other positions which may, in certain carriers, also be those of officers. In order to make it clear that persons holding such other positions must secure authorization, where the position includes responsibility to act as officer, the phrase "or other officers of a carrier such as" is being inserted before the position "general counsel".

5. AT&T suggested that the word "voting" be placed before the word "stock" in § 62,2 (c). "Commonly owned carriers" would then be defined as two or more carriers, one of which directly or indirectly owns more than 50 percent of the voting stock of the other carrier or carriers, etc. It is to be noted that section 212 as amended makes no distinction as to whether the stock, on which the Commission may make a finding as to ownership, is voting stock or non-voting stock. It is also to be noted that under § 62.12, as proposed, applicants desiring a finding as to stock ownership must submit considerable data with respect to stock owned directly or indirectly, the total amount of outstanding stock of the carrier(s) involved and the voting rights of each category of stock. On the basis of the information so supplied, the Commission should be in position to make a finding as to whether the stock ownership meets the required minima specified in section 212. Pending actual experience in making such findings with respect to actual ownership relations, it is not possible to predict what weight the Commission will give, if any, to stock voting rights in making findings as to stock ownership. It does not appear that a finding of stock ownership will depend solely, in every case, upon the amount of voting stock owned, and therefore it appears inappropriate to make the insertion suggested by AT&T. Accordingly that suggestion is not being adopted.

6. AT&T suggested that, for editorial reasons, § 62.3 (b) should include an appropriate reference to § 62.12. That suggestion is being adopted.

7. AT&T pointed out that there is an apparent discrepancy between § 62.11 (g) and the footnote thereto and suggested inserting in § 62.11 (g) the phrase "in which the applicant has a financial interest" after the words "every corporation". That suggestion is being adopted and, to further clarify § 62.11 (g), the footnote is being incorporated in the text thereof, and certain editorial changes are being made for conformity.

8. AT&T suggested that the proposed text of § 62.21 be revised to make it clear that a person authorized to hold interlocking positions in three or more carriers would lose such authority only with respect to positions held in carriers which cease to be "commonly owned" carriers and that such person would continue to be authorized to hold interlocking positions in each of the carriers which continue as commonly owned carriers. That suggestion is being adopted.

9. AT&T pointed out that the proposed § 62.26 (b) would require that if a common ownership relation is ended, the applicant must not only notify the Commission of such ownership change but also of the names of the persons and the positions for which authorization became effective after a formal finding was made on said application. AT&T commented that this requirement would prove burdensome, since it would require information as to interlocking directors who had long since ceased to be such, and that the requirement could be omitted on the grounds that the provisions of section 212 of the act and proposed § 62.21 of the Commission's rules would automatically cancel such authority to hold interlocking directorates where common ownership relations are ended. Since the penalty provisions of section 212 are applicable where interlocking duties are performed without authorization, irrespective of whether the reporting requirements of § 62.26 (b) are met by a given applicant, the Commission agrees that such reporting requirement is not necessary. Accordingly, the proposed § 62.26 (b) is being deleted.

It appearing that the proposed Rule Making proceeding in this matter has indicated the desirability of adopting these amendments substantially as proposed except as outlined herein;

It is ordered, That, under the authority contained in sections 4 (i) and 212 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, the Commission's rules and regulations are amended as set forth below, effective April 22, 1957.

Adopted: March 13, 1957.

Secretary.

TITLE 50—WILDLIFE

Chapter I—Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior

ORDER PERMITTING KILLING OF COOTS IN AGRICULTURAL AREAS OF CALIFORNIA

Pursuant to the authority conferred upon me by the order of the Acting Secretary of the Interior, dated March 8, 1957, I have determined that the number of coots now present and likely to continue to be present in particular communities in California are such as to constitute a serious threat to agricultural crops through depredations by this species. Accordingly, an emergency is found to exist, and to protect crops which are threatened by such migratory birds the killing of such coots as are found damaging crops in the areas described below is hereby permitted, beginning this date and continuing until formally terminated but in any event not beyond May 30, 1957; such killing to be conducted in compliance with applicable State law and subject to the following terms, conditions, and restrictions:

1. Coots may be killed on or over agricultural crops being damaged by such birds in the counties of Butte, Colusa, Fresno, Glenn, Kern, Kings, Madera, Merced, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Solano, Stanislaus, Sutter, Talure, Yolo and Yuba.

2. Method of killing: Coots may be taken only by shooting with a shotgun not larger than No. 10 gauge fired from the shoulder.

3. Disposition of coots taken: Such birds as are killed under the provision of this order may be used for food within the State of California, but they may not be sold, offered for sale, bartered, or shipped for purposes of sale or barter, or be wantonly wasted or destroyed.

(Sec. 3, 40 Stat. 755, as amended; 16 U. S. C. 704)

MILK IN CENTRAL ARKANSAS MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS THERETO WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED MARKETING AGREEMENT AND PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.) and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Deputy Administrator, Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Central Arkansas marketing area.

Interested parties may file written exceptions to the decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business on the 5th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing on the record of which the proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, were formulated was conducted at Little Rock, Arkansas, on November 19-21, 1956, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on October 22, 1956 (21 F. R. 8193).

(a) To exempt plants with 2,000 gallons or less per day—Item 21.
(b) To exclude all approved plants located in the area—Items 6 and 10.

10. Adjustment for errors—Item 14.

11. Base rules—Items 15 and 16.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions on the material issues are based on the evidence introduced at the hearing, and the record thereof:

1. The city of Gurdon and the town of Okolona, Arkansas, in Clark county should be removed from the Central Arkansas marketing area and the following counties should be added to the area: Conway, Grant, Hot Spring, Lonoke, Monroe, Pope, and Saline. The elimination of the city of Gurdon and the town of Okolona, in Clark county, was proposed by a partially regulated handler whose plant is located in Texarkana, Texas. The sales of milk from this plant, with the sales of one or two other partially regulated handlers in these communities on the western edge of Clark county which marks the southwestern border of the marketing area, constitute about 85 percent of total sales in these communities, if school milk is excluded. Two pool plant handlers compete in these localities, but the volume of their sales is small and a minor part of the trade. These facts and circumstances justify the removal of the city of Gurdon and the town of Okolona, both in Clark county, Arkansas, from the marketing area.

Producers and a group of handlers proposed addition to the marketing area of the following counties in Central Arkansas: Conway, Grant, Hot Spring, Lonoke, Monroe, Pope, and Saline. Handlers alone proposed the addition of three other counties, Cross, Poinsett, and St. Francis, in eastern Arkansas.

The evidence does not justify the incorporation of the three eastern counties in the marketing area. In these counties one Central Arkansas handler competes with one or two Memphis handlers, who distribute no milk in the present Central Arkansas area. Another handler, who was under the Central Arkansas order at the time of the hearing, but who according to subsequent official releases of the market administrator, has come under the Memphis order, is also a competing distributor in these three counties. Official notice is hereby taken of announcements issued by the market administrator, Federal Order No. 8, for the months November, December 1956; and January, February 1957, listing the names of regulated and partially regulated handlers. He is a large scale distributor in the Central Arkansas area as well as in the Memphis area. A reason for handlers' proposal to consolidate and extend the Central Arkansas marketing area was to bring this handler fully under this order, or at least, to make him subject to the compensatory payment provision of this order on all the milk distributed by him in Central Arkansas trade territory, where he competes with Central Arkansas handlers.

But such grounds do not support the addition of these particular counties to the marketing area. These counties are well to the east of the main trade territory of Central Arkansas handlers. They are also served by Memphis handlers who sell no milk in the present Central Arkansas area. The one Memphis handler who distributes milk in the Central Arkansas area also distributes in these three counties; but his distribution in these counties is through his Memphis area vendor. Memphis handlers would appear to have no price advantage over Central Arkansas handlers that would justify the addition of these three eastern counties to the Central Arkansas area. None was alleged by proponents.

The same may be said with reference to the unpriced or unregulated distribution in these three eastern Arkansas counties. Only one unregulated distributor operates in these counties. His business varies from an estimated two percent of all Class I distribution in St. Francis, to 50 percent in Poinsett. Altogether sales by this distributor in these counties are probably not more than eight or nine percent of his total Class I trade. The bulk of his distribution is in unregulated trade territory. Nevertheless, his stake in the trade of these counties—measured by the proportion of sales in these counties to total sales—appears to be about equal to that of Central Arkansas handlers.

The evidence supports the addition to the area of the seven counties named above, proposed by handlers and producers. These counties lie well within the Central Arkansas Grade A milk trade area. Health and sanitary regulations are identical to those of the present marketing area.

Such enlargement of the area would incorporate in the area additional trade territory now served by two or more major Central Arkansas handlers, and by the partially regulated handler, who was recently under this order but who in December 1956, reverted to his original status under the Memphis order. Two major Central Arkansas handlers distribute milk in each of these counties. The sales by one amount to approximately 15 percent of his total Class I sales, by the other to about 21 percent. Sales by another handler in four of these counties amount to about 12 percent of his total sales. Still another handler distributes seven percent of his Class I sales in two of these counties. Since volume data on sales by counties are not available, how much would be added to area sales by the incorporation of these counties in the area cannot be definitely calculated. But the data of percentage of sales by handlers show that these counties are an important part of the sales area for producer milk; that they are an integral part of the trade territory of major Central Arkansas handlers, and of the large scale distributor in Central Arkansas who presently operates under the Memphis order. In Grant, Hot Spring, Lonoke, and Monroe counties there are no unregulated distributors. There is one unregulated distributor in each of the counties of Conway, Pope, and Saline. In Saline county it is estimated that sales by this distributor are about 10 percent of total sales, in Pope county about 50 percent, and in Conway county about 55 percent. In each case the unregulated distributor has a substantial proportion of his Class I trade in the county—estimated at about a third in one case and 90 percent in the other cases.

One reason, advanced by producers and handlers, for adding these particular counties to the maketing area, is to bring these local distributors under uniform price regulation. These local distributors compete with handlers for milk supply. While they pay producer prices that conform closely to pool plant prices or to prices returned to member producers by the cooperative association, they obviously do not account and pay for their supplies on a class price basis. Their cost of Class I milk may be somewhat less than that of handlers who compete with them. It also appears, in these cases, that the cost of supplies is lessened by the practice of balancing very closely receipts from dairy farmers with sales, and procuring supplementary supply from regulated plants, or directly from the producers' cooperative association. Such practices and circumstances give ground for including them under the uniform price provisions of the order. One of these local distributors went on record in favor of so doing. Another demurred, but not on grounds of possible effects upon his buying prices and competitive position. He was reluctant to become a handler because of the administrative assessment and the necessary record keeping and reporting. Under the circumstances, such objection could hardly be determining.

An additional reason for incorporating in the marketing area more of the trade territory served by the principal Central Arkansas handlers lies in the application of another order provision, § 908.61 Plants subject to other Federal orders. It applies to plants with sales in more than one Federal marketing area. If a distributing plant in this area also sells in another area, under an order with a similar provision, the handler is subject to the order for the area where, during a specified period, his sales are greater. In this determination only the sales actually in the respective areas are considered. Also, the compensatory payment specified in this section of Order No. 8, which is applicable to a distributor in this area who is a handler under Order No. 18, applies only to his sales that are actually in the defined marketing area.

Major Central Arkansas distributors operate extensively outside the present marketing area. Two or three distribute milk from Central Arkansas plants in marketing areas under other orders. One of these, as noted above, was under Order No. 18 when Order No. 8 was issued. In June 1956, this distributor came under Order No. 8. But since January 1, 1957, he has been under Order No. 18. Another Central Arkansas distributor, presently a handler under this order, at times is successful bidder on large military camp contracts in another marketing area for a volume of milk that might exceed his sales in the present area. This handler distributes substantial quantities of milk in several of these counties that are proposed for the area. He supports such extension of the marketing area, in part, for the reason that it would make more secure his existing status under this order.

It therefore appears that the purposes of this order would be served by the inclusion of the seven counties named above in the marketing area. All or a large proportion of the distribution in these counties is by handlers under this order and a handler presently under the Memphis order. While two or three local distributors would become subject to the Central Arkansas order, it does not appear that minimum order prices would be unreasonable for them or that the level of their producer prices would be changed much, if any. Among the regulated distributors in the Central Arkansas trade, it would tend to make minimum buying prices more uniform and thus to enhance the stability of producer prices. The Central Arkansas distributor, who is presently a handler under the Memphis order, has a lower Class I price than he would have if he were operating under the Central Arkansas order. But, for the receipts of local milk that he distributes in the Central Arkansas marketing area he makes a "compensatory payment" to Central Arkansas producers, which is designed to equalize his plant price with that of Central Arkansas handlers. Enlarging this area to include more of his trade territory would not only increase the ratio of his sales in this area to those in the Memphis area—which determines his handler status—but also increase his compensatory payments to Central Arkansas producers when he is a Memphis handler. Likewise such enlargement would tend to reduce the uncertainty of continuing applicability of the minimum price terms of this order to Arkansas handlers who also distribute milk in the areas of other Federal orders.

2. The producer definition should not be amended. The Central Arkansas Milk Producers' Association proposed that the definition of "producer" be amended to permit a cooperative association to divert milk to a nonpool plant in all months of the year. The present definition allows pool plant handlers (including producers' cooperative associations) to divert milk at any time during the months February through August, and on not more than ten days during any other month. The effect of the proposal would be to allow a cooperative association to divert milk at any time during the year, while retaining the ten-day limitation on diverted milk for proprietary handlers during the months September through January.

In support of the proposal, the producers' association contended that the present provision has imposed hardship on several of its members. Three producers who were shipping milk on a route which was converted to bulk tank had not done so when the route was so converted. Consequently, their milk in cans had to be hauled over 100 miles, apparently to another pool plant in order for them to maintain producer status. The association maintained that if it had been permitted to divert milk to a nonpool plant for more than ten days during the period September through January this situation could have been averted.

Under the proposal, the association would not divert the milk of non-members in a similar situation. The stated purpose of the proposal is to protect the producer status of cooperative association members.

The manager of the producers' association testified that proprietary handlers should not be extended year-round diverting privileges because handlers' plants might be loaded unnecessarily with Class II milk, thereby reducing uniform prices to producers.

The present provisions concerning diverted milk were originally included in the order because some milk not needed for Class I use in the area had been diverted from producer farms directly to manufacturing plants. The privilege of diverting such milk to nonpool plants obviates the handling of milk at bottling plants which are not equipped to manufacture reserve supplies. The diverting privilege was limited during the months of low production because reserve supplies during those months normally prevail only on weekends or holidays. Cooperative associations were afforded the same diverting privilege as handlers to enable them to market their members' milk more efficiently, and to keep such milk pooled.

The evidence in the record in support of the proposal was confined to an unusual incident involving a minute segment of the market for a short period of time. It would be very difficult from an administrative standpoint to guard against all situations which may be temporarily disruptive, and at the same time to provide larger safeguards necessary to insure that milk in the Central Arkansas market shall be marketed as efficiently as possible. There is no evidence that the Central Arkansas market treated as a whole, needs any provision for diverting milk on a year-round basis, except as it is already contained in the order. The proposal should not be adopted.

3. The definition of "distributing plant" should not be amended. (a) A handler proposed that a volume limitation be be provided in the distributing plant definition which would exempt from regulation any plant distributing less than 2,000 gallons of milk a day in the marketing area.

The proponent testified that he produces half his volume and purchases the remainder from the Central Arkansas Milk Producers' Association. The handler's primary objection was in having to pay into the producer-settlement fund on his high Class I utilization. His operation includes no Class II utilization. His present distribution amounts to approximately 450 gallons per day, 150 gallons of which are distributed in the marketing area. The proponent stated that construction has just been completed on a plant which will enable him to triple his capacity.

The proposal to include the exemption was supported primarily on the basis that the handler's Class I distribution in the marketing area is much less on a total volume basis than that of "larger" handlers. There is no evidence in the record indicating any economic justification for exempting a handler from regulation simply because the quantity of milk he distributes is less than that of other handlers.

Evidence in the record indicates that the proponent's distribution in the marketing area exceeds 30 percent of his total Class I distribution. Elsewhere herein, it is recommended that the marketing area be extended. If this occurs, it is probable that the proponent's percentage of total distribution would be even more than the present 30 percent. There would be little justification in exempting one handler whose distribution in the marketing area exceeds 30 percent of his total Class I distribution while regulating other handlers whose Class I distribution in the marketing area is 10 percent or more of total Class I sales.

It is concluded that the proposed volume exemption should not be adopted.

(b) Producers and handlers proposed that a distributing plant be regulated by Order No. 8 (Central Arkansas) if it is located within the marketing area. This proposal was submitted in conjunction with another proposal which is discussed later in connection with Issue No. 9.

Proponents supported the proposal on the basis that any plant located in the marketing area is, of necessity, associated with the market. Such plant procures its milk from the same area as do other plants located in the area. In addition, a substantial portion of such plant's Class I sales are logically made within the area.

Specifically, the proposal is intended to regulate by Order No. 8 a plant located at Conway, Arkansas. This plant has had a recent history of having been regulated by Order No. 8 and by Order No. 18 (Memphis). Proponents contend that the regulation of the plant by one order and then by another disrupts marketing conditions for the Central Arkansas area.

The plant referred to has, for the most part been regulated by Order No. 18 on the basis of a larger volume of Class I sales distributed in that marketing area than in the Central Arkansas area. Official notice is taken of the final decision of the Assistant Secretary which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on November 30, 1956 (21 F. R. 9383) in which it was concluded that in determining the applicability of Order No. 8 to a handler who qualifies under more than one Federal order, such determination should not be made on any basis other than that of identifying the market in which the largest volume of his Class I sales is distributed. No new evidence was introduced which would justify a different conclusion at this time.

The object of Federal milk regulation is to assure that all milk handled within a specified marketing area shall be paid for on the basis of its utilization, and at prices established by the order. The area from which handlers procure milk is not the criterion for regulation.

Proponents emphasized that by reason of a location differential applicable at Conway, Arkansas, when the plant there is regulated by Order No. 18 (Memphis) the operator of that plant enjoys a competitive advantage over handlers regulated by Order No. 8 on Class I sales made outside the marketing area.

But this merely means that competing handlers under different orders may have different minimum buying prices. This would appear to be inevitable, at some plant locations, even though prices at the respective areas are the same, as is the case in this instance. If the areas are correctly defined and location differentials are reasonable, the basis for such differences in plant prices are presumed to be economic. Proponents of this proposal also approached their problem through an area enlargement proposal, which is herein considered as Issue No. 1.

It is concluded that the proposal should not be adopted.

4. The classification provisions of the order should not be changed. Handlers proposed that (a) in disposing of milk for livestock feed, the butterfat and skim portions should be classified as Class II. At the present time, only the skim portion is so classified, (b) transportation and processing losses should be classified as Class II milk.

In support of proposal (a), handlers testified that 99 percent of all milk disposed of for livestock feed originates as returns of buttermilk, flavored milk and homogenized milk. Livestock feed disposition amounts to about one percent of total Class I and Class II disposition for the market. Since the volume of recoverable fat from buttermilk is negligible, returns of homogenized and flavored milk account for the bulk of the butterfat in livestock feed. Butterfat from Grade A Cream-line milk, cream and half-and-half is generally recovered from returned items.

One handler stated that during the past 10 months an average of 1,174 pounds of butterfat monthly was disposed of as livestock feed, with the major quantities disposed of in the months of March, May, June and July 1956. Another handler testified that his firm disposed of an average of 964 pounds of butterfat per month in this manner.

The quantity of butterfat involved, if the proposal were adopted, represents a very small portion of the total Class I and Class II disposition of handlers. It was conceded that any decrease in handlers' cost would be slight. In view of this it is doubtful whether the advantages of adopting the proposed amendment outweigh the advantages of retaining the present language of the order.

The present method of classifying the butterfat and skim components of milk utilized as livestock feed contains incentive for handlers to recover as much as possible of the butterfat in milk disposed of in this manner. Handlers' testimony indicates that this is being done. The present provision influences handlers to adjust their bottling operations as closely as possible to their Class I route sales in order to guard against increasing volumes of route returns. If the proposal were adopted, there would be less incentive to tailor bottling operations with route requirements, since all returns could be disposed of for livestock feed and classified as Class II. There is little economic justification in allowing unlimited disposition of producer milk in this manner. In fact, some safeguard is necessary to discourage it. Present order language contains such safeguard. The order contains a two percent allowance for shrinkage. In cases where plant shrinkage is less than two percent, the butterfat contained in livestock feed is included in the shrinkage allowable in Class II. Shrinkage, as a percentage of total receipts has declined steadily since the inception of the order, indicating increased efficiency in handlers operations. It is not inconceivable that the gradual reduction in the volume of plant shrinkage for the market, is due to the order provisions safeguarding the classification of producer milk.

It is concluded that the proposal should not be adopted.

In support of (b), handlers stated that processing losses have occurred when milk to be used for buttermilk failed to coagulate because of antibiotics present. It was testified that this situation was avoided after it occurred by testing samples of individual producers' milk before commingling and making buttermilk. The proposal is intended to classify processing losses of this type in Class II whenever they occur. However, there is no justification for assigning producer milk to a lower class whenever handlers fail in processing techniques to prevent losses such as those described.

The record contains no guides as to what might or might not be considered a processing loss. It would, without such guides, encompass all losses, including those due to negligence, accident or mischievous damage. Nor would it be feasible to require the market administrator to decide what constitutes a processing loss, since he undoubtedly would not be present when it occurred.

Handlers also proposed that transportation casualty losses should be priced in the lowest class whenever they occur, subject to prompt notification of the market administrator to allow verification. Some handlers operations are covered by cargo insurance, and some are self-insured. The proposal was mainly supported by a handler who does not carry cargo insurance, stating that the cost is prohibitive.

While it is reasonable for handlers to protect themselves from all manner of business hazards, it is not necessary, as the experienced management of many handlers demonstrates, to provide such protection in the classification provisions of the order. The responsibility for protection against fire, explosion, theft, etc., which may destroy or damage a handler's property may reasonably be expected to be borne by the handler. Likewise, transportation losses, when the property is the handler's, should be considered part of the risk of doing business, and protected accordingly. Producers should not be expected to take a lower classification on any milk involved in such losses.

It is concluded that the proposal should not be adopted.

5. The allocation provisions of the order should not be changed. Handlers proposed that producer milk should not receive preferential classification as Class I over other source receipts, unless producer receipts at pool plants are at least 115 percent of the Class I sales of pool plants. During the course of the hearing, handlers revised the factor to 110 percent.

In support of the proposal, handlers testified that the present allocation provisions are not encouraging producers to meet their supply obligations.

One handler testified that during the month of August 1956, when there was sufficient producer milk on the market to supply Class I sales inside the marketing area, other source receipts were used. Some handlers received other source milk instead of producer milk. At the same time, producer milk was delivered to handlers with Class II utilization. The allocation system washed out all but about 9 percent of the utilization of producer milk in Class II. The handler's chief objection to this situation was that his firm had to pay a compensatory payment on the other source milk which was supplied by the producers' association.

It is noted that the action recommended under Issue 8 (a) should provide appropriate relief for the situation complained of under this issue. Consequently, it is not necessary to amend the allocation provisions of the order.

6. The Class I milk price should not be changed. Producers proposed that the Class I milk price for Central Arkansas be based on the Class I milk price for Memphis, Tennessee (Order No. 18) plus 35 cents, in all months of the year. It was also proposed that in no case shall the Central Arkansas Class I price be less than the Class I milk price for the Ft. Smith market.

A series of producer witnesses testified that the proposed price increase is necessary to counteract declining income from milk production. However, it should be noted that Class I, Class II and uniform prices for Central Arkansas increased during the year 1956. Declining income from dairying, particularly in areas close to the city of Little Rock, Arkansas, appears to be due primarily to increased costs resulting from extremely dry pasture conditions and competition with industrial expansion for available labor. Producer witnesses whose farms are located close to the metropolitan area are operating relatively small herds, and expressed reluctance to use capital reserves to enlarge them in order to take advantage of economies of scale and efficiencies from labor saving equipment.

An official of the Central Arkansas Milk Producers' Association testified that the Class I price for Order No. 8 should be 70 cents over the Class I price of Order No. 18 to attract an adequate supply of milk for Central Arkansas. It was conceded, however, that intermarket relationships should be considered in establishing an appropriate Class I differential for Central Arkansas. Consequently, the association proposed a Class I differential of 35 cents over the Memphis Class I price. This amount represents the cost of transporting milk in packages from a plant in Conway, Arkansas to Memphis, Tennessee. The association contends that the proposed Class I price is not enough to attract an adequate supply of Class I milk for Central Arkansas, but represents a minimum necessary to preserve an alignment of prices (presumably with Memphis), keep present producers supplying the market, and attract new ones.

The producers' association also contends that for the months of March and July, the Central Arkansas Class I differential is out of line with that contained in the Ft. Smith order, which is about 50 cents over Central Arkansas during those two months. Producers maintain that this has a disturbing effect on dairy farmers who live in the same locality and ship milk to the two markets. There could be transfers of producers to the Central Arkansas market during March and July because these months are part of the flush period for the Ft. Smith market. No transfers are made, however, because of the price difference. By raising Central Arkansas price to a level comparable with Ft. Smith, the association (having members shipping to plants regulated under both orders) could divert milk from Ft. Smith to Central Arkansas, or transfer producers permanently to Central Arkansas. So long as the Ft. Smith price is higher than Central Arkansas, the association maintains that it cannot induce its members to transfer. It was estimated that by diverting milk, and by negotiating premiums with handlers, Central Arkansas producer prices have been increased in 1956 by about 49 cents per hundredweight. This has not been enough to achieve the supply needed.

Handlers testified that because of the inter-relationship of the two markets, the Class I prices under the Memphis and Central Arkansas orders should be identical. If the Central Arkansas price is higher than the Memphis price, a plant located at Conway, Arkansas, when regulated by the Memphis order, and obtaining a location differential, could increase its competitive advantage with Central Arkansas regulated handlers, particularly outside the present marketing area. Handlers were primarily concerned with the price alignment with Memphis. Handlers would support a temporary price increase for Central Arkansas, but in the long run the competitive position with Memphis, must be considered.

The Borden Company representative testified that the level of the Class I price is not the complete answer to the shortage of milk in Central Arkansas. The fact is that large volumes of milk have been used to supply Class I sales in the Memphis and Ft. Smith areas. To continue in this manner could increase the Central Arkansas Class I price to an extremely high level, and still not result in adequate supplies for Central Arkansas handlers. The association's proposed Class I price would jeopardize large quantities of Class I sales in eastern Arkansas, and in the Memphis marketing area which are of great value to producers. The Central Arkansas handlers would be at a great disadvantage in competing with the Memphis handler located at Conway, Arkansas, who could procure milk for 63 cents per hundredweight less than Central Arkansas handlers (35 cents increase and 28 cents location differential). It was pointed out that prior to the order, Central Arkansas prices averaged five cents per hundredweight over Memphis. For 10 month of 1956 it averaged seven cents over.

Evidence introduced into the record concerning marketing statistics was necessarily restricted to the period December 1955 through September 1956. This is due to the fact that the order became effective in December 1955. Consequently, there are insufficient data available for comparison to determine what impact the present price level has had on production. Official notice is hereby taken of the market administrator's statistical summaries for October, November and December 1956. These summaries, along with data in the record provide marketing statistics for a full year, plus a comparison of December 1955 with December 1956. In addition, official notice is taken of the market administrator's announcement of the Class I price for January and February 1957, as well as the Class II price for January 1957.

Since the inception of the order, the Class I price for Central Arkansas has been the same as that for Memphis, Tennessee. This price includes whatever supply-demand adjustment is applicable for the Memphis market. As a result of a recent amendment to the Memphis supply-demand adjuster, the Class I price for Central Arkansas increased significantly for the months September, October and November 1956. For December 1956, the Class I price was 25 cents per hundredweight more than in December 1955. For January and February 1957 compared with 1956, the Class I price was 12 and 14 cents more, respectively.

Daily average producer recepits have increased steadily during 1956. In December 1956 daily average producer receipts were 61,000 pounds more than in December 1955. Total numbers of producers, both "part time" and "regular" have increased since December 1955. Present price levels have encouraged increased production per producer, from 412 pounds in December 1955 to 454 pounds in December 1956.

On the other hand, the utilization of producer milk in Class I has declined slightly from 94.9 percent in December 1955 to 92.0 percent in December 1956.

It is recognized that marketing experience under Federal regulation for the Central Arkansas market has been limited insofar as it is possible to analyze the effect of the present Class I price level on production. It is concluded that the present Class I price level insofar as it can be determined, has encouraged the development of needed supplies of producer milk. The Class I price level should not be changed at this time.

In this connection it should be noted that the handler proposal to establish an appropriate supply-demand adjuster for the Central Arkansas market was not supported at the hearing. The Central Arkansas market has had a history during the past year of having one large handler regulated either by the Central Arkansas order, or by the Memphis order. More experience is needed in order to construct an appropriate supply-demand adjuster for Central Arkansas. When adequate data are available an appropriate supply-demand adjuster my be considered and the level of the Class I price reviewed.

7. The seasonal pricing provisions for Class II milk should be amended. The Class II milk price is based on the average paying prices of three Arkansas manufacturing plants during the six months period of February through July. During the remaining six months the price is determined to be the basic formula price for the month, or the average pay price of the three Arkansas plants plus 25 cents, whichever is less. This pricing mechanism results in a lower Class II price during February through July than is applicable during the remaining six months.

Producers proposed that the lower Class II price apply during the months April through June. The effect of the proposal would result in a higher price for Class II milk during the months February, March and July than now prevails during those months.

During February and March, 1956 only small quantities of producer milk were utilized in Class II. The volumes so utilized were manufactured into high value products such as ice cream and cottage cheese. Relatively little milk was manufactured into butter and cheese.

The utilization of producer milk in Class II during 1956 was highest during the months April through July. For the months February and March, the utilization of producer milk in Class II was 4.81 percent and 3.05 percent, respectively. For the months April through July, such utilization ranged from a low of 10 percent to a high of 15 percent.

The experience of the market in 1956 indicates that a limited revision of the seasonal pricing of Class II milk is justified.

While statistics are available for only one year, it is questionable whether the month of July should be designated as a seasonally higher Class II pricing month. In July 1956, for instance, over two million pounds of producer milk were utilized in Class II. This was the largest volume so utilized in any month for the year.

On the other hand, the months of February and March may reasonably be included among the seasonally higher Class II pricing months, since the utilization of Class II in these short production months is relatively low. At the same time, such utilization is primarily for the manufacture of higher valued products.

For 1956, the Central Arkansas Class II price on a yearly average basis compared favorably with those for surrounding Federal order markets. It was higher than three of them, ranging from 8 to 13 cents. At the same time, it was 10 cents lower than two others.

Handlers opposed the proposed amendment on grounds of competition with unregulated plants selling ice cream mix into the Central Arkansas marketing area. One handler opposed the amendment because he expects to expand his Class II ice cream and cottage cheese manufacturing operations on the basis of the present price level. There was no testimony to indicate that handlers have had any difficulty in disposing of reserve milk at any time during 1956.

It is concluded that the months of February and March should be designated higher seasonal Class II pricing months. Such action is consistent with the seasonal pattern of Class II utilization of producer milk in the market. The provisions concerning the Class II butterfat differential should be amended to conform with this conclusion.

8. The compensatory payments provisions of the order should be amended. Handlers proposed that (a) the compensatory payments provisions of the order shall not apply whenever producer receipts at pool plants are less than 115 percent of total Class I sales from pool plants. (During the hearing handlers reduced the factor to 110 percent), (b) the months during which the rate of compensatory payments on other source milk is based on the difference between the prices for Class I and Class II milk be changed, (c) the rate of compensatory payments applicable to nonpool handlers distributing fluid milk products on routes in the marketing area be based on the difference between the Federal order uniform price for the month and the average producer pay price of the nonpool plant, and (d) the rate of compensatory payments in all months of the year be based on the difference between the Class I price and the uniform price.

In support of (a), handlers testified that the allocation provisions of the order do not encourage producers to supply Central Arkansas handlers. Handlers contend that producers have an implied obligation to supply the market with its minimum requirements for milk before handlers are required to pay compensatory payments on other source milk utilized to furnish the Class I requirements of the market.

Handlers testified that during short-production months they have paid premiums for producer milk. At the same time, compensatory payments were charged on other source milk which was needed to supply the Class I needs of the market. The Central Arkansas Milk Producers' Association operates under a "full supply" verbal agreement with handlers. Consequently, the association has imported volumes of other source milk for Central Arkansas handlers when producers were unable to supply sufficient volumes of milk for the Class I needs of the market. When such other source milk originates in areas not Federally regulated, a compensatory payment is charged in computing the handlers' obligation to the Central Arkansas pool.

Producers presented no opposition testimony or recommendation.

During 1956, there were four months during which producer receipts were more than 110 percent of Class I sales. During six of the remaining eight months, producer receipts were less than the Class I requirements of the market. The association has supplied handlers with other source milk whenever producer milk was not available in sufficient volumes to furnish the market with its requirements for Class I milk. Most of these imports of other source milk were from areas regulated by other Federal orders. Consequently, no compensatory payments were charged. Whenever other source milk was obtained from unregulated sources, such payments were charged.

The purpose of the compensatory payments feature of the order is to assure that milk for fluid use, from areas not regulated by a Federal order, shall be procured at not less than the minimum prices established for Central Arkansas; so that handlers who use such unpriced milk will not thereby have cheaper milk than handlers who use only producer milk, and no handler will have any incentive to substitute it for producer milk that is available to him.

Conditions in the Central Arkansas market are such that the association, representing a major portion of the producers supplying milk to regulated handlers, has the obligation under an agreement with handlers to procure for them other source milk when needed. Available marketing statistics indicate that the volume of producer milk available to regulated handlers was less than the requirements for Class I use during a substantial part of 1956. There is indication that the availability of producer milk is improving; but under prevailing supply arrangements there appears to be no need for compensatory payments by handlers on other source milk except when the market supply of producer milk is sufficient for Class I needs plus a minimum reserve. It is concluded that this proposal should be adopted.

In support of (b) and (c) one handler proposed different rates of compensatory payments on other source milk obtained by regulated handlers, and on fluid milk distributed in the marketing area by a nonpool plant. At the present time, the rates are the same.

In connection with (b) the witness testified that the need for the proposal is comparable to that discussed under (a) above. However, there was no specific testimony as to why the rate for pool plants should be any different from that for plants not regulated by a Federal order, and distributing milk in the marketing area.

It is concluded that these proposals should not be adopted. The aspect of these proposals concerning whether the rate of compensatory payments applicable to both types of handlers should be changed is discussed later in section (d).

In support of (d) a number of handlers testified that the present rate is too high during the months February through July. During this period, the rate is the difference between the prices for Class I and Class II milk. In support of their position, proponents contended (1) The distributing plant definition is such that their distribution of Class I milk in the marketing area reflects insignificant competition with regulated handlers; (2) prices paid to producers by unregulated handlers, who have had to pay compensatory payments, have been higher than the Central Arkansas uniform prices during the February through July period.

Milk from unregulated plants is sold as Class I in the Central Arkansas marketing area. It is distributed to consumers on routes operated by fringe area plants. Also, pool plants purchase milk from unregulated plants in bulk to supply their own Class I outlets.

The order contains classified pricing provisions whereby producers who are primarily engaged in furnishing milk for sale in the marketing area are paid for such milk according to its utilization. The pricing provisions of the order cannot be maintained unless the Class I market is safeguarded from the the competition of excess milk from surrounding unregulated areas, and from such areas located considerable distance from Central Arkansas.

Since there is no direct control over the pricing of milk from unregulated plants, the order provides a method of bringing such milk under the classified pricing system without fully regulating the plant from which such milk originated. The compensatory payments provision of the order accomplishes this.

Proponents testified that producer pay prices in the fringe areas are equivalent to or higher than the Central Arkansas uniform prices. Hqwever, in the absence of regulation, it is impossible to determine the comparability of the prices quoted with those established by Order No. 8. Producers shipping milk to unregulated plants are normally paid blend prices which may be influenced by different classification schemes, and by varying charges for services or supplies.

The record shows that milk supplies are invariably larger in Arkansas and in surrounding markets during the months March through July than in the remaining months of the year. The excess or increased production during these months must be marketed largely as manufactured products since Class I sales remain relatively static. The prevailing manufacturing milk prices represent the opportunity cost of such milk during these months. This aspect of the compensatory payments provision of the order was covered in detail in the final decision issued by the Assistant Secretary on October 7, 1955 (20 F. R. 7669).

It is concluded that there is no new evidence to justify changing the rates now provided in the order; but that the month of February should be included with those for which the lower rate applies.

9. Section 908.61 should not be amended. This section provides for determining the applicability of Federal regulation when milk plants qualify under more than one order.

Handlers and producers submitted this proposal as a conforming change in conjunction with their proposal to amend the distributing plant definition (Issue No. 3–b).

Since it was concluded under Issue No. 3 that the definition should not be amended, it is also concluded that this proposal should not be adopted.

10. The provision of the order authorizing plus or minus adjustments for errors made in previous payments made to producers should not be changed. The producers' association proposed that the provision authorizing minus adjustments for errors in previous payments to producers be deleted. The producers' witness testified that the present provision impairs the effectiveness of making audit adjustments for handlers when premiums have been paid. It was contended that the present provision would permit a handler who previously paid a premium to producers to underpay them in a later month. Then, on audit, the apparent overpayment could be applied to a subsequent underpayment. Or, as a result of a so-called overpayment resulting from a premium, a minus adjustment may later be made from checks payable to producers. Proponents contended that adoption of the proposal would prevent these situations from occurring. The purpose it serves is best explained by the use of the word "errors". This could include typographical errors made in preparing checks, arithmetical errors in computing payments, and the use of incorrect pricing data. It is not clear how the payment of a premium could be construed as an error in paying producers, unless pertinent facts are withheld from the market administrator at the time an audit is made. The market administrator should have available to him all the factors handlers use in computing payments to producers. If any confusion or uncertainty exists about an apparent overpayment, it would not be difficult to ascertain the facts.

At the same time, it is recognized that bona-fide errors may be made, requiring minus adjustments in payments to producers. In view of this, there is no justification for limiting the order provision to plus adjustments only.

It is concluded that the provision should not be changed.

11. The base-excess provisions of the order should be amended. Producers proposed that the base transfer provisions be amended (a) to permit partial base transfers, and (b) to provide for the computation of bases for producers when a plant previously regulated by another Federal order becomes regulated by Order No. 8.

In support of (a) the producer representatives testified that: (1) The association now permits its members to transfer partial bases. Presumably this is taken into account when the association rebiends the proceeds from the sale of milk and distributes it to its members. Since the association represents almost all producers on the Central Arkansas market, adoption of the proposal would merely reflect what is now being done in the market; (2) the effect of the proposal would be to increase production for the Central Arkansas market at a time when it is needed, because a new producer could obtain a base by purchase, by borrowing it or by having it given to him; (3) very few producers come on the Central Arkansas market during the heavy production season. The acquisition by them of some base could be no problem as far as the entire market is concerned. However, it is not clear that anything would be gained for the market as a whole by the adoption of this practice even though the association finds it convenient and useful among its members.

If adopted, the proposal would require a great deal more record keeping than is justified by the benefits which may result. It is not feasible to incorporate into the order a plan requiring as much administrative detail as this would.

It is concluded that the proposal should not be adopted.

In support of (b) producers pointed out that handlers in the Central Arkansas area have had large portions of their sales in the Memphis area and in the Ft. Smith area. Consequently, a situation exists wherein milk plants in the Central Arkansas area shift from regulation under one order to regulation under surrounding orders and back again depending on volumes of Class I sales distributed.

Under such conditions, it is reasonable to allow bases under Central Arkansas to be computed for producers shipping to such plants when shifts of this kind occur. The Central Arkansas market administrator could verify producers shipments to such plants during th short production season and compute bases for them under Order No. 8.

It is concluded that the proposal should be adopted.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. A number of briefs were filed which contained statement of fact, proposed findings and conclusions and arguments with respect to the provisions of the proposed amendments. Every point covered in the briefs was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the briefs are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in the recommended decision.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the marketing area, and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Recommended marketing agreement and amendment to the order, as amended. The following order, amending the order, as amended, is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. The proposed marketing agreement is not included in this decision because the regulatory provisions thereof would be identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended.

1. Delete § 908.4 and substitute the following:

§ 908.4 Central Arkansas marketing area. "Central Arkansas marketing area", hereinafter called the "marketing area" means all the territory included within the boundaries of the counties of Clark (except the city of Gurdon and the town of Okolona), Conway, Faulkner, Garland, Grant, Hot Spring, Jefferson, Lonoke, Monroe, Pope, Pulaski, Saline and White, all in the State of Arkansas.

2. In § 908.51 (b) and § 908.52 (b), delete "February" and insert "April".

3. At the end of § 908.70 (b) change the semicolon to a colon, and add the following: "Provided, That such calculation shall not apply if the total receipts of producer milk at all pool plants during the month are not more than 110 percent of the total Class I utilization of such plants for the month."

4. Delete § 908.90 and substitute the following:

§ 908.90 Computation of daily average bases for each producer. Subject to the rules set forth in § 908.91, the daily average base for each producer shall be an amount calculated by dividing the total pounds of milk received from such producer at all pool plants during the period of September through December immediately preceding, by the number of days from the first day of delivery by such producer during such period to the last day of December inclusive or by 90, whichever is more: Provided, That, in the case of producers delivering milk to a plant which first became a pool plant during any of the months of January through July, a daily average base for each such producer shall be calculated pursuant to this section on the basis of his deliveries of milk to such plant during the period September through December immediately preceding: And provided further, That such plant was regulated by another Federal order during that period.

5. Delete § 908.91 (a) and substitute the following:

(a) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section, the market administrator shall assign a base as calculated pursuant to § 908.90 to each person for whose account producer milk was delivered to pool plants during the months of September through December, or whose deliveries of milk during these months were to a nonpool plant which became a pool plant during the following months of January through July.

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 14th day of March 1957.

CUCUMBERS GROWN IN FLORIDA

Findings and conclusions. The findings and conclusions on the aforementioned material issues, all of which are based on the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, are as follows:

(1) The major portion of the cucumbers grown in the Florida production area enter commercial market channels with the great bulk of such movement going to destinations outside Florida. The 1955–56 Florida cucumber production has been estimated at 2,978,000 bushels. The 1954–55 Florida crop of cucumbers was estimated at 3,158,000 bushels. During the 1954–55 season, truck and carlot shipments, representing 7,519 carlot equivalents or approximately 3,383,550 bushels were shipped out of Florida into interstate or foreign commerce. However, included in total shipments are Cuban imports apparently equivalent to about 1,390 cars of cucumbers which were moved in trucks and a lesser quantity moved in cars, most of which were presumed to have left the production area. The distribution of the 1954–55 cucumber crop was widespread. Shipments from this crop were made to 45 States, the District of Columbia, Canada and to points both within and outside the production area in the State of Florida. The major portion of the market for cucumbers in fresh form lies outside the production area.

Naturally, all cucumber growers and shippers seek to obtain the highest possible return for their cucumbers. In assessing the market and in making sales, sellers survey all available markets with a view to accepting the most advantageous opportunities and offers to market their cucumbers. Successful shippers and packers are forced by their competition to keep fully informed with respect to all possible market information, especially the level and trend of prices in specific markets both within the production area and outside of Florida. There are sales opportunities within Florida as well as outside the State. The opportunity for advantageous sales are eagerly sought by handlers and such opportunities are accepted regardless of whether the cucumbers are sold at shipping point, or at destination, or in consuming markets within Florida, or in Boston, New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, or any other market beyond the production area. Both buyers and sellers use the latest and most modern forms of communication, not only to keep up with their competitors, but also to maintain the closest possible contact with market conditions at every point where there may be a potential sale. The sales manager would be lost without the telephone in contacting buyers in terminal markets and in talking to their customers. Many of the cucumber handlers in the production area make constant use of teletype reports which show such information as to supplies and prices in terminal markets and in the various producing sections as well as track, holdings, and weather reports and forecasts. All of this type of information aids handlers in evaluating their opportunities for sale of their supply of cucumbers and in arriving at price.

Governmental and private market agencies supply daily information to all cucumber factors relative to prices at all levels of distribution, car and truck shipments and unloads, production data, weather reports, and any other market information which may affect the cucumber market and tend to influence prices. Such daily market news information is issued in the form of radio reports, newspaper and trade paper releases, and via the mail. All Florida cucumber factors keep informed, not only with respect to market conditions at Florida shipping points and markets, but also in terminal markets and in competing areas of production, both domestic and foreign. Both shipping point handlers and receivers are well aware of market conditions at all levels through their close attention to and use of modern communications. Such handlers with the use of their market information quote, offer, bargain, buy, and sell cucumbers and thereby create an institution commonly referred to in the trade as the "cucumber market." The cucumber market is a combination of all of the factors that relate to the supply of and demand for cucumbers in the various producing sections in Florida, the supply that is available for immediate marketing, the supply for later marketing, the quality of such supply, the supply of cucumbers in competing areas, with consideration of qualities and availability, prices quoted by sellers at shipping point, in terminal or other receiving markets, as well as at intermediate points, and many other factors which influence both buyers and sellers in helping them to arrive at a meeting of minds which culminates in the sale and transfer of a particular quantity and quality of cucumbers.

The aforementioned factors are interdependent as between shipping points and receiving markets. Any factor which influences the market at shipping point is almost immediately reflected in prices in terminal markets; and in turn, the converse is also true. For example, cold weather or frost at shipping point may slow down the rate of grading and loading to such an extent that buyers will experience difficulty in filling orders and they will bid higher than they otherwise would for remaining supplies. Such resulting increase in shipping point prices will soon be reflected in terminal markets outside the production area. However, should supplies of cucumbers in competing areas be ample and available to fill any temporary shortage created in Florida supplies, prices in terminal markets and, in turn, at Florida shipping points may not change appreciably. Because of modern communication, the complete coverage of market information, and the large number of factors, shippers and receivers, buyers and sellers, in the cucumber business, sales prices for given qualities and packs of cucumbers soon became common knowledge. As a result, and it is well recognized, that a sale of a particular quantity of cucumbers in a market within the Florida production area influences or tends to influence all other sales of cucumbers in Florida as well as in markets outside of the State.

Changes in the supply of cucumbers being marketed at any particular time and changes in estimates of cucumber supplies available for market affect the price of cucumbers. Changes in the supply of cucumbers grown in the Florida production area, or any part thereof, have a direct effect on both terminal market and shipping point prices for all cucumbers. Cucumbers grown in any portion of the production area and marketed at any given season compete with any other cucumbers marketed at the same time no matter whether such cucumbers are grown in another producing section within Florida, or outside the State.

Few cucumbers grown in the production area are produced for any other outlet than the tablestock market. A few cucumbers, principally of the Kirby variety, are produced specifically for processing. Production of such varieties is largely dependent on prior contracts with processors since they are not of an acceptable table stock shape and color. A relatively small quantity of tablestock cucumbers (136,000 bushels during the 1954–55 season) was delivered to processors. Such latter quantity consists generally of cucumbers which have been picked over, having been discarded as culls in the tablestock grading operation. Such sales of cull tablestock cucumbers to processors is a salvage operation by the packer and the prices paid him are extremely low as are any subsequent returns to growers.

It is a common practice for handlers to load cucumbers at shipping points within the State and to ship such cucumbers to markets within the State such as Tampa or Jacksonville and then, before or on arrival at such markets, to divert the shipments to markets outside the production area. Conversely, shipments originally destined to markets outside the State may be diverted and disposed of within the State. This practice of diverting shipments from the originally intended destination occurs frequently, especially among truckers who are able to divert quickly in response to local price opportunities and offers. It is impossible in many cases, at the time cucumbers are sold to a trucker to determine finally whether such cucumbers will be transported and sold within the production area or to a point, or even several points outside the production area.

Many truckers haul mixed loads which include cucumbers and the destination of the several commodities being transported may be entirely dependent upon prices quoted and offered at a number of different locations. Hucksters and other truckers commonly make cash purchases of low quality cucumbers from packing houses. The final destination of such sales is not ordinarily known, but they become part of the cucumber market and either move to markets outside Florida or they directly burden interstate markets for cucumbers.

A considerable quantity of Cuban cucumbers is imported into the United States through Florida ports. On arrival, a large portion of these imported cucumbers are repacked in Florida packing houses, then loaded aboard cars or trucks and transshipped to markets outside of the production area. Such cucumbers are repacked in the same markets, and in the same packing houses within the production area as Florida cucumbers,—and both are frequently loaded on the same cars or trucks, follow identical routes, and are sold in the same markets. A number of Florida shippers and packers handle both Florida and imported cucumbers. Some imported cucumbers are sold for disposition within Florida at the time the Florida cucumber deal is active.

The phenomena of sale and movement constitute the market for cucumbers and the interdependence of markets both within and outside the State directly burdens, obstructs and affects interstate commerce. Factors making up the market for cucumbers constitute commerce which is so completely interspersed that all sale and movement of such cucumbers are either in the current of interstate or foreign commerce or directly burden, obstruct, or affect such commerce and therefore all such movement and sale of cucumbers grown in the State should be subject to the authority of the act and of the marketing agreement and order which may be issued pursuant thereto except where specifically excluded.

(2) Prices for cucumbers grown in Florida have fluctuated rather widely during the past several years, reflecting marketing conditions which generally have resulted in returning season average prices to growers below parity equivalent prices. Production and price statistics for Florida cucumbers are reported by the Agricultural Marketing Service, United States Department of Agriculture, on the basis of three seasons within each crop year; namely, late fall, winter, early spring. For the past 11 late fall crops, the average price received by growers for Florida cucumbers has ranged from 40 to 129 percent of the parity equivalent price, exceeding 90 percent only in 1945 and 1951. The average price of the 1955 late fall crop, $2.25 per bushel, reflected 70 percent of the parity equivalent price. During the last 7 winter-crop seasons since 1950, the season average price for cucumbers has ranged from 49 to 131 percent of parity. Winter crop prices have exceeded parity in 1951 and 1952 and reached 98 percent of parity in 1954.

In 1956, the ratio of average price for the winter crop of $4.42 per bushel to the parity equivalent price reflected 71 percent which is the second lowest ratio in the short 7-year winter crop price series.

Early spring cucumber prices have, on the average for a season, exceeded the parity equivalent price in only 1946 and 1956. During the past eleven seasons, season average prices of early spring crops have reflected from 60 to 127 percent of parity with the 1956 average price of $3.65 per bushel the latter figure.

When data for the three crop seasons are combined, the average price-parity price ratio has, for the last eleven seasons, exceeded 100 percent only during the 1945–46 crop season or immediately subsequent to World War II. During three other of the combined seasons, including the most recent (1955–56), the average price has reflected 97–98 percent of the parity equivalent price.

Another indicator of the unstable farm price structure for Florida cucumbers is set out in a Florida Agricultural Experiment Station report (Exhibit 11) which shows net returns to growers in seven selected producing areas in Florida during the five seasons, 1950–51 to 1954–55. The report shows that, in the Immokalee area, the costs of producing and harvesting a bushel of cucumbers have exceeded the returns from sales in four of the above five seasons; in the Manatee-Ruskin and Sumter areas, net returns show a loss in three of the five seasons; losses are shown for two of five seasons in the Alachua and Fort Myers areas (Negligible gains were reported in two of the remaining seasons in the Fort Myers area); and losses are reported for one season in the Pompano section. (The data reported from the Sumter area is applicable only to sales of trough-grown cucumbers).

Cucumber growers and shippers do not, for the most part, sell their produce on the basis of the U. S. Standards. It is common practice throughout the proposed production area to pack and sell cucumbers under such terminology indicating quality as "fancy," "choice," or "plains." The term fancy (or extra fancy) when applied to a cucumber package merely means that the contents of such package were the best quality available for packing at a given time; that if the general level of quality should improve on the succeeding day, yesterday's "fancies" might be called choice on the basis of today's packout. Nevertheless, there is no doubting the fact that sales of the best quality produce provide the highest returns to growers, while sales of less acceptable grades and sizes are discounted. This is clearly borne out by packing house records submitted by growers, shippers, a cooperative, and substantiated by market news reports.

Returns paid to growers by a cooperative illustrate both the wide fluctuation in cucumber prices over a short period and the price differentials based on quality. For example, on October 29, 1953, the cooperative returned $4.89 per bushel to its members for fancy quality (the peak for the fall season), $2.77 for choice, and $1.08 for plains. On November 16, the return for fancies was $2.07 per bushel and by the 27th of November, 1953, reached a low of $0.31 per bushel. In the spring of 1954, fancies returned a high of $5.05 on April 8; choice, $2.55; and plains, $1.05. Fall crop cucumbers in 1954 reached a peak of $6.10 per bushel return to growers on October 13; choice returned $3.10, with plains $1.00 less. In two weeks the returns for fancies had dropped more than $4.00 per bushel to $1.99, and on November 7 the cooperative paid growers $0.97 per bushel for fancy quality. Data for both the spring and fall seasons of 1955 indicate similar experience. In numerous instances during periods of low prices, growers actually received a bill from the cooperative for packing choice and plains, and, in one case, the price of fancies did not cover packing house charges.

On a number of occasions, the prices received by growers for their cucumbers did not cover harvesting costs. Frequently, during each season as indicated by the price data submitted by the cucumber growers' cooperative, there were no returns to growers for plains which were dumped for lack of sales. However, this usually occurred too late to help improve prices of better quality cucumbers.

The advantages derived from the sale of high quality cucumbers can be readily ascertained from an analysis of the sales and receipts of a number of growers who submitted such data at the hearing. During the 1954–55 season, the records of two growers reveal that the 68.2 percent of their volume of marketings which were sold as fancy (including cartons) cucumbers returned 78.7 percent of their total receipts. For the eight growers who submitted 1955–56 sales data, the fancy (including cartons) cucumbers which constituted 71.0 percent of total cucumber marketings accounted for 82.9 percent of total receipts. To put it another way, 21.7 percent of the crop (that portion of less than fancy, including carton, quality) accounted for only 13.8 percent of total sales receipts. Choice quality which represented 17.1 percent of the 1955–56 sales volume for eight growers, realized 12.1 percent of their returns.

Florida cucumber growers and shippers have not made extensive use of the grade terminology in the U. S. Standards for Cucumbers as a basis for trading. Also, only a relatively minor portion of total shipments have been subject to inspection and certification by the Federal-State Inspection Service in the past. The use of non-standard grade terms in the cucumber industry has resulted in demoralizing marketing practices creating the need for an order. Inspection coupled with grade and size regulation would help immeasurably to restore confidence in the cucumber trade as to commerce in this commodity.

The proponents of the proposed order have shown that an agreement, when properly administered, would serve to limit the volume by restricting size, grades, and qualities of cucumbers marketed thereby benefiting growers' returns. Their position is that poor or undesirable grades and sizes should be restricted when prices are low. Growers generally are critical of the present lack of standardization of grades and packs as a marketing practice which is injurious or depressing to growers' returns. The lack of standardization results in lack of confidence on the part of buyers and unduly depresses prices and returns to those growers whose cucumbers are graded and packed according to acceptable standards. A large portion of Florida cucumbers are sold by wire or over the phone. That portion of the industry which sells poor grades and packs can and does underquote others and, by doing so, forces the general level of prices down.

The proponents of the proposed order take the position that cucumbers of quality below the U. S. No. 2 grade should never be shipped. Any cucumbers below "plains" should not be permitted to enter fresh market channels under any circumstances because each unit of low quality cucumbers tends to substitute a lower value unit for a higher quality, higher value unit of cucumbers. Substitution of low quality cucumbers for produce of higher quality tends to depress prices of and returns to growers for the better quality produce. Also, consumers do not receive full value from their expenditures for low quality cucumbers. The general manager of a cucumber growers' cooperative stated that, during mid-April 1956 when cucumber prices were relatively high, the lowest grade shipped were the so-called "plains." "Plains" are considered by the trade as roughly corresponding to the U. S. No. 2 grade.

During the fall of 1953, growers who were members of the cooperative would have received higher returns had they shipped no plains, and possibly nothing but fancies, during and after the middle of November. There were instances when the grower received a bill for packing charges for choice, plains, and even fancies. During the spring of 1954, prices of cucumbers started off at a fairly high level, but prices dropped rapidly so that the cooperative's packing house was closed in the first week of May during that season. Not more than one-half of the crop of the members of the cooperative had been harvested at the time of closing. Other shippers actually dumped carloads of cucumbers that had already been packed and loaded.

During the fall of 1954, growers frequently lost money when plains and other less desirable grades and sizes were packed and sold. Even during the spring of 1955, considered a good season, losses were reported for some of the low grades, including plains. During the fall of 1955 the price level for cucumbers was so low that almost every grower lost money.

The Florida cucumber industry needs standardization of grades and packs. As a constructive improvement in orderly marketing practices, the United States Standards for Cucumbers are available and, in general, are satisfactory. However, unless a purchaser specifically requests inspection, the service is not customarily used in the case of cucumbers. The proponents have established the need for standard grades and packs. However, not all of the industry will support voluntarily a program of this type. Those persons who insist on continuing the present system can, by packing other than standard packages, upset the whole marketing price structure for cucumbers. As high as 90 percent of the cucumbers are sold by wire or telephone. Those shippers who pack and sell a standard pack which contains good quality throughout individual packages, or a constant quality within a package, are at a temporary disadvantage in quoting prices to their customers, in seeking new customers, and in conducting business over the telephone in trying to compete with those individuals who, for example, put up a choice package and label it as fancy, or who top off a package with fancy cucumbers when the remainder of the package might be of lower quality. The substantial variation in quality of that quantity marketed as a given grade, such as "fancy," has created a wide range in prices for "fancy" cucumbers. The wide price range makes difficult price agreement between buyers and sellers for a particular quality of cucumbers and such wide range can be and often is used to force the price of better quality cucumbers to the lower limits of the price range to the ultimate detriment of growers' returns. Recently the term "extra-fancy" has come into common use. In order to gain temporary price advantage, some shippers have adopted this term, stamping it on the lids of their fancy packages. In order to compete, other shippers have followed with the use of the term "extra-fancy" without necessarily increasing the quality of the cucumbers in these packages.

The fact that there is no standardization of grades commonly in use and that there is no limit on minimum and maximum quality factors for a particular grade, such as "fancy," has enabled some shippers to undercut prevailing prices of their competitors' produce. It is common practice in the cucumber industry for a shipper to sell a lower quality cucumber than one of his competitor's while, at the same time, stamping the same grade on the package. He then represents his produce as fancy, the same as his competitor, but because he is selling a lower quality, he either underprices his competitor or forces the price of his competitor's better merchandise down to the level of the price he is asking for his produce. This, of course, is reflected back to the grower of the higher quality cucumbers whose returns are discounted as a result of this practice.

The quantity of cucumbers available on the market at any given time, either daily or seasonally, has a direct effect upon the price which producers receive for their cucumber crops. Florida producers grow a major portion of the domestically grown cucumbers during the late fall, winter, and early spring seasons covering the period November through May. The quantity of cucumbers put on the market by Florida producers or handlers also has a direct effect upon the price of all cucumbers, particularly the price which Florida growers receive for their crop. The price of cucumbers in the market is a direct result not only of the total quantity of cucumbers being marketed, but also of the quality of cucumbers as reflected by the different prices paid by grades and sizes for such cucumbers. Certain grades and sizes of cucumbers return higher prices to producers than other grades and sizes. For example, U. S. No. 1 quality cucumbers normally return a higher price than U. S. No. 2 grade cucumbers, and a considerably higher price than cucumbers which are of lower quality than U. S. No. 2. Such low quality cucumbers are commonly referred to in trade circles as culls and sometimes as "cootertails."

Shipments of underdeveloped and overripe cucumbers have the same detrimental effect on returns to growers as do other poor quality or undesirable sizes or shapes of cucumbers.

It is common and usual practice among the great majority of handlers to eliminate the low grades, off-shapes, and overripe stock, and in many cases even the "plains" also, when they are grading cucumbers for market. Such poor quality cucumbers and discounted sizes and shapes and undesirable maturity are removed. Experienced handlers have found that it pays them to do so because the adulteration of the better packs, which constitute the bulk of their crop, with the poorer grades, maturity, and sizes forces the price down on all of their sales. However, some handlers continue to sell culls and off-sizes because they frequently are able to buy them at exceptionally low prices from the grower and to sell them at a small discount from average prices, thereby giving the handler as much or even a greater margin than they could expect from handling usual good quality and the more desirable sizes of cucumbers. The withholding of poor grades and undesirable maturities and sizes of cucumbers from markets in effect reduces the available market supply of such cucumbers. By reducing the quantity being marketed as well as eliminating discounts from average price, growers' prices for cucumbers are thereby improved.

The sale of cull cucumbers tends not only to return discounted prices to growers, but also give only limited satisfaction to consumers and such sale operates against repeat sales. It is not in the public interest to sell cull cucumbers under normal conditions because the evidence shows that consumers fail to obtain proper value for their expenditures as compared with purchases of good quality cucumbers.

Prices to Florida cucumber producers and total returns of such producers could be augmented by handling only the more preferred grades, sizes, and maturities of such cucumbers. Voluntary efforts have been made and practiced by individual producers and handlers in Florida to eliminate some of the culls especially when the average price level to Florida cucumber producers was low, but such voluntary efforts did not raise producers' prices and returns appreciably, since other handlers continued to ship culls and off-sizes to the detriment of all other cucumber producers and handlers and contrary to the public interest of the Florida cucumber industry.

The orderly marketing of cucumbers grown in Florida has been disrupted and the purchasing power of the producers thereof has been impaired by reason of the handling of certain grades, sizes, qualities, and maturities of such cucumbers which have adversely affected prices returned to cucumber producers.

A marketing agreement and order is necessary to authorize regulation of the sale and transportation of cucumbers grown in Florida so that more orderly marketing conditions for such cucumbers may be established. The establishment of more orderly marketing conditions as brought about by marketing agreement and order regulations will tend to establish parity prices for cucumbers grown in Florida. A marketing agreement and order authorizing regulation of the handling of cucumbers will assist the Florida industry in establishing and maintaining such minimum standards of quality and maturity and such grading and inspection requirements for cucumbers grown in the production area which will effectuate such orderly marketing of such cucumbers as will be in the public interest. The adoption of a marketing agreement and order program by handlers of Florida cucumbers and the approval of such an order by Florida cucumber producers will tend to promote more orderly marketing of such cucumbers and it will be in the public interest. It is hereby found that the marketing agreement and order as hereinafter set forth will promote more orderly marketing of Florida cucumbers and the operation of such a program will tend to establish and maintain such orderly marketing conditions for Florida cucumbers as will establish, as the price to farmers, parity prices for such cucumbers.

It is alleged in the brief on the evidence filed on behalf of the opponents that: (1) When Cuban cucumbers are coming in during the winter months, practically all of the U. S. production is in District No. 1; and (2) the principal competition of District No. 1 is from Cuba and not from proposed Districts 2, 3, and 4.

The importance to the United States of District No. 1 (Lower East Coast) as a winter cucumber crop producing section has been overrated by the opponents. During the past 11 crop years, 1945–46 through 1955–56, District No. 1 has been the most important producing section for Florida cucumbers in four winter seasons; District No. 2 (Immokalee—Ft. Myers) has been the most important cucumber producing section in five seasons. On two other occasions, acreage in each of these two districts was approximately equal.

The Lower East Coast, on the average, has accounted for about 12 to 25 percent of total cucumber acreage for an entire season for the production area as a whole. During the past 11 seasons, total acreage for fresh market in District No. 1 has ranged from 1,490 to 3,300 acres of cucumbers. For the production area, fresh market acreage has ranged from 10,170 to 16,355 acres. At no time during the 11 seasons cited has the Lower East Coast been the most important producing section in the production area.

In addition to the above, the fall and spring crops of cucumbers in District No. 1 have been greater than the winter crop in the majority of seasons. During 8 of 11 seasons and 6 of 11 seasons, respectively, the acreage of the fall and spring cucumber crops grown in District No. 1 have been greater than the winter crop. This fact is supported by exhibits introduced by opposition witnesses at the hearing which indicate that approximately 10 percent of their 1955–56 crop sales occurred during January, less than one percent in February, and slightly more than 17 percent in March, or a total of less than 28 percent of their total sales volume occurred during winter of 1956. Their volume of sales was high during December 1955 which accounted for 29 percent, and reached a peak in April 1956 when about 40 percent was sold.

(3) The term "cucumbers," as used in the proposed order, identifies the agricultural commodity to be regulated and distinguishes it from other agricultural commodities. The term "cucumbers" should be defined to mean all varieties of the edible fruit (cucumis sativus) which are commonly referred to as cucumbers and which are grown in the production area. Cucumbers are one of the principal vegetable crops grown by producers in the production area. Reference to "cucumbers" has a common and specific meaning to all growers and handlers in the production area as well as in other parts of the country. However, the definition should be limited to those grown in the production area, since cucumbers produced in other portions of the United States are not proposed to be regulated. The definition of cucumbers, as set forth in the marketing agreement and order, establishes the identity of the agricultural commodity for which regulation is authorized. It includes all varieties of cucumbers grown in the State of Florida, south or east of the Suwannee River, whether produced for fresh market or other outlets.

Some testimony was introduced at the hearing to the effect that all cucumbers imported into the production area from Cuba, from Florida points outside of the production area, or from any other domestic or foreign source, as well as those grown within the production area, should be included within the definition of "cucumbers" and thereby made subject to the authority of the order.

The maximum limitation as to the area of coverage in connection with the present proceeding was fixed in the notice of hearing, which was specified as the presently proposed production area. Cucumber producers and shippers in other portions of the continental United States were not, therefore, afforded the necessary advance warning that they might be included under the regulation and thereby afforded notice and opportunity to appear and testify and otherwise represent their respective interests. It would, therefore, be legally impermissible to include any additional portion of the domestic cucumber production in any event. This contention as to the inclusion of additional domestic production seemed to be related to the contested addition under regulation of the remaining portion of Florida not presently proposed to be included, which portion lies west or north of the Suwannee River. As is developed more fully below, it is concluded that the portion last referred to should not be covered under the presently proposed regulation in any event.

Although regulation of the grade, size, quality, and maturity of imported cucumbers on the same or comparable basis as Florida cucumbers will be mandatory as provided in section 8e of the act as added by the Agricultural Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 906, 1047) should the proposed order be issued, such regulation of the imported commodity would not only be incidental to, but would also be beyond the scope of the authority of the proposed order. In other words, any such regulation of imports would be wholly within the province of the Secretary, except that he would impose, on imports the same or comparable restrictions as to grade, size, quality, and maturity as are imposed under the order.

This definition establishes the commodity to which the handling activities related thereto are subject to the authority of the order. The act authorizes marketing agreements and orders applicable to cucumbers, or to any regional or market classification thereof. Cucumbers of all varieties which are grown in the proposed production area constitute a regional classifictaion of cucumbers and regulation of the handling of such cucumbers as authorized by the order will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Cucumbers therefore should be defined in the order to mean all varieties of cucumbers grown in the production area.

The term "production area" should be incorporated in the order as a means of specifying the area within which cucumbers must be produced before the handling thereof is subject to regulation thereunder. Production area should be defined to include all territory within the State of Florida south or east of the Suwannee River.

According to the 1954 census of Agriculture, 63 percent of the Florida farmers reporting cucumber production and 90 percent of the cucumber acreage grown within the State is contained in the production area delineated in the proposed marketing agreement and order. During the eight seasons from 1947–48 to 1954–55, rail and truck shipments from the production area accounted for more than 99 percent of commercial cucumber shipments from the State of Florida.

Considerable controversy developed at the hearing as to the exclusion of west Florida (the area within the State west of the Suwannee River) from the production area. It was testified that a large portion of the production grown in west Florida is disposed of in processing, mainly pickling, outlets. Also, the relatively small production in west Florida is for the most part noncompetitive with sales of cucumbers grown in the production area in that they are marketed late in the spring, late May and June, following the cucumber deal in the production area or in the early fall, in a small way, prior to fall crop marketings in the production area. West Florida cucumbers compete more with those grown in Georgia and other nearby States.

The production area thus defined contains most of the major table stock cucumber producing counties of commercial importance within Florida. Although cucumbers are not now grown commercially in some of the counties within the production area, such counties contain land areas capable of supporting commercial production of cucumbers and, as such, are potential growing areas on a competitive basis.

There may be minor variations in practices and methods of production, harvesting, and marketing of cucumbers from growing section to growing section within the production area. Nevertheless, grade and size terminology, packing operations, and sales methods are similar or basically the same throughout the production area. For example, cash sales are predominant in the Pompano market area, while most of the business in cucumbers is conducted on a telephone basis in the Wauchula or Fort Myers sections. However, both sales methods are not unusual in any of the producing sections in the proposed area where cucumbers are sold. No producing section has a marketing season which is entirely separate and apart from the other sections' marketing seasons as shown by the tabulation of monthly rail and truck shipments for the various Florida cucumber producing areas. Each section within the production area has to share and compete in common markets at the same time as one or more other sections.

Natural geographic and political boundaries favor the establishment of the proposed production area as defined. The production area consists largely of the peninsula portion of the State of Florida bounded on the east, south, and west by the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, on the northwest by the Suwannee River, and on the north by the State of Georgia. The Suwannee River and the State boundary do not bisect an important cucumber producing area. In addition, enforcement of regulations is favored by the fact that road guard stations, operated by the Citrus and Vegetable Division, Florida State Department of Agriculture, are strategically located at a number of highway outlets, generally at highway intersections or river crossings, leading out of the production area. Also, the number of rail outlets from such area is limited. There is no reasonable method or basis for dividing the production area into two or more areas for purposes of separate marketing agreements and orders. All territory included within the boundaries of the proposed production area constitutes the smallest regional production area that is practicable, consistent with carrying out the declared policy of the act, and the production area, therefore, should be defined as hereinafter set forth.

(4) "Handler", synonymous with "shipper", should mean any person except a common or contract carrier of cucumbers owned by another person who handles cucumbers or causes cucumbers to be handled. Handler should be defined in the proposed marketing agreement and order because regulation is at the handler level. The act authorizes the regulation of handlers only, specifically excluding producers in their capacities as producers. Any person engaged in the act or acts of handling or shipping cucumbers, or who causes cucumbers to be handled or shipped, should be considered to be a handler. Such persons are responsible for the grade, size, quality, maturity, and packs of cucumbers delivered to transportation agencies, or which are sold or transported in the current of interstate or foreign commerce, or otherwise so as directly to burden, obstruct, or affect such commerce, and such persons are handlers.

Common or contract carriers transporting cucumbers which are owned by another person are performing a handling function, but such handling should not be regulated under the order because they are not responsible for the grade, size, quality, maturity, or pack of the cucumbers being transported. Neither are they responsible for the introduction of such cucumbers into the stream of interstate or foreign commerce. Also, the sole interest of common or contract carriers in such is to transport the cucumbers for a service charge to destinations selected by others. The responsibility for the grade, size, quality, maturity, and pack of such cucumbers delivered to a common or contract carrier should be borne solely by the person or persons responsible for delivering such cucumbers to the carriers.

Of course, the usual packers and shippers would be considered as handlers because they are directly responsible for the preparation for market of cucumbers, and for the sale and transportation. A person who is merely complying with the orders issued by a superior should not be considered as a handler. A packing house foreman who is following instructions in issuing orders to graders and packers is not a handler. A truck driver for a packer is not a handler if he is transporting cucumbers on someone else's orders. However, a trucker who buys cucumbers and subsequently transports such cucumbers out of the production area is a handler because of the act of transporting such cucumbers in trade channels. Therefore, the term handler or shipper should be defined to mean any person (except a common or contract carrier of cucumbers owned by another person) who handles cucumbers or causes cucumbers to be handled.

"Handle" (or "ship") should be defined in the proposed order to spell out activities or transactions by handlers which come within the scope of the regulatory authority of the proposed program.

The great bulk of cucumbers grown in the production area normally are prepared for market in established packing houses, whether of the so-called small "bath tub" type, farmer packing houses, or commercial packing plants.

The running of such cucumbers over a mechanical grader, or the preparation of such cucumbers for market by any other means, should come within the definition of handle, because such activities determine the various outlets to which cucumbers go and they have a direct effect upon the price which cucumber growers shall receive for their crop. The matter of compliance with regulations which are authorized by the order can be determined by the handler who is grading or preparing such cucumbers for market. The primary responsibility for the grade, size, and quality of cucumbers in any given unit, or in any given lot rests with the person or persons responsible for the grading operation and for the kind of cucumbers which are put in the basket or other shipping unit.

The act of selling such cucumbers makes the person who effects the sale a handler because such sale directly affects the market for cucumbers. The transportation of cucumbers also has a direct bearing on the market and the movement and sale of cucumbers, regardless of whether such sale or movement is within or outside the production area, is so mixed that such activities cause such cucumbers to become a part of the stream of interstate commerce.

Handle should include all shipping activities. The handling of cucumbers under the order should begin when cucumbers start their movement from the field where grown and continue until such cucumbers leave the production area. However, there are exceptions to this general rule as spelled out in the definition of handle. Handle should also mean the sale of cucumbers grown in the production area at any point between the time that they begin to move from the field (usually immediately subsequent to harvesting) until they leave the production area.

There was testimony against authority for regulation within the production area. The general tenor of the testimony was to the effect that the objectives of the act and a program of the proposed nature could be accomplished through the regulation of that portion of the cucumbers which are shipped out of the production area. This latter quantity constitutes a high proportion of the total volume of shipments. The quantity of cucumbers shipped to and consumed in Florida markets within the production area is of minor importance as compared to the portion leaving the area. The non-regulation within the production area would also obviate what would be an otherwise difficult problem of enforcement and a burden on handlers. The deletion of the words "within the production area or" from the definition of handle as set forth in the notice of hearing would accomplish the above intent.

The growing and harvesting of cucumbers in the production area are properly producer functions and, as such, are exempt from regulatory authority of the proposed program. Picking cucumbers is normally considered part of harvesting and therefore a grower function. However, picking is an essential preliminary to the preparation for market of cucumbers. For example, it is a practice of itinerant truckers to buy cucumbers directly at the field where grown. The grower who sells cucumbers in this fashion should be considered as a handler, because he has made a sale of cucumbers which were prepared for market to the extent that some of the poorest quality, have been removed in picking and filling of the burlap sacks, baskets, crates, or cartons. Such cucumbers, even though they have not been over a grader, or through washers and waxers, are in an acceptable form as far as the buyer is concerned, whether itinerant trucker or other person. Also, the trucker who buys such cucumbers is a handler, because he is responsible for the transportation. Both the grower, who in this case is a handler, as well as the trucker should be held responsible for compliance with any regulatory obligations of the marketing agreement and order.

With two exceptions, all grading or preparation for market, transportation or sale of cucumbers should come within the scope of the meaning of handle. The two exceptions, set forth in the definition of handle, are contained in other marketing agreement and order programs and should provide a reasonable basis for the placing of the responsibility for compliance with regulations which relate to grade, size, quality, maturity, pack, inspection, or assessments. Cucumbers being transported, sold, or delivered to registered packing houses or to auction markets within the production area designated by the committee should be exempt from handling and from all regulation under the marketing agreement and order. In the case of the two exceptions, cucumbers are not being transported to market for immediate consumption and such cucumbers are subject to washing, waxing, grading, and packing following their sale at auction or their delivery to packing houses. The auction buyers and the packing house operator are handlers because each is responsible for preparation for market. Such persons determine the grade, size, and pack of cucumbers entering market channels. No useful purpose would be served by attempting to include within the definition of handle the activities leading up to and including sale of cucumbers at auction markets or delivery of cucumbers to registered packing houses within the production area because such cucumbers are not in the usual form in which the bulk of the crop is marketed. Since they have not been through the grading process most sellers and buyers do not consider them as usual or appropriate products for commercial trade and, as such, they have not yet entered the channels of commerce. In order to maintain control of such handling, it is necessary that grading be performed within the production area.

Some growers who sell picked cucumbers from the field are handlers and, as such, should be held responsible for compliance with any rules and regulations issued pursuant to the order. If a grower sells his unharvested crop of cucumbers in the field, he should not, under any circumstances, be considered a handler of those particular cucumbers because he has no connection with the grading and marketing of them. If, however, a grower should make a sale of picked cucumbers from the field to a handler registered with the committee, such registered handler should be the first handler of cucumbers and the grower would have no obligations under the order. Such registered handler should assume any regulatory burdens with respect to such items as payment of assessments, inspection and certification, and compliance with grade and size regulations.

It is common practice for producers not having packing facilities of their own to sell or deliver their cucumbers to persons having facilities for packing and otherwise preparing the commodity for market, i. e., to persons who are generally recognized as cucumber handlers. The producers, in such instances, properly rely on the persons preparing the cucumbers for market to see that, when they are shipped, they meet all applicable requirements for marketing. Thus, there should be excepted, in such instances, the movements of cucumbers from the fields to the places where they will be prepared for market. It will be necessary, however, to limit the scope of this exception in order to insure compliance with the regulations established under the program. Hence, it should be recognized that the facilities where the cucumbers are to be prepared for market must be located within the production area. Otherwise it would not be practicable for the committee to check effectively on the disposition of the cucumbers delivered to the packing facilities which did not meet the program requirements. Also, this exception should apply only in case the person engaged in the preparation of cucumbers for market has registered with the committee in accordance with such rules as it may, with the approval of the Secretary, prescribe. It is intended that the committee, under its rules, will register all handler-applicants whom it is reasonable to believe will conduct their packing and handling operations in accordance with the program requirements. It is also intended that all recognized handlers and other prospective handlers desiring to conduct their business in the usual or customary manner will register with the committee in order to enable them to obtain cucumbers without their having to meet program requirements at the times of deliveries by producers or others.

It is anticipated that the registration action, with its attendant benefit, will be of primary importance to handlers who handle cucumbers which are delivered to them by other persons as the producers. In the cucumber industry, there are, particularly in proposed District No. 1, a number of cucumber producers who pack and sell their own production. Many of such producers have packing facilities and machinery which compare favorably with the facilities of persons who are engaged in handling production of other producers as well as their own. Any such handlers of the type last referred to who might desire to register as such with the committee should be permitted to do so, provided, of course, they meet the other requirements for eligibility which are indicated above as being necessary.

In the brief filed on behalf of the opponents, it was contended that the proposed registration "would force the growers in District No. 1 with packing facilities on their farms to abandon their own facilities and use one of the seven or eight packing houses operating around District No. 1 area". Such a result is not contemplated or intended. Insofar as equipment is concerned any person, including the so-called "bathtub" operator, who has reasonably adequate facilities for preparing cucumbers for market should be entitled to be registered with the committee as a handler. Of course, registration with the committee should not be a necessary prerequisite to handling. In other words, any person who desires to do so should be permitted to handle, the only purpose of registration being, that a registered handler would obtain the extra benefits outlined above.

The picking, packing, loading, hauling, or any other handling or movement of cucumbers from the spot where grown places them in commerce by virtue of such movement and, in addition, such activities, with the exception of the activities heretofore indicated, cause the cucumbers to become a part of the visible supply of cucumbers which are available for market, and directly burdens, obstructs, or affects interstate commerce. The sale of such cucumbers at any time during these initial marketing activities continues such cucumbers in commerce, because such sale constructively moves the cucumbers in the stream of commerce from the seller to the buyer or consignee and actual movement of such cucumbers in the stream of commerce pursuant to the instructions to the buyer or consignee constitutes sale or transportation, or both.

All cucumbers grown in the production area, which are produced for fresh market, are graded or prepared for market and such processing activities are handler functions in the marketing of such cucumbers which are included in the definition of handle.

With the exception of the processes or activities specifically excluded from the definition of the term handle, all such activities, from the time cucumbers grown in the production area are picked until they move outside of the production area, should be included in the process of handling. The proposed definition of handle in the order does not include the sale at retail of cucumbers by a person in his capacity as a retailer. The activities of a producer, including the growing and the harvesting of cucumbers, are not included in the definition of handle, because such activities are construed as falling within the capacity of a producer as such.

(5) (a) Certain terms applying to specific individuals, agencies, legislation, concepts, or things are used throughout the order. Those terms should be defined for the purpose of designating specifically their applicability, and establishing the approximate limitations of their respective meanings wherever they are used.

The definition of "Secretary" should include not only the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, the official charged by law with the responsibility for programs of this nature, but also, in order to recognize the fact that it is physically impossible for him to perform personally all of the functions and duties which are imposed upon him by law, any other officer or employee of the United States Department of Agriculture who is, or who may hereafter be, authorized to act in his stead.

The proposed definition of "act" provides the correct legal citation for the statute pursuant to which this proposed regulatory program is to be operative, and makes it unnecessary to refer to such citations thereafter.

The proposed definition of "person" follows the definition of that term as set forth in the act, and will ensure that it will have the same meaning as used in the act.

"Producer" should be defined to mean any person who is engaged in a proprietary capacity in the production of cucumbers within the production area and who is producing such cucumbers for market. A definition of that term is necessary for appropriate determinations as to eligibility to vote for, and to serve as, a member or alternate member of the committee, and for other reasons. The term should be limited to those who have an ownership interest in cucumbers produced in the production area. It should not include laborers or others who perform work for a fee or for hire in producing cucumbers.

Numerous credit and financial arrangements are currently existent among persons connected with the growing and marketing of cucumbers in the production area which complicates the problem of determining who is a producer and who is not a producer for the purposes of the order. A producer should be any "person" who, in a proprietary capacity, produces cucumbers for market. "Person" is proposed to be defined as an individual, partnership, corporation, association, or any other business unit—each of which should be considered a legal entity. Each legal entity, whether an individual, a partnership, "joint venture", or a corporation, so engaged in the production of cucumbers for market should have, for example, one voice in selecting committee members and alternates in one district.

The appropriate test for determining whether or not a person is entitled to be called a producer is whether he has the title to the particular cucumbers. A person who owns and farms land resulting in his ownership of the cucumbers produced on such land should clearly be considered as the producer of such cucumbers. The same is true with respect to a person who rents and farms land resulting in his ownership of all or a portion of the cucumbers produced thereon. Likewise, a person who owns land which he does not farm but, as rental for such land, obtains the ownership of a portion of the cucumbers produced thereon, should be regarded as the producer of that portion, and the tenant on such land should be regarded as the producer of the remaining portion produced on such land. In each of the above situations, where the person acquires ownership of all of the particular cucumbers, such person, regardless of whether an individual, partnership, association, corporation, or other business unit, should be considered as one producer and entitled to one vote. However, in cases where the ownership is divided, i. e., where one person obtains ownership and physical possession of a portion of the particular production and another person obtains ownership of the other portion of such production, each such person should be considered as a producer and entitled to one vote.

There are considerable variations in the area of types of partnerships, and "joint ventures" whereunder the crop is owned jointly. The most common type appears to be an arrangement whereby one person puts up all or a part of the capital and another contributes machinery and/or skill. Another arrangement provides that one person is responsible for selling the crop, and the other with growing and harvesting the cucumbers. Capital, machinery, and labor may be contributed in varying degrees by each of the partners. Nevertheless, the partnership in its entity is a producer, and thus should have only one vote the same as an individual or corporation. Any action with respect to such an organization regarding voting matters depends, therefore, on the partnership agreement and action by the partners pursuant thereto, irrespective of whether the partnership is composed of individuals, corporations, or combinations thereof.

Numerous persons are engaged in cucumber growing operations who are paid for their services on a wage or per unit of production basis. As heretofore indicated, if such persons do not have title to any of the cucumbers, they are merely laborers working for a stated fee and as such should not have a producer status under the marketing agreement and order.

"Grading" and "preparation for market" are synonymous and mean the sorting of cucumbers by hand or mechanical means, or both, so that such cucumbers are separated into grade, size, maturity, and pack. Such classifications are determined by the handler who directs, in person or through his agent, how and in what number of classes the particular lot of cucumbers shall be separated. "Grading" or "preparation for market" is an activity which properly falls within the scope of "handle". Grading may vary from an operation performed entirely by hand in which certain cucumbers are picked out when they are being loaded at the field to a production line operation whereby cucumbers are carried by mechanical conveyor for washing and waxing and thence to a series of moving belts and tables, where sizes are determined and good quality, as represented by grades, sizes, and maturities, or any combination thereof, is separated from bad so that the cucumbers which are to go to preferred price outlets are separated from those going to discounted price outlets. The grading or preparation for market is an operation which applies to all cucumbers grown in the production area, even though the extent to which cucumbers are separated into market classes may vary considerably among the types of ultimate outlets. For example, sales of cucumbers in some fresh market outlets usually result in a lot of cucumbers being carefully graded so that only the preferred qualities and sizes are shipped to such outlets, while the off grades, off sizes, and off shapes may go to less discriminating markets or processing plants which do not require such careful separation into market classifications.

Definitions of "grade" and "size" should be incorporated in the order to enable persons affected thereby to determine the basis for application of grade and size limitations to the product they handle. Grade and size, the essential terms in which regulations are issued, should be defined as encompassing the equivalents of the meanings assigned to these terms in (i) the official United States Standards for Cucumbers issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, and (ii) to modifications or amendments of such standards, and to variations of such standards by regulations under the marketing agreement and order. Regulations under the order could then use such terms (grade, size, and maturity) with the constant meaning assigned to them in such standards, or in such modified or amended standards, or such regulation can vary such terms by prescribing, for example, a percentage of grade, as may be required at the time of issuing such regulation. Official inspectors are qualified to certify to the grade, size, and maturity of cucumbers grown in the proposed production area, in terms of any one of the aforesaid standards, or modifications, amendments, or variations thereof.

"Pack" should be defined as a basis for distinguishing among the various units in which cucumbers are prepared for market and shipped. That term is commonly used throughout the cucumber trade and refers to a combination of factors relating to grade, size, and maturity of the cucumbers and to the quantities and types of containers. For example, fancy quality cucumbers when put in bushel tubs or baskets is a common or usual pack. Choice quality produce in a wire-bound crate is a specific pack. Another example of a pack is the placing of small fancy cucumbers in a carton. Of course, there are numerous combinations of quality designations (both in terms of current trade usage and the official standards), sizes, maturities, varieties (to a minor extent), and containers. "Pack" should mean and include any of the above mentioned combinations as well as any other pack of cucumbers recommended by the committee and approved by the Secretary. The committee should be permitted, under appropriate rules and regulations, to establish such packs in terms of size tolerances, grades allowed, and weight of contents in their relationship to the unit being marketed.

"Container" should be defined in the order as a basis for differentiating among the numerous shipping units in which cucumbers move to market and for the permissive application of different regulation to such different shipping units. Authority for regulation by type of container was enacted by the 83d Congress, in the Agricultural Act of 1954, as an amendment to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended. The Florida cucumber industry, as represented by growers and shippers at the hearing, indicated that certain undesirable practices in the marketing of cucumbers relating to net weights and to numerous container types and sizes tend toward market disturbances. Use of the authority enacted in the recent container amendment to the act will provide a basis for alleviation of the problems associated with containers. The principal containers used in marketing cucumbers at the present time, in order of importance, are: (i) The hard-bottom "export" tub (capacity one bushel); (ii) the cartons—"senior", "regular", and "junior" (capacity of the "senior" carton is about one-third bushel, others proportionately smaller); and (iii) the wire-bound crate (capacity 1⅑ bushels). A few containers of other types are used to a minor extent. It is estimated that more than one-half of the cucumbers shipped out of the proposed production area move in bushel tubs.

It is common practice in the production area for cucumbers to be moved from the field where grown to packing houses within the area in partially filled burlap sacks. In most instances, such movement would be free of regulation in that the transportation thereof would be to registered handlers. A minor quantity of cucumbers may be moved in "bulk loads". Such bulk loads usually consist of low grades or culls which are collected at the end of the packing house grading operation and are trucked to processing outlets or the cull pile.

The definition of "committee" is incorporated in the proposed order to identify the administrative agency, the Florida Cucumber Committee, which would be responsible for assisting the Secretary in the administration of the program. Such a committee is authorized by the act and the definition of it would minimize the use of words in the order.

A definition of "fiscal period" should be incorporated in the order to establish the beginning and ending of an operating period. The establishment of such a period, which should comprise a full twelve months, is necessary for business-like administration of the marketing agreement and order and is desirable as a basis for establishing the term of office of committee members and alternates. The date marking the end of one fiscal period and the beginning of the new should fall at a time of little or no activity in the marketing of the cucumber crop and should allow sufficient time for the committee to organize and be prepared to function prior to the start of the new marketing season. The date July 31 is after the end of the spring cucumber deals in Florida and the fall planting season begins after August 1. There are no reported commercial shipments of cucumbers being made from Florida during this between-season time of year. It is, therefore, appropriate that fiscal period should be defined as set forth in the order.

"District" should be defined in the order as referring to each of the geographical sections or divisions of the production area, either as initially established or as later reestablished, in order to provide a basis for the nomination and selection of committee members and for regulatory purposes. The presently proposed division into districts is adequate and equitable from the standpoint of the present situation and should provide a practical basis for the purposes intended.

"Export" should be defined in the order as including all shipments of cucumbers beyond the boundaries of the continental United States. Separate treatment for export shipments may be desirable and necessary, because the nature of the demand for cucumbers in export markets may differ from the requirements in the domestic markets and, therefore, different or special regulations, or even no regulations might be justified with respect to such shipments.

Canada is the most important export market for Florida cucumbers. Canadian consumers may prefer different packs than are sold in many domestic markets. Also, the import requirements of Canada or other foreign countries may vary from regulations recommended by the committee applicable to domestic handling of cucumbers. In order that handlers of Florida cucumbers may be able to meet competition in export markets, and especially in Canada, sufficient flexibility should be allowed the committee in the regulation of such exports, or to provide that relaxation of, or no regulations, be applicable to shipments destined to export outlets.

Territories and possessions of the United States should be included under the term "export" because shipments to such markets would tend to satisfy a different type of demand than domestic shipments. Also there is an insignificant quantity of cucumbers shipped to offshore possessions which are considered as analogous to shipments to foreign countries.

(b) The order should provide for the selection by the Secretary of an administrative committee, called the Florida Cucumber Committee, composed of eight producer members and four handler members. Establishment of this committee would be desirable and necessary to aid the Secretary in carrying out the declared policy of the act. The establishment of such a committee is authorized by the act. The proposed membership would give cucumber producers and handlers in the production area fair and equitable representation on the committee. The order should also provide for the selection of alternate members, who should be required to qualify on the same basis as the particular individual member for whom he is an alternate.

The proposed committee membership of eight producer members and four handler members was generally supported by the industry as equitable and practicable. Evidence supports the finding that this plan of representation has received intensive study by the industry and that, after thorough consideration, such division of responsibility among 12 such individuals is appropriate.

In order to be eligible for committee membership, each person selected should be a producer or a handler or an officer or employee of a producer or handler (depending on the capacity for which selected). Each such person should produce or handle cucumbers in the district for which selected and reside in the production area.

Some well qualified persons may not reside in the district where their principal interest lies. If such person can otherwise qualify for committee membership, this fact alone should not prevent his selection to represent a particular district, even though his residence is outside of such district but within the production area. Producers and handlers who have the above qualifications should be intimately acquainted with the problems of producing or marketing cucumbers grown in such district and each may reasonably be expected to present accurately the problems incident to production or marketing of cucumbers grown in such district. For obvious reasons, the qualifications for each alternate should be the same as for the respective member for whom he may act. Such qualifications should help to assure that the interests of the group from which each is selected will be adequately represented in committee deliberations.

Each committee member and his respective alternate should serve a one year term of office ending July 31, and for any additional period needed for the selection and qualification of his successor. Such term of office would be reasonable and would allow the cucumber industry to express its approval or disapproval of the committee's membership at the end of any season and prior to the opening of a new season. At the same time, a one year term of office would not preclude the renomination and reselection of able and popular incumbents. Committee members and alternates should be selected for the fiscal period during which they are to serve and until their successors have been selected and have qualified.

Districts should be established to provide a basis for selection of committee members. The districts as initially proposed and as recommended herein for adoption were worked out by industry spokesmen, and they apparently represent the best basis which could be devised at this time for providing a fair, adequate, and equitable representation on the committee.

The proposed districts as set forth in the order constitute what are generally known and recognized by the cucumber trade as separate and distinct production sections. For example, District No. 1, which included the Pompano market area and Dade County, is referred to as the "Lower East Coast"; District No. 2 contains the "Immokalee-Fort Myers area"; District No. 3 is commonly known as the "Wauchula Section"; and District No. 4 includes the "Alachua-Gainesville Area".

There was some discussion at the hearing as to the advisability of including Okeechobee County in District No. 1. The nearest State Farmers' Market is at Fort Pierce, in adjacent St. Lucie County. Also, The Florida Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in its reports includes the small acreage of Okeechobee County cucumbers with that reported for St. Lucie County, a part of District No. 1. Total shipments reported as originating from Okeechobee County were the equivalent of two carlots during the 1954–55 season.

The provision for redistricting would be desirable because it would allow the committee to consider, from time to time, whether the basis for representation could be improved and how such improvements should be made. The guides set forth in the proposed order which the committee should keep in mind in considering redistricting are appropriate and desirable factors which relate directly to the welfare of cucumber producers and handlers.

The notice of hearing provided, in the section relating to redistricting, that, in addition to the authority for changing boundaries of districts, the committee membership could be reapportioned among the districts. However, testimony at the hearing supports the finding that authority to change the presently proposed representation of two producers and one handler from each district be excluded from the proposed order.

The Florida vegetable industry is a dynamic activity with constant changes in the production pattern. Production of cucumbers and other vegetables in the important Immokalee area reached commercial proportions only a few years ago. A new cucumber production section near Naples appears to be developing. In order to take cognizance of such changes in the future and to provide equitable representation for producers and handlers on the committee, the authority for redistricting should be contained in the proposed order. The provision for redistricting appears adequate to take care of the above eventualities without the additional authority for reapportionment of the committee membership among the several districts. A requirement that any recommendation for redistricting be forwarded to the Secretary on or before February 1, and that he approve such recommendation not later than March 15 in order to become effective at the beginning of the next term of office, is necessary so that producers will have ample time to consider their nominations for committee membership on the basis of realigned districts prior to nomination meetings, which it is intended will be held before July 1 of each year.

The selection of committee members and alternates on the basis of districts as provided for in the proposed order would provide a practical and equitable basis for selection of such members. Such proposed geographical basis should be, and has been, related to the number of producers and the production of cucumbers within the production area so that a practical basis for establishing equity has been reached. Although a preponderance of cucumber acreage or production may exist in one or two districts, other districts may contain a numerical superiority of producers. The evidence at the hearing indicates that, in view of the above, a balanced administrative committee would be selected should each district be provided with the same number of committee members. In this manner, both small and large producers and handlers would receive equitable treatment. The provision that two producers and one handler should be selected as committee members and two producers and one handler should be selected as committee alternates from each district is equitable and meets with the wishes of the industry, as shown by the evidence. The provision that there should be two producers and one handler selected as alternate committee members would provide a practical working basis for having full representation when any member from a district is absent.

A procedure for the election by producers of nominees for membership on the committee should be prescribed in the marketing agreement and order. Such provision is intended to provide for assistance by the cucumber industry to the Secretary in his selection of members and alternates on the committee. It is customary in the Florida cucumber industry for producers to conduct meetings to establish their preferences for positions of trust and responsibility in the industry. The nomination of prospective members and alternates at meetings of producers in the respective districts is a customary and practical method of providing the Secretary with the names of the persons which the industry desires to serve on the committee.

The notice of hearing provides for the nomination of committee members and alternates at a meeting or meetings of producers in each district. Testimony offered with respect to the nomination procedure was quite clear that only producers should participate in the nomination of committee members, regardless of whether they are producer members or handler members. It was argued that, because of the principal objective of a marketing agreement and order program is on behalf of producers, only such persons should have a voice in choosing the individuals nominated to represent their interests. There was general expression that the marketing experience of well qualified handlers, who may not also be producers, should not be denied such an industry group as the Florida Cucumber Committee in its deliberations relating to grade, size and other regulations. For that reason, a minority handler representation should be provided on the committee. It is anticipated that practically all handlers will be qualified to participate in nomination meetings, since it was testified that handlers also generally produce cucumbers.

In order to obtain an indication of the industry's preference for membership on the initial committee, it should be provided that meetings of producers may be sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture, or by any agency or group requested to do so by the Department. This should afford a practical and appropriate means of initiating movement whereby the industry might express its wishes and preferences with respect to committee membership. Producers should be given reasonable notice that nomination meetings have been scheduled so that they can make plans to attend. Such notice should be given by the committee or other agency requested to do so by the Department. At the start, no committee would be in existence and, hence, would not be available to assume such responsibilities.

Nomination meetings for the purpose of electing nominees for members or alternates on the committee after the initial committee should be held prior to July 1 of each year. Such meetings should be held by the committee or by persons or groups requested by it to hold such meetings.

At least two nominees should be designated for each position as member and each position as alternate so that the Secretary may have a choice in making his selection. In addition, if a selectee should decline to serve, the Secretary would have the name of another prospective member or alternate from which to make a selection. It is the desire of the industry, and it is appropriate, that producers voting at such industry meetings ballot for nominees to indicate the ranking of their choices for each position to be filled. Nominees lists should be supplied to the Secretary in the form and manner prescribed by him so as to establish administrative uniformity in the handling of such matters. Such nominations for committee members and alternates should be supplied to the Secretary not later than July 15 of each year in order to afford him sufficient time in which to make his selections.

If a person should produce cucumbers in more than one district, such person should select the district in which he wishes to cast his vote for nominees on the committee. Any other procedure would tend to give such person a greater voice than other producers in the nomination of committee members.

Each producer participating in the industry meetings for the election of nominees to the committee should be limited to one vote on behalf of himself, his agents, subsidiaries, affiliates, or representatives in designating nominees. Voting on any other basis would not provide for equitable representation, because it would give the producers with interests in more than one district a greater voice in election of nominees than producers operating in only one district. The plan of one vote for each producer should be so construed that the person eligible to vote in a nomination meeting should be allowed to cast one vote for each position which is to be filled in the district in which he elects to vote. For example, at meetings for the election of nominees to the initial committee, each person voting as a producer in a given district would be allowed to cast one vote each for each of the three member nominees and one vote for each of the three alternate member nominees. Not more than one officer or employee of a producer or a handler should be eligible for nomination and selection as a committee member or alternate during a term of office, because this would tend to give a single organization unfair influence in committee business.

In order that there might be an administrative agency in existence at all times to administer the order, the Secretary should be authorized to select committee members and alternates without regard to nomination if, for any reason, nominations are not submitted to him in conformance with the procedure prescribed therein. Such selection should, of course, be on the basis of the representation provided in the order so that the composition of the committee would, at all times, continue as prescribed therein.

In the event the committee should neglect or fail to call nomination meetings by July 1, the Secretary should have the authority to select the above procedure in selecting committee members or to issue a call for nomination meetings on his own motion after reasonable notice to the cucumber producers in the production area.

Each person selected by the Secretary as a committee member or alternate should qualify by filing with the Secretary a written acceptance of his willingness and intention to serve in such capacity. This requirement will be necessary so that the Secretary will know whether or not the position has been filled. Such acceptance should be filed within 10 days after the notification of appointment so that the composition of the committee would not be delayed unduly. In order that a well intentioned selectee would not be disqualified by his failure to accept his appointment promptly, the date of notification should be the first date on which the selectee receives the notification of appointment in person. Initial acceptance of appointment by telegram would be satisfactory, provided it is followed within a short time by written acceptance.

It would also be desirable and necessary that the Secretary be authorized to fill a committee vacancy without regard to nominations if the names of nominees to fill any such vacancy are not made available to the Secretary within 30 days after such vacancy occurs. The Secretary should have recourse to such means of filling vacancies in order to maintain continuity of administrative agency operations and to insure that all portions of the production area are adequately represented in the conduct of committee business. Incumbent alternate members should be considered by the Secretary as among those qualified for vacant positions on the committee.

Nomination meetings might be called in the district which is represented by the vacated position on the committee so that producers might elect nominees for the Secretary's consideration. The vacant position should be occupied by the respective alternate member from the district involved until filled by a properly qualified selectee.

Each alternate should be authorized to act in the place and stead of the member for whom he is an alternate during such member's temporary absence. Continuity of operation of the marketing agreement and order is best assured by such authorization. An alternate should also be authorized to act in a member's absence when such absence is due to death, removal, resignation, or disqualification of the member. Alternates acting in the place and stead of members should continue to act in such capacity until a successor for the member has been selected and has qualified.

A quorum of the committee should consist of at least eight members. This would not only insure that one more than a majority of the members would be in attendance at committee meetings, but also would require that representation be present from at least three of the four districts. Committee decisions should, therefore, reflect an accurate and representative cross section of industry thought and attitudes.

Not less than eight members of the committee should be required to concur in any committee action in order for it to pass. Such a voting requirement, constituting a minimum of two-thirds of the membership, is deemed reasonable and adequate. This requirement would also assure that producer representation at committee meetings would, at no time, be less than one-half of those present.

The committee should be authorized to vote by telephone, telegraph, or other means of communication when a matter to be considered is so routine that it would be unreasonable to call an assembled meeting or when rapid action is necessary because of an emergency. Any vote cast at other than an assembled meeting should be confirmed promptly in writing to provide a written record of the votes so cast. In case of an assembled meeting, however, all votes should be cast in person.

Committee members and alternates should be reimbursed for necessary and reasonable expenses incurred in the performance of service to the committee. Expenses for services by committee members should be allowed only for those specifically requested or directed by the committee. Such expenses might include travel, hotel accommodations, and meals. Reimbursement for reasonably necessary expenses is required to offset actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred in performing duties in connection with the marketing agreement and order.

In determining a reasonable basis for reimbursement of members and alternates for necessary expenses incurred on committee business, the committee should consider schedules of expense allowances established by the State of Florida or the Federal Government, or by other administrative committees as a guide. However, it is not believed that the following of any such schedule should be made mandatory. Instead, the appropriateness of such expenditures should be judged on the basis of whether they are reasonable and necessary in the light of the attendant circumstances. Reimbursement should be made to cover the "out-of-pocket" costs only and, in no event, should it be in lieu of salary or compensation.

The committee should be given those specific powers which are set forth in section 8c (7) (C) of the act, because such powers are authorized to be granted by the enabling statutory authority and they are necessary so that an agency of the character set forth in the marketing agreement and order could function.

The committee's duties, as set forth in the marketing agreement and order, will be necessary for the discharge of its responsibilities. Such duties are generally similar to those specified for administrative agencies under other programs of this character. It is intended that any activities undertaken by members or alternates of the committee will be necessary for the committee to carry out its responsibilities as prescribed in the order. It should be recognized that these specified duties are not necessarily all inclusive, in that it may develop that there are other duties which are incidental to, and not inconsistent with, the terms and conditions of the order which the committee might need to perform.

(c) The committee should be authorized to incur such expenses as the Secretary should find are reasonable and likely to be incurred by it during each fiscal period for the maintenance and functioning of such committee and for such other purposes as the Secretary might, pursuant to the provisions of the order, determine to be appropriate. The expenses so incurred should be shared by handlers on the basis of the ratio of each handler's total shipments to the total shipments by all handlers during specified fiscal periods. The basis for determination of the ratio of shipments by individual handlers should be based upon the total shipments by first handlers thereof. The above formula is believed to be the fairest method of obtaining operating revenues on an equitable basis from handlers.

The committee should be required to prepare a budget at the beginning of each fiscal period, and as often as may be necessary thereafter, showing estimates of income and expenditures necessary for the administration of the order for such period. Each such budget should be presented to the Secretary with an analysis of its components and an explanation thereof in the form of a report on such budget. It would be desirable that the committee recommend a rate of assessment to the Secretary which should be designed to bring in during each fiscal period sufficient income to cover expenses incurred by the committee. There should not be any increase made in the budget without prior recommendation of the committee and approval of the Secretary.

The funds to cover the expenses of the committee should be obtained through the levying of assessments on handlers. The act specifically authorizes the Secretary to approve the incurring of such expenses by administrative agencies, such as the proposed Florida Cucumber Committee, and the statute also requires that each marketing order issued pursuant to the act contain provisions requiring handlers to pay their pro rata shares of the necessary expenses. Moreover, in order to assure continuance of the committee, the payment of assessments by handlers should be permitted to be required irrespective of whether particular provisions of the marketing agreement and order are suspended or become inoperative.

Each handler should pay the committee, upon demand, his pro rata share of such reasonable expenses which the Secretary finds will be incurred necessarily by the committee during each fiscal period. Such pro rata share of expenses should be equal to the ratio between the total quantity of cucumbers handled by him as the first handler thereof during a specified fiscal period and the total quantity of cucumbers so handled by all handlers during the same fiscal period. It will be necessary that responsibility for the payment of the assessment on each lot of cucumbers be fixed and it will be logical to impose such liability on the first handler of such cucumbers. In most instances, the first handler and the applicant for inspection are the same person. However, in the event the first handler fails to apply for, and obtain, inspection, this does not in any way cancel his obligation with respect to the payment of assessments. Except in the case of movements to registered handlers and to designated auction markets, first handling should apply to cucumbers when they have been subjected to grading or preparation for market. Assessment rates should be recommended by the committee and applied by the Secretary to a specific unit of shipment. For example, assessment rates might apply to carlot shipments or they might be applied on a bushel basis, or by any other unit of shipment commonly used in marketing cucumbers grown in the production area. However, such assessments for a fiscal period should be applied on a uniform rate basis.

It was argued at the hearing and in the brief filed on behalf of the opponents that administrative assessments should not only be imposed on all cucumbers which would be subject to regulation under the proposed order but also on all other cucumbers which move into and out of the production area, such as those cucumbers which are imported into Florida from foreign countries and then move from Florida into other States. Cucumbers which fall into the latter category would, as has been set forth heretofore, not be included under the regulation of the proposed order and it would not be appropriate to impose assessments against them for operational expenses of the program. It is necessary that only cucumbers which would be regulated under the program be assessed to cover the costs of such program.

The committee should be authorized at any time during or subsequent to a given fiscal period, to recommend the approval of an amended budget and the fixing of an increased rate of assessment to balance necessary committee expenses and revenues. Upon the basis of such recommendations, or other available information, the Secretary should be authorized to approve amended budgets and, if he should find that the then current rate of assessment is insufficient to cover committee administration of the order, he should be authorized to increase the rate of assessment. The order should also authorize the application of such increased rate of assessment to all cucumbers previously handled by first handlers during the specified fiscal period so as to avoid inequities among handlers.

Should grade, size, or other regulations be temporarily suspended, the committee should have the authority to recommend the continuation of the collection of assessments from handlers. Once established, the committee should not be required to suspend its manager and other personnel or otherwise to interrupt its office operations merely because of a suspension of regulations which usually are associated with revenue producing assessments. Subsequent reestablishment of committee operations at a later date might prove more costly to the cucumber industry than continued operations provided by uninterrupted revenue.

Funds received by the committee pursuant to the levying of assessments should be used solely for the purpose of administration of the order, including appropriate research and development projects. The committee should be required to maintain books and records clearly reflecting the true up-to-date operations of its affairs, so that its administration might be subject to inspection at any time by appropriate parties during regular hours of business.

Each member and each alternate, as well as employees, agents, and other persons working for or on behalf of the committee should be required to account for all receipts and disbursements, funds, property, or records for which they are responsible and the Secretary should have the authority, at any time, to ask for such accounting. The committee might wish to require the bonding of certain of its members or employees entrusted with the custody of funds or property and this should be permitted.

Whenever any person should cease to be a member or alternate of the committee, he should be required to account for all receipts, disbursements, funds, property, books, records, and other committee assets for which he is responsible. Such persons should also be required to execute assignments or such other instruments as may be appropriate to vest in their successor or any agency or person designated by the Secretary, the right to all such property and all claims vested in such person.

If the committee should recommend that the operations of the marketing agreement and order should be suspended, or if no regulation should be in effect for a part or all of a marketing season, the committee should be authorized to recommend, as a practical measure, that one or more of its members, or any other person, should be designated by the Secretary to act as a trustee or trustees during such period. This would provide a practical method whereby the committee's business affairs could be taken care of during periods of relative inactivity with a minimum of difficulty and expense. If the circumstances would warrant the designation of trustees, the committee and its personnel would continue to operate, possibly in a curtailed fashion, as usual during periods of suspension or relative inactivity.

The committee should provide periodic reports on its fiscal operations. It is expected that audit reports would be requested by the Secretary at appropriate times, such as at the end of each marketing season, or at such other times as might be necessary to maintain appropriate supervision and control of the committee's affairs. Also financial statements which reflect the current fiscal position of the committee should be furnished members and alternates and the Secretary at the close of each month. Audit reports and monthly financial statements should be supplied on request to persons such as producers and handlers, having a valid interest in the contents of such reports. In no case should data of a nature which could prove detrimental to the interests of an individual handler or producer be disclosed in copies of fiscal reports released.

Except as indicated below, handlers should be entitled to a proportionate refund of the excess assessments collected which should remain at the end of a fiscal period, or at the end of such other period as might be deemed appropriate by reason of suspension or termination. Refunds should be credited to respective contributory handlers against the operations of the following fiscal period, unless payment should be demanded, in which event proportionate refunds should be paid.

If and when the committee should be required to liquidate its affairs upon termination of a marketing agreement and order authorizing such agency, considerable expense would be involved in the liquidation process. The affairs of the committee which are to be liquidated would usually result from a number of years' operations. It would be appropriate, therefore, for the maintenance and functioning of the committee that the funds remaining at the end of a fiscal period, which are in excess of those necessary for payment of expenditures during such period, should be carried over into subsequent fiscal periods as a reserve for possible liquidation. Such reserve should be maintained for the purpose of helping to cover the expenses of final liquidation in the event of the termination of the order.

It is generally considered to be good business practice to provide for unforeseen contingencies. For example, it is possible that a severe freeze or freezes might result in a total or partial crop failure during a fiscal period. Also, the anticipated crop for any season might conceivably be reduced by such other factors as frost, high winds not amounting to a hurricane, and drought. The net effect of such a crop failure would be to reduce greatly or stop shipments, and could cause the discontinuance of regulation and the collection of assessments. In order to continue and maintain the nucleus of a committee organization and to assure the performance of a minimum of basic services, the committee should have authority to secure needed extra funds to cover the expenses of operation during such a fiscal period. Such funds might reasonably be drawn from the same reserve accrued for purposes of liquidation.

The above reserve might also properly serve another purpose. At the beginning of each fiscal period, there will be a need for operating monies at a time when there will usually be little, if any, revenue from assessments. It is customary and sensible budgetary practice, and the committee should be so authorized, to borrow operating funds from the above reserve until such time as assessment collections provide adequate revenue to meet current expenses. It is contemplated that any such reserve having a threefold use; namely, (i) liquidation, (ii) crop failure advance, and (iii) fiscal year expense advance, will be built up over a period of years (possibly five years) to equalize the burden among handlers. It was testified that the reserve which would be accrued from excess assessments, should be for an amount roughly equivalent to the average budget for one fiscal period. In the event funds should be borrowed from the reserve (except liquidation) such funds would need to be returned to the reserve as soon as practicable, in order that it might be maintained at an adequate amount to meet the specified purposes as the need should arise.

Any funds remaining after liquidation, including any balance which might remain in the reserve fund, has been effected should be refunded to handlers on a pro rata basis. In some cases, however, individual handler's accounts will be of such small amounts as to make impracticable the return thereof. Funds of such insignificant nature should be permitted for use by the committee for purposes of liquidation after such other uses as the Secretary might consider to be the most appropriate in the circumstances.

(d) The establishment or provision for the establishment of marketing research and development projects designed to assist, improve, or promote the marketing, distribution, and consumption of cucumbers was authorized by amendments to the act in Public Law 690, known as the Agricultural Act of 1954, enacted by the 83d Congress. Such authorization should be included in the marketing agreement and order.

Through the medium of research investigation, the committee might be able to evaluate in detail the grade and size composition of the cucumber crop in each of the various producing sections of the proposed production area. More complete data in this regard would enable the committee and the Secretary to determine with a greater degree of accuracy the effect of specific regulations on the market.

Projects designed to evaluate preferences among markets and localities in terms of grades, sizes, qualities, maturities, packs, containers, and other factors could be of considerable value in determining what regulations in those regards should be established for such markets and localities. The aid of marketing research and development projects might assist in a determination as to the effect and value of private and industry promotion of Florida cucumbers.

Research into market development, transportation, handling methods, containers, and rates of planting are examples of aspects which the committee might at some time, consider worthy of investigation.

As the cucumber industry and the committee become more aware of the value of and need for marketing research and development, other projects will undoubtedly be initiated, the need for which will not have been foreseen early in committee operations. Therefore, the committee should have the authority to recommend and the Secretary should have the right to approve the establishment of such projects which are in the best interest of cucumber marketing and which would assist, improve, and promote the marketing, distribution, and consumption of Florida cucumbers. After approval, the committee should be empowered to engage in or contract for such projects, to spend funds for that purpose, and to consult and cooperate with other agencies with regard to their establishment. All such projects should receive the prior approval of the Secretary.

(e) The declared policy of the act is to establish and maintain such orderly marketing conditions for cucumbers, among other commodities, as will tend to establish parity prices for them. The regulation of the handling of cucumbers by grade, size, quality, or maturity as authorized in the proposed marketing agreement and order should provide a means of carrying out such policy and is one of the ways authorized by the act (in section 8c (6)) for achieving that objective.

The procedures and methods which are outlined in the order for the development and institution of marketing policies relating to grade, size, quality, or maturity regulations should provide a practical basis for the committee to obtain appropriate and adequate information relating to cucumber marketing problems. A marketing policy would be essential each season to provide an overall plan or policy for the committee and the industry to follow with respect to the marketing of cucumbers. Also members of the industry, including both growers and handlers, should be provided with the information regarding the policies and regulations which might be recommended by the committee. The factors set forth in the order which the committee should take into consideration in developing its marketing policies are the ones commonly and usually taken into account by growers and handlers in their day to day evaluation of the market outlook with respect to cucumbers. They are adequate and proper for the intended purposes.

In order that the Secretary might carry out effectively his responsibilities in connection with the order, the committee should prepare and submit to the Secretary a report on each proposed marketing policy, or amendments thereof, relating to the marketing of cucumbers during each season.

The initial marketing policy offered each season by the committee should be prepared and submitted to the Secretary prior to, or simultaneously with, its initial recommendations for regulations. This would give all interested parties the maximum notice of probable regulations. Reports on marketing policy and regulations recommended should be submitted to the Secretary and presented to the industry by the committee.

The committee, which would have responsibility for recommending grade, size, and quality regulations, as well as modifications, suspensions, amendments, or terminations, should be authorized to consider and recommend any or all methods of regulations which are authorized by the order for the Secretary to issue thereunder. Evidence shows that authority should be established in the order to issue regulations with respect to grade, size, quality, maturity, variety, or packs during any period.

The limitation of the handling of poorer grades, off qualities, and less desirable sizes and maturities of cucumbers grown in the production area should tend to increase the prices of more desirable grades, qualities, sizes, and maturities and to promote more orderly marketing and increase the returns to producers of such cucumbers. The standards for cucumbers issued by the United States Department of Agriculture would provide a common and acceptable means of determining grades, sizes, qualities and maturities of cucumbers grown in the production area. Such standards are used throughout the production area, and both producers and handlers, as well as buyers, are generally acquainted with such standards and frequently use them in their market transactions. Authority should also be provided for limiting the grade and size of cucumbers which may be placed in any given pack or container. The poorer grades and qualities include not only the unclassified cucumbers set forth in the Federal standards for cucumbers, but also the commonly referred to "culls" as well as other cucumbers which show defects as set forth and described in such standards, and in any modifications or amendments thereto which may be considered desirable by the Secretary. The limitation of the handling by prohibiting movement of poorer grades, off qualities, and less desirable sizes of cucumbers would help to improve orderly marketing conditions for such cucumbers by enhancing the long run demand for and competitive position of cucumbers grown in the production area.

The orderly marketing of cucumbers grown in the production area, with the objective of increasing returns to producers of such cucumbers, would be promoted by authorizing the regulation of handling of particular grades, sizes, qualities, or packs of cucumbers, differently for different varieties, differently for different stages of maturity, differently for different portions of the production area, differently for different containers, differently for different purposes to which modification or suspension of regulation may be applied, or differently for any combination of these factors, during any period. Demand for different varieties of cucumbers establishes price preferences for different grades or sizes, or both, of such varieties.

Cucumbers are marketed or merchandised in a number of ways. The combination of various factors such as grades, sizes, maturities, containers, and others determine market preferences expressed in price differentials. Some of these market factors which contribute to resultant price differentials, such as maturity, shape, color, and, to some extent, size are a part of the definitions and the delineation of the various grades set forth in the United States Standards for Cucumbers. The committee usually may recommend regulation in terms of the grades set forth in the standards in which case separate consideration of the various grade factors should be unnecessary. However, the committee should have authority to recommend, and the Secretary to issue, regulations in terms of any or all of the factors set forth in the standards. For example, maturity is not considered as an important market factor in cucumber merchandising as is the case with many other vegetables. However, many "jumbos," which are large overgrown cucumbers, are sold and have the same depressing price effect as poor quality cucumbers. The order should, therefore, provide authority for different regulation on a maturity basis.

Size requirements are also set forth in the cucumber grade standards. Each of the cucumber grades, with the exception of the U. S. No. 1 Small grade, provide for maximum diameters and minimum lengths of cucumbers. The U. S. No. 1 Small grade requires a minimum diameter of 1½ inches and a maximum diameter of 2 inches. The committee, however, should have authority to specify any range of minimum and maximum diameters and/or lengths in its recommendations for regulation. The committee should have authority to recommend, and the Secretary to issue, different size requirements for different packs. For example, when U. S. No. 1 grade cucumbers are shipped, the size requirements of this grade set forth a maximum diameter of 2⅜ inches and a minimum length of 6 inches. The committee should be authorized to recommend the issuance of a regulation which might require a U. S. No. 1 minimum grade applicable to bushel tubs and U. S. No. 1 with more restrictive size requirements on premium packs, such as cartons of 24's. Such permissive authority would allow flexibility of operations and would permit of size uniformity where desirable to protect certain premium packs while not severely restricting other packs.

At the present time, variety is not a particularly important part of the marketing picture for Florida cucumbers. The Marketeer variety is currently the most popular slicing variety of cucumbers grown in Florida. However, with the exception of the Kirby variety, there is little if any market distinction made on a varietal basis. The Kirby variety of cucumber, produced and marketed mainly for pickling, does not have characteristics which warrant its sale on the table stock market. New varieties are being constantly tested and developed and, if in the future, the characteristics bred into certain of these new varieties should be so distinctive as to make them obviously different from cucumbers now being marketed, the committee should have authority to regulate in terms of these distinctions.

Unusual weather conditions might arise during a crop year in one portion of the production area as compared with other portions of such area. This possibility is particularly true with respect to such things as hail, wind, sand damage, violent rain storms, cold weather and freezes. Hazards of these natures would obviously be beyond the control or reasonable expectation of the cucumber growers in such localities. To provide equity among producers and handlers insofar as any regulation under the order are concerned, authority should be provided for the committee to consider such differences, to make appropriate recommendations to the Secretary, and for the Secretary to issue different regulations to accommodate any such differences in the crop arising out of actions beyond human control. It is contemplated, however, that any such regulation for the portion of the production area in those circumstances will still require that the cucumbers shipped will be the best quality available. Other than unforeseen weather hazards, no reasons were advanced by witnesses testifying at the hearing which would justify different regulations for different portions of the production area. In the event weather hazards jeopardize the position of only a few growers, not a large area, such growers might seek equity through the provisions relating to exemption procedures.

It has been a common practice in the production area for some years to prepare specific packs of cucumbers for market, as indicated in the definition of "pack." Place packing and jumble packing are both common with respect to cucumber marketing. A common place pack is the so-called carton in which usually a specified number of cucumbers are hand packed in the carton. Some packs are prepared with a combination of jumble packing and place packing. Frequently bushel tubs are filled by dumping cucumbers loosely into the container, then the pack is faced with cucumbers of a uniform size that are hand placed prior to putting a cover on the container. Some packers frequently top the package with good quality cucumbers to deceive buyers by disguising the contents of the package which might consist largely of poorer quality than appears, at a glance to be the case. Some of the low price packs are merely jumble packs in which there is no placing of individual cucumbers within the container. It is presumed that the establishment and definition of such packs which can be set forth in rules and regulations will prescribe the grades and ranges of sizes permitted to be handled in conjunction with specified containers. Certain combinations of grades, sizes, and containers, which factors constitute packs, should be kept out of specified market channels, at the discretion of the committee with the approval of the Secretary, because such packs contribute to depressing of cucumber prices. For example, the committee should have authority to protect premium packs, such as the carton packs, by preventing the packing of certain undesirable grades, sizes, and maturities in cartons. The carton packs of cucumbers usually contain superior merchandise and many shippers have established a good reputation for them. The adulteration of carton and other premium packs with low grade produce would tend to damage the reputation of, and contribute to demoralized prices for, such packs. The order should authorize different regulations for different packs so that this part of the marketing program may help to assist the industry in advancing present sond merchandising approaches.

The order should permit regulation differently for different types of containers. Such regulation is authorized by virtue of an amendment to the act in Public Law 690, known as the Agricultural Act of 1954, enacted by the 83rd Congress. Numerous types and sizes of containers are in current use in the handling of cucumbers within the production area. Types of shipments may range from the bulk load of loose cucumbers to the premium-pack carton. Should the use of certain of the containers, when moved into commercial chanels, be deemed by the committee with the approval of the Secretary as contributing to lower prices for Florida cucumbers, the Secretary should be empowered to fix the size, weight, capacity, dimensions, or pack of the container or containers which may be used in the packaging, transportation, sale, shipment, or other handling of such cucumbers. For similar reasons, the committee should be permitted to recommend and the Secretary to issue different regulations for different containers. For example, the committee might desire to prohibit the sale or shipment of cucumbers in burlap field-sacks to markets outside of the production area.

Methods of misrepresenting net weight or the grade and size of contents of containers are misleading merchandising practices which have tended to confuse buyers and disrupt orderly marketing of cucumbers grown in the production area. Variation in the size of bulge on bushel tubs, the use of second-hand or used containers, and other such practices tend to deceive buyers, which would ultimately and adversely affect growers returns. Certain types of containers are unsuited for the handling of premium packs because such containers tend to depress the prices of established premium packs. Authority for container regulation should also be provided to permit standardization of containers where deemed feasible and in the best interests of the cucumber industry. At the same time, container regulation should not stifle the development of or research in new containers. The authority to fix the size, weight, capacity, dimensions, or pack of containers should allow the committee and the Secretary, when necessary and justified, to minimize or eliminate deceptive practices which a few members of the cucumber industry might be inclined to follow. Therefore, the provisions relating to container regulation should be included in the order as set forth.

No evidence was introduced to substantiate the proposal relating to different regulation for different markets. Therefore, no further consideration can be given to it in this proceeding.

Cucumber marketing conditions change rapidly and constantly. Adverse weather might reduce the quality or size of the crop or otherwise might curtail supply. Also, the quality or yield might change as harvest progresses from season to season or moves into new producing sections. The marketing agreement and order should authorize different regulations during any period so that the committee and the Secretary might take account of different supply and demand conditions as they should arise and become apparent.

(f) The committee should be authorized to recommend, and the Secretary to establish, such minimum standards of quality and maturity, and such grading and inspection requirements, during any and all periods when cucumber prices should be above parity as will be in the public interest. Some cucumbers are of such low quality that they do not give consumer satisfaction at any time because of the large amount of waste and the time consumed in their preparation. Although the flavor of the edible portion of misshapen culls or "cootertails" might be satisfactory, consumers do not receive proper value for their expenditures for such low quality. Even when prices are above parity, it would not be in the public interest, of the producers, handlers, or of consumers to permit shipments of such poor quality. A shipment of "cootertails," "jumbos," or other culls also tends to disrupt general market conditions for the commodity and the discounted prices received for such underdeveloped or over-grown cucumbers adversely affect growers returns. The order should authorize the establishment of minimum standards of quality and maturity as would be in the public interest. It would also be necessary that such authority include grading and inspection requirements, as well as pack specifications, for the several commercially recognized grades of equal or better quality or size than the minimum standards of cucumbers which may be handled.

The proposed order should provide authority which would permit the issuance of pack specification regulations based upon the committee's approval and recommendation. This would place limitations on minimum grades and sizes which might be packed in given containers. For example, any lot which a handler sells should be of the quality and size which the handler represents it to be and such quality and size should, as an aid to enforcement and to insure that the buyer will know what he is getting, be plainly marked on the container of such lot. This type of a regulation, however, should not prevent the use of the commonly used "combination" grade. Regulation of this type in conjunction with inspection and the United States Standards for Cucumbers should, to a large extent, eliminate the practice of misrepresenting quality, such as the harmful practice of selling choice cucumbers as fancies on the basis of a false label.

If a cull regulation should be in effect (i. e., prohibiting the shipment of less than U. S. No. 2 grade cucumbers) pursuant to authority contained in the order, a pack specification regulation would permit the shipment of U. S. No. 2's, U. S. No. 1's, or U. S. Fancies. It should, however, prohibit the mixing of lower grades in a container or in a given pack in excess of the tolerance for the grade marked on the container.

Another example which the committee should have authority to consider is the combination of grade and size in pack specifications. If a pack specification regulation were issued which prohibited the packing of any cucumbers of less than U. S. No. 1 quality in cartons, either U. S. No. 1 or U. S. Fancy cucumbers could be packed in such cartons. The committee should have authority to recommend that a restriction could be placed on minimum and maximum sizes of cucumbers which could be packed in U. S. Fancy cartons to provide for uniformity of size as well as uniformity of grades of cucumbers packed in the container. The examples merely indicate the type of action the committee should have authority to recommend and the Secretary to issue pursuant to the marketing agreement and order. Pack specifications are, according to the hearing record one of the pressing needs of the cucumber industry in Florida. For many years cucumber packers and shippers have been using terms to indicate grade or quality which do not have a uniform or constant meaning with the result that the trade generally (growers, shippers, or buyers, receivers, and retailers) has little confidence in these terms. The cucumber trade makes every day use of such terms as "plains," "choice," "fancy" and "extra fancy" in order to indicate grade. Only the person who thoroughly examines the contents of the container stamped with one of these terms can, with certainty and with confidence, know the quality of the pack indicated by the stamp. It is a common practice throughout most of the production area for packers to stamp covers of containers, whether a basket, a carton, or a wire bound crate with a term supposed to indicate grade. However, the common trade terms have little meaning, and, in fact, contribute to wide ranges in price for a given trade grade designation as well as reduced returns to growers, because of the manner in which they are used. It is accepted practice to label the best quality as extra fancy or fancy, midquality as choice, and the poorest quality, plains. However, the quality available at a given packing house from day to day will vary from grower to grower, depending on weather conditions or whether the cucumbers are from the first or the tenth picking. If the price should be low, the fancies labelled as such by packers will, in fact, be top quality. Should prices be at high levels, the so-called "extra fancy" and "fancy" packs will contain some "choice" or poorer quality cucumbers, the proportion depending on the packer involved. Frequently the freedom exercised in labeling containers is used to undercut a competitor's price to the detriment of growers' returns. Top quality cucumbers placed in one market and graded and stamped as fancies have been undercut in price by other cucumbers of lower quality but also labelled as fancy cucumbers. Buyers are able to "beat down" the price of the higher quality produce because they can always point to other produce in the same market represented to be of similar quality but at a lower price. In instances of this kind, the lack of grade uniformity and standardization has been responsible for reduced growers returns, penalizing the grower and the shipper who prepared the high quality pack. To discourage and eliminate the aforementioned harmful practices now so prevalent in the cucumber industry, the committee should have authority to recommend and the Secretary should have authority to issue pack specification regulations on the basis of the committee's recommendation or other available information.

Most shipments of Florida cucumbers are made in car lots or truck lots. Although some small shipments are made, they constitute only a minor percentage of total production. Small shipments, such as individual household purchases, convenience purchases by friends or tourists and similar "nuisance" purchases would present real operating problems if inspection were required on each. Similarly, if each such sale or shipment were required to meet grade and size regulation or to bear assessments, the nuisance factor might outweigh the advantage of these controls on small transactions. On the other hand, the committee should have the authority to require that any such shipments meet grade and size requirements while waiving other requirements such as inspection and assessment. The committee should have authority flexible enough to meet local conditions, including authority to permit changing the minimum quantity exempt from various rules and regulations for different parts of the production area and from season to season.

(g) The Secretary should be authorized, upon the basis of recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or other available information, to modify, suspend, or terminate grade, size, or maturity regulations with respect to the handling of cucumbers for purposes other than disposition in normal domestic fresh markets. The committee should be well qualified, because of the experience and knowledge of its individual members, to recommend such modifications, suspensions, or terminations as would be in the best interests of the Florida cucumber industry and which would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Cucumbers moving to or sold in certain outlets, such as those specified in proposed § 1015.54 of the marketing agreement and order, are usually handled in a different manner, or such outlets usually accept different grades, sizes, qualities, maturities, packs, containers, for which different prices are returned, or combinations of such considerations may apply. Ordinarily cucumbers sold or shipped to such outlets would not be competitive with tablestock cucumbers. The sale of cucumbers to these outlets would, in most instances, provide returns which would tend to supplement farm income realized from the sale of tablestock cucumbers rather than depressing tablestock cucumber prices. The order should provide authority for the committee and the Secretary to give appropriate consideration to the handling of cucumbers for such purpose differently from the market for the bulk of tablestock cucumbers so that this program might offer opportunity to improve orderly marketing conditions for cucumbers thereby promoting the tendency to increase total returns to cucumber growers in the production area.

Some export markets may prefer certain grades, sizes, and packs of cucumbers which normally are discounted in some domestic markets. Canada is the principal foreign market for Florida cucumbers. The order should provide sufficient flexibility to permit the committee and the industry to cope with competitive producing areas in supplying foreign markets while, at the same time, maintaining relatively higher standards in its domestic shipments. The order should provide that modification, suspension, or termination of regulations may be applied to movement to export outlets so that this demand could be met and the sale of cucumbers grown in the production area will continue in such markets.

The order should provide that special consideration may be given to the handling of cucumbers for relief or for charitable purposes. Such shipments are intended for special outlets and usually the shipments are by way of donation or due to some special consideration between the shippers and the receivers.

The committee and the Secretary should have authority to give special consideration, in the form of relaxing grade and size regulation or no regulation (but providing for the reporting of handling), to cucumbers which move to pickling or relish plants. It is desirable to permit the committee authority to assure that such cucumbers do, in fact, reach the outlet for which intended. In other words, to assure that they are not sold or shipped for use in fresh form in violation of the order. It was generally agreed at the hearing that shipments of cucumbers for the purpose of having such cucumbers pickled should be exempted from all regulation under the order except, as a safeguard measure, a requirement that such shipments for conversion into pickles or relishes be reported to the committee for the sole purpose of assuring the committee and the cucumber industry that such shipments are, in fact, moved to the outlet for which intended. No other regulation or restriction is intended on cucumbers for pickling. It is believed that such an exemption also would be in accordance with the intent of the statutory prohibition against the regulation of a vegetable such as cucumbers intended for canning purposes.

Shipments of hydroponically grown cucumbers and shipments of cucumbers for research purposes should also be permitted to be handled pursuant to the provisions of the order which provide for modification, suspension, or termination of regulations applicable to usual table stock movement. Such cucumbers usually supply special types of outlets which are not competitive with table stock cucumbers.

The committee should be empowered to provide special treatment, through modification, suspension, or termination of regulation, applicable to shipments for other purposes or products which later may be specified by the committee with the approval of the Secretary.

The requirement that the Secretary should notify the committee of any regulations or of any modifications, suspensions, or terminations of regulations is appropriate and necessary to enable the committee to be informed of such actions and for proper and efficient administration of the order. Such notification would enable the committee to promptly check on the operation of the regulation and to recommend such changes as may be necessary to make the regulation fully effective.

(h) The Secretary should be authorized to suspend or terminate the order when he finds that the order does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. The Secretary should also be authorized to terminate the order when he finds that a majority of the growers favor termination. The Secretary should be required to terminate the order when he finds that a majority of the growers favor termination.

(i) The Secretary should be authorized to conduct referenda among growers to determine whether they favor the issuance, suspension, or termination of the order.

(j) The Secretary should be authorized to employ persons, other than the committee, as may be necessary to assist the Secretary in the administration of the order.

(k) The committee should be authorized to employ such persons as may be necessary to enable the committee to perform its duties and functions under the order.

(l) The committee should be authorized to establish such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out its functions under the order.

(m) The committee should be authorized to receive, investigate, and report to the Secretary complaints of violations of the order.

(n) The committee should be authorized to establish such committees as may be necessary to perform its duties and functions under the order.

(o) The committee should be authorized to establish such committees as may be necessary to perform its duties and functions under the order.

(p) The committee should be authorized to establish such committees as may be necessary to perform its duties and functions under the order.

(q) The committee should be authorized to establish such committees as may be necessary to perform its duties and functions under the order.

(r) The committee should be authorized to establish such committees as may be necessary to perform its duties and functions under the order.

(s) The committee should be authorized to establish such committees as may be necessary to perform its duties and functions under the order.

tion of the marketing agreement and order.

The authority for modifying, suspending, or terminating grade, size, quality, assessment, or inspection regulations should be accompanied by the additional administrative authority for the committee to recommend, and the Secretary to prescribe, adequate safeguards to prevent shipments for such purposes from entering market channels contrary to the provisions of such special regulations. Such safeguards should be recommended by the committee and they should be administered by the committee. The authority for establishment of safeguards should include such limitations or appropriate qualifications on shipments as might be necessary and incidental to the proper and efficient administration of the order. Such safeguards, among others, might include inspection so that the committee might have an accurate record of the grade, size, and quality of cucumbers shipped to special outlets, applications to make such special shipments, requirements for the payment of assessments in connection with such shipments, reports by handlers on the number of such shipments and the amounts of cucumbers shipped, and assurances by purchasers that the cucumbers would be used for the purpose designated.

In order to maintain appropriate identification of shipments of cucumbers to special outlets, the safeguards authorized herein should provide for the issuance of certificates of privilege to handlers of such cucumbers and, in addition, require that such handlers should obtain such certificates on all shipments by them to such special outlets. Certificates of Privilege might be issued by the committee as an indication of the authority for the handlers to make such shipments and as a means of identifying specific shipments. Such Certificates of Privilege should be issued in accordance with rules and regulations established by the Secretary on the basis of committee recommendations, or other available information, so that the issuance of such certificates might be handled in an orderly and efficient manner which can be made known to all handlers. The committee should be authorized by the order to deny or rescind Certificates of Privilege when such action would be necessary to prevent abuse of the privileges conferred thereby. The committee should be authorized to exercise the authority necessary and incidental to the proper administration of the order, which should include the authority to rescind or deny certificates upon evidence satisfactory to it that a handler to whom a Certificate of Privilege has been issued has handled cucumbers contrary to the provisions of a certificate previously issued to him. If the committee should rescind or deny a Certificate of Privilege to any handler, such action should be in terms of a specified period of time. Handlers affected by the denial of a certificate or the rescinding of such a certificate should have the right of appeal to the committee for a reconsideration. They should, of course, also have the right to request the Secretary to review such action and such right is hereby recognized and confirmed.

The Secretary should have the right to modify, change, alter, or rescind any safeguards prescribed or any Certificates of Privilege issued by the committee in order that the Secretary might retain all rights necessary to carry out the declared policy of the act. The Secretary should give prompt notice to the committee of any action taken by him in connection therewith and the committee should currently notify all persons affected by the indicated action.

The committee should maintain records relevant to safeguards and to Certificates of Privilege and should submit reports thereon to the Secretary, when requested, in order to supply pertinent information requisite for him to discharge his duties under the act and the order.

(h) Inspection of cucumbers grown in the production area by the Federal-State Inspection Service would be desirable for the purpose of determining officially the grade, size, quality, and maturity of such cucumbers. Federal-State Inspection Service has operated in the State of Florida for a number of years. The cucumber growers and handlers throughout the production area are generally acquainted with the service and with the inspection which it offers on shipments of cucumbers. Federal-State inspection is available throughout the entire production area and reasonably prompt inspection can be given at all points within the production area at a reasonable time prior to the anticipated shipment of the cucumbers to be inspected.

Provision is made in the proposed order for inspection by the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary might approve, of the handling of cucumbers grown in the production area during any period in which handling of cucumbers should be regulated under the program. Such inspection requirements should apply to all cucumbers handled under regulations issued under the order, except when any such handling should be relieved from inspection requirements pursuant to § 1015.53 or § 1015.54 of the order. Provision for inspection of handling subject to regulation would establish a means for providing the handler, the buyer, the committee, the Secretary, and other interested parties with opportunities for determining whether such handling of cucumbers complies with the requirements of any particular grade, size, quality, maturity, or pack regulation which might be in effect under the proposed order. Effective regulation of the handling of cucumbers grown in the production area would require that the grade, size, quality, maturity, or pack of each sale or shipment of such cucumbers would be established authoritatively so that the administration of the program would be efficient and effective. The provision for inspection and the certificates which are issued pursuant to inspection would offer an appropriate and practical means of establishing and identifying the grade, size, quality, maturity, and pack of cucumbers handled pursuant to the terms and conditions of the proposed order.

Copies of inspection certificates issued pursuant to the requirements of the order should be supplied to the committee promptly, so that it can discharge properly its administrative responsibilities under the program.

Provision should be made in the order for authority to inspect cucumbers, not only by personnel of the Federal-State Inspection Service, but also by personnel of such inspection service as the Secretary might designate, so that sufficient flexibility for successful operation would be provided through appropriate inspection if Federal-State inspection should not be available.

The requirement that no handler shall handle cucumbers unless each lot of cucumbers is inspected by an authorized inspection service approved under the marketing agreement and order would be reasonable and is necessary for the proper administration of the program. Such requirements should apply except to those cucumbers which might be relieved of inspection requirements pursuant to § 1015.53 or § 1015.54, or both.

Responsibility for obtaining inspection should fall primarily on the handler who first handles regulated cucumbers after they have been prepared for market because each lot of such cucumbers must be identified and certified with respect to grade, size, quality, and maturity. Each handler, regardless of whether the first or a subsequent handler, should be required to bear responsibility for determining that each of his shipments is inspected and certified. Identification and certification would be essential to proper administration of the order so that a determination could be made as to whether each shipment accords with the grade, size, quality, maturity, and pack regulations issued under the order. The handler who first handles cucumbers should be required to obtain inspection, but subsequent handlers should not be permitted to handle cucumbers unless a properly issued inspection certificate valid under the terms of the order applies to such shipments. If a handler should receive cucumbers which have not been inspected, he should be responsible for having them inspected before selling or transporting them. This requirement would be necessary so that the committee could obtain evidence in the form of inspection certificates which it needs to carry out its appropriate functions in determining if specific shipments have been inspected and if they otherwise meet requirements of the order and regulations issued pursuant to the order.

Some concern was expressed at the hearing and in the brief filed on behalf of the opponents to the effect that double inspection fees might be imposed in connection with each lot of cucumbers handled from the standpoint that, in addition to the regular inspection fee which would be charged by the official inspection service, an additional inspection fee on the same lot would be charged by the committee. Such a result is not contemplated or intended. It is contemplated that the only inspection fee charged would be that by the official inspection service.

Whenever any shipment of cucumbers subject to the terms and provisions of the order have been inspected at the time of first shipment, but should later be dumped from the containers in which they were inspected, or if the lot on which the inspection certificate was issued should be broken up, the cucumbers might lose their identity insofar as the original inspection certificate for them was concerned. If any such lot of cucumbers should thereafter be repacked, the repacked cucumbers might have a new identity and the subsequent handling of the cucumbers should be in compliance with regulations issued under the order. This requirement would be necessary to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Therefore, the order should provide that the committee might require any person who handles Florida cucumbers after they have been repacked, resorted, or regraded to have such cucumbers reinspected and recertified before they are handled again. A reinspection and recertification of regraded, resorted, or repacked cucumbers might be necessary, in certain cases, so that the shipper thereof, as well as subsequent handlers, and the committee might determine if such shipments comply with the regulations then in effect and applicable thereto.

When pack specifications are in effect, the proposed order should include authority for requiring the marketing of containers of cucumbers as to the exact grade and size of the contents. It is common practice followed by handlers in the production area, and an accepted merchandising approach, to stamp cucumber containers with the grade of the contents of the package. When pack specifications and compulsory inspection are in effect, no unnecessary burden will be imposed on handlers to require that they, under the direction and supervision of the inspection service, mark each container with the applicable grade and/or size permitted to be shipped, much the same as most do at the present time using non-standard grade terms. This practice would also facilitate the administration and enforcement of the proposed order. It would be difficult to ascertain whether or not handlers are complying with pack specification regulation unless each container of cucumbers was properly identified as to its contents in terms of grades set forth in the U. S. Standards for Cucumbers. Unless the contents of a package of cucumbers might be required to be marked, stamped, or otherwise identified, the purpose of a pack specification regulation, which would include the building of trade confidence in the quality of Florida cucumbers with the attendant improvement of growers' prices, could not be properly accomplished.

The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, should be authorized to determine the length of time the inspection certificate is valid insofar as the requirements of the proposed order are concerned. Such requirement would be appropriate and necessary, especially with respect to lot inspections which might be administratively desirable to accommodate handlers and truckers, because cucumbers are an extremely perishable commodity. It would not be practical and feasible for the committee to recognize inspection certificates which might have been issued several days previously when the cucumbers so inspected and certified would have since deteriorated and no longer would meet regulations in effect at the time of shipment and no longer would conform to the description on the inspection certificate.

(i) Certain hazards are encountered in the production of cucumbers grown in the production area which are beyond the control or reasonable expectation of the producers of such cucumbers. Because of these circumstances, and to provide equity among producers and handlers insofar as any regulations under the marketing agreement and order are concerned, the committee should be given authority to issue exemption certificates to producer applicants to permit them to sell their equitable proportion of all shipments from the production area. It is contemplated, however, that each exemption granted would require the approved applicant to sell his best quality cucumbers.

The committee, by reason of its knowledge of the conditions and problems applicable to the production of cucumbers in the production area and the information which it will have available in each case, should be well qualified to judge each applicant's case in a fair and equitable manner and to fix the quantity of exempted cucumbers which each applicant might sell.

The provisions contained in the notice of hearing relevant to the procedure to be followed in issuing exemption certificates, in investigating exemption claims, in appealing exemption claim determinations, and in recording and reporting exemption claim determinations to the Secretary would be necessary to the orderly and equitable operation of the marketing agreement and order and they should, therefore, be incorporated in the proposed order.

Provision should be made for the Secretary to modify, change, alter, or rescind any procedure established by the committee for granting of exemptions and of exemptions granted pursuant to such procedure. This would be desirable to guard against inequities in the granting of exemptions and to preclude the issuance of exemption certificates in unjustifiable cases.

(j) The committee should have authority, with the approval of the Secretary, to require that handlers submit to the committee such reports and information which are needed to perform such agency's functions under the order. It is difficult to anticipate every type of report, or kind of information, which the committee might need in administering the program, but it should have the authority, subject to the approval of the Secretary, to request reports and information if needed, of the type set forth in the proposed order. The standards which should be followed by the committee in requesting handlers to furnish reports should be along the lines set forth in § 1015.70 of the proposed order, and such report should be those necessary for operation of the committee in carrying out the terms and conditions of the order. Reports furnished to the committee should be submitted in such manner and at such times as might be designated by the committee. Such reporting procedures should accord with the needs and requirements of the committee which are essential to administration of the proposed order, because changing conditions might warrant changes in the forms and methods of reporting to the committee. The Secretary should retain the right to approve, also to modify, change, or rescind any requests by the committee for information in order to protect handlers from unreasonable requests for reports.

Permissive use of the specified reporting requirements, and verifications of such reports and records by the committee would provide a means for the committee to check on compliance with, and operation of, the order.

Since it is possible that a question might arise with respect to compliance with the proposed order, handlers should maintain complete records on their handling and disposition of cucumbers for not less than two years subsequent to the termination of each fiscal period.

Any and all reports and records submitted for committee use by handlers should remain under appropriate protective classifications and be disclosed to none other than persons authorized by the Secretary.

(k) Except as provided in the marketing agreement and order, no handler should be permitted to handle cucumbers, the handling of which is prohibited pursuant to the order, and no handler should be permitted to handle cucumbers except in conformity with the order. If the program is to be effective, no handler should be permitted to evade its provisions since such action on the part of one handler, although possibly of small impact on the industry measured by the proportion of cucumbers handled by him, would be demoralizing to other handlers and would tend to impair operation of the program.

(l) The provisions of proposed §§ 1015.75 through 1015.91 are common to marketing agreements and orders now operating. Each of such sections sets forth certain rights, obligations, privileges, or procedures which are necessary and appropriate for the effective operation of the marketing agreement and order. These provisions are incidental to, and not inconsistent with, sections 8c (6) and (7) of the act, and are necessary to effectuate the declared policy of the act. The substance of such provisions, therefore, should be included in the order.

General findings. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced in the hearing and the record thereof it is found that:

(1) The marketing agreement and order as hereinafter set forth, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act with respect to cucumbers produced in the production area, by establishing and maintaining such orderly marketing conditions therefor as will tend to establish, as prices to the producers thereof, parity prices and by protecting the interest of the consumer (i) by approaching the level of prices which it is declared in the act to be the policy of Congress to establish by a gradual correction of the current level of prices at as rapid a rate as the Secretary deems to be in the public interest and feasible in view of the current consumptive demand in domestic and foreign markets, and (ii) by authorizing no action which has for its purpose the maintenance of prices to producers of such cucumbers above the parity level, and (iii) by authorizing the establishment and maintenance of such minimum standards of quality and maturity, and such grading and inspection requirements as may be incidental thereto, as will tend to effectuate such orderly marketing of such cucumbers as will be in the public interest;

(2) Such marketing agreement and order authorizes regulation of the handling of cucumbers grown in the production area in the same manner as, and is applicable only to, persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activities specified in a proposed marketing agreement and order upon which the hearing has been held;

(3) The said marketing agreement and order are limited in application to the smallest regional production area which is practicable, consistently with carrying out the declared policy of the act; and the issuance of several marketing agreements and orders applicable to any subdivision of the production area would not effectively carry out the declared policy of the act;

(4) The said marketing agreement and order prescribe, so far as practicable, such different terms, applicable to different parts of the production area, as are necessary to give due recognition to the differences in the production and marketing of cucumbers grown in the production areas; and

(5) All handling of cucumbers, as defined in the said marketing agreement and order, is in the current of interstate or foreign commerce, or directly burdens, obstructs or affects such commerce.

Ruling on proposed findings and conclusions. At the conclusion of the hearing, the Presiding Officer allowed interested parties until January 10, 1957, to file briefs with respect to findings of fact and conclusions based on evidence introduced at the hearings. Subsequently he extended such period until January 25, 1957. The only brief filed was by W. Terry Gibson and Paschal C. Reese, attorneys for the Winter Cucumber Farmers Association, referred to herein, for convenient reference, as the "opponents" of the proposed program.

Each point covered in that brief was considered carefully along with the record in reaching the conclusions herein set forth, and specific reference is made to many of such points at the appropriate places in the discussion.

To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in such brief are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions set forth herein, the request to make such findings and conclusions are denied on the basis of facts found and stated in connection with the findings and conclusions in this recommended decision.

For each member of the committee there shall be an alternate who shall have the same qualifications as the member.

(b) Persons selected as committee members or alternates to represent producers or handlers shall be producers or handlers, respectively, or officers or employees of a producer or handler, respectively, in the district for which selected, and a resident of the production area.

§ 1015.23 Terms of office. (a) The term of office of committee members, and their respective alternates, shall be for one year and shall begin as of August 1 and end as of July 31 of the following year.

(b) Committee members and alternates shall serve during the term of office for which they are selected and have qualified, or during that portion thereof beginning on the date on which they qualify during such term of office and continuing until the end thereof, and until their successors are selected and have qualified.

§ 1015.24 Districts. For the purpose of determining the basis for selecting committee members the following districts of the production area are hereby initially established:

District No. 1. The counties of Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, St. Lucie, Indian River, Martin and Okeechobee in the State of Florida;

District No. 2. The counties of Lee, Collier, Charlotte, Hendry, Monroe and Glades in the State of Florida;

District No. 3. The counties of Hardee, Manatee, DeSoto, Highlands, Hillsborough, Polk, Sarasota and Pinellas in the State of Florida; and District No. 4. All of the remaining counties within the production area not included in Districts 1, 2, and 3.

§ 1015.25 Redistricting. The committee may recommend, and pursuant thereto the Secretary may approve, the reestablishment of districts within the production area. In recommending any such changes, the committee shall give consideration to: (a) Shifts in cucumber acreage within districts and within the production area during recent years; (b) the importance of new production in its relation to existing districts; (c) the equitable relationship of committee membership and districts; (d) economies to result for producers in promoting efficient administration due to redistricting; and (e) other relevant factors. In order to provide for nomination and selection of committee members and alternates on the basis of a redistricted production area, the committee shall make such recommendation for redistricting no later than February 1, and, if approved by the Secretary on or before March 15, such redistricting shall become effective at the beginning of the succeeding term of office.

§ 1015.26 Selection. The Secretary shall select two producer members and one handler member of the committee with their respective alternates from each district.

For nominations to the initial committee, the meetings may be sponsored by the United States Department of Agriculture or by any agency or group requested to do so by such Department. For nominations for succeeding members and alternates on the committee, the committee shall hold such meetings or cause them to be held prior to July 1 of each year, after the effective date of this subpart;

(b) At each such meeting at least two nominees shall be designated for each position as member and for each position as alternate member on the committee and eligible voters at such meetings may ballot to indicate the ranking of their choice for each nominee;

(c) Nominations for committee members and alternates, shall be supplied to the Secretary in such manner and form as he may prescribe, not later than July 15 of each year;

(e) Regardless of the number of districts in which a person produces cucumbers, each such person is entitled to cast only one vote on behalf of himself, his agents, subsidiaries, affiliates, and representatives in designating nominees for committee members and alternates. An eligible voter's privilege of casting only one vote as aforesaid shall be construed to permit a voter to cast one vote for each position to be filled in the respective district in which he elects to vote.

If the names of nominees to fill any such vacancy are not made available to the Secretary within 30 days after such vacancy occurs, such vacancy may be filled without regard to nominations, which selection shall be made on the basis of the representation provided for in §§ 1015.24 through 1015.26, inclusive.

§ 1015.31 Alternate members. An alternate member of the committee shall act in the place and stead of the member for whom he is an alternate, during such member's absence. (b) The committee may provide for meeting by telephone, telegraph, or other means of communication, and any vote cast at such a meeting shall be confirmed promptly in writing: Provided, That if any assembled meeting is held, all votes shall be cast in person.

§ 1015.33 Expenses and compensation. Committee members and alternates may be reimbursed for reasonable expenses necessarily incurred by them in the performance of duties and in the exercise of powers under this part.

§ 1015.34 Powers. The committee shall have the following powers:

(a) To administer the provisions of this part in accordance with its terms;

(b) To make rules and regulations to effectuate the terms and provisions of this part;

(c) To receive, investigate, and report to the Secretary complaints of violations of the provisions of this part; and

(d) To recommend to the Secretary amendments to this part.

§ 1015.35 Duties. It shall be, among other things, the duty of the committee:

(a) As soon as practical after the beginning of each term of office, to meet and organize, to select a chairman and such other officers as may be necessary, to select subcommittees of committee members and to adopt such rules and regulations for the conduct of its business as it may deem advisable;

(b) To act as intermediary between the Secretary and any producer or handler;

(c) To furnish to the Secretary such available information as he may request;

(d) To appoint such employees, agents, and representatives as it may deem necessary and to determine the salaries and define the duties of each such person;

(e) To investigate from time to time and to assemble data on the growing, harvesting, shipping, and marketing conditions with respect to cucumbers;

(f) To prepare marketing policies from time to time;

(g) To recommend marketing regulations to the Secretary;

(h) To recommend rules and procedures for, and to make determinations in connection with, issuance of certificates of privilege or exemptions, or both;

(i) To investigate an applicant's claim for exemption;

(j) To keep minutes, books, and records which clearly reflect all of the acts and transactions of the committee and such minutes, books, and records shall be subject to examination at any time by the Secretary or his authorized agent or representative. Minutes of each committee meeting shall be reported promptly to the Secretary;

(k) At the beginning of each fiscal period, to prepare a budget of its expenses for such fiscal period, together with a report thereon;

(l) To cause the books of the committee to be audited by a competent accountant at least once each fiscal period, and at such other time as the committee may deem necessary or as the Secretary may request. The report of such audit shall show the receipt and expenditure of funds collected pursuant to this part; a copy of each report shall be furnished to the Secretary and a copy of each report shall be made available at the principal office of the committee for inspection by producers and handlers;

(m) To prepare and submit to the Secretary at the close of each fiscal period an annual report on operations; and

(n) To consult, cooperate, and exchange information with other marketing agreement committees and other individuals or agencies in connection with all proper committee activities and objectives under this part.

EXPENSES AND ASSESSMENTS

§ 1015.40 Expenses. The committee is authorized to incur such expenses as the Secretary may find are reasonable and likely to be incurred during each fiscal period for its maintenance and functioning, and for such purposes as the Secretary, pursuant to this subpart, determines to be appropriate. Handlers shall share expenses upon the basis of a fiscal period. Each handler's share of such expense shall be proportionate to the ratio between the total quantity of cucumbers handled by him under regulation as the first handler thereof during a fiscal period and the total quantity of cucumbers handled by all handlers under regulation as first handlers thereof during such fiscal period.

§ 1015.41 Budget. At the beginning of each fiscal period and as may be necessary thereafter, the committee shall prepare an estimated budget of income and expenditures necessary for the administration of this part. The committee may recommend a rate of assessment calculated to provide adequate funds to defray its proposed expenditures. The committee shall present such budget to the Secretary with an accompanying report showing the basis for its calculations.

§ 1015.42 Assessments. (a) The funds to cover the committee's expenses shall be acquired by the levying of assessments upon handlers as provided in this subpart. Each handler who first handles cucumbers shall pay assessments to the committee upon demand, which assessments shall be in payment of such handler's pro rata share of the committee's expenses.

(b) Assessments shall be levied upon handlers at rates established by the Secretary. Such rates may be established upon the basis of the committee's recommendations or other available information. Such rates may be applied to specified containers used in the production area.

(c) At any time during, or subsequent to, a given fiscal period the committee may recommend the approval of an amended budget and an increase in the rate of assessment. Upon the basis of such recommendations, or other available information, the Secretary may approve an amended budget and increase the rate of assessment. Such increase shall be applicable to all cucumbers which were regulated under this part and which were shipped by the first handler thereof during such fiscal period.

(d) The payment of assessments for the maintenance and functioning of the committee may be required under this part throughout the period it is in effect irrespective of whether particular provisions thereof are suspended or become inoperative.

§ 1015.43 Accounting. (a) All funds received by the committee pursuant to the provisions of this subpart shall be used solely for the purposes specified in this part.

(b) The Secretary may at any time require the committee, its members and alternates, employees, agents and all other persons to account for all receipts and disbursements, funds, property, or records for which they are responsible. Whenever any person ceases to be a member of the committee or alternate, he shall account to his successor, the committee, or to the person designated by the Secretary, for all receipts, disbursements, funds and property (including, but not being limited to, books and other records) pertaining to the committee's activities for which he is responsible, and shall execute such assignments and other instruments as may be necessary or appropriate to vest in such successor, committee, or designated person, the right to all of such property and funds and all claims vested in such persons.

(c) The committee may make recommendations to the Secretary for one or more of the members thereof, or any other person, to act as a trustee for holding records, funds, or any other committee property during periods of suspension of this subpart, or during any period or periods when regulations are not in effect and, if the Secretary determines such action appropriate, he may direct that such person or persons shall act as trustee or trustees for the committee.

§ 1015.44 Refunds. At the end of each fiscal period, monies arising from the excess of assessments collected over expenses shall be accounted for as follows:

(a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, each handler entitled to a proportionate refund of the excess assessments collected shall be credited at the end of a fiscal period with such refund against the operations of the following fiscal period unless he demands payment thereof, in which event such proportionate refund shall be paid to him; or

(b) The Secretary, upon recommendation of the committee, may determine that it is appropriate for the maintenance and functioning of the committee that the funds remaining at the end of a fiscal period which are in excess of the expenses necessary for committee operations during such period may be carried over into following periods as a reserve. Upon approval by the Secretary, such reserve may be established and maintained in an amount not to exceed one fiscal period's operating expenses and may be used to cover the necessary expenses of liquidation in the event of termination of this part and to cover the expenses incurred for the maintenance and functioning of the committee during any fiscal period when there is a crop failure and during any period of suspension of any or all of the provisions of this part. Such reserve may also be used by the committee to finance its operations during any fiscal period prior to the time that assessment income is sufficient to cover such expenses but any of the reserve funds so used shall be returned to the reserve as soon as assessment income is available for this purpose. Upon termination of this part, any funds not required to defray the necessary expenses of liquidation shall be disposed of in such manner as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate: Provided, That to the extent practicable such funds shall be returned pro rata to the persons from whom such funds were collected.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

§ 1015.48 Research and development. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may establish or provide for the establishment of marketing research and development projects designed to assist, improve, or promote the marketing, distribution, and consumption of cucumbers. Such projects shall be financed from assessments collected.

REGULATION

§ 1015.50 Marketing policy. Prior to or at the same time as initial recommendations are made pursuant to § 1015.51, the committee shall submit to the Secretary a report setting forth the marketing policy it deems desirable for the industry to follow in handling cucumbers during the ensuing season. Additional reports shall be submitted from time to time if it is deemed advisable by the committee to adopt a new or modified marketing policy because of changes in the demand and supply situation with respect to cucumbers. The committee shall publicly announce the submission of each such marketing policy report and copies thereof shall be available at the committee's office for inspection by any producer or any handler. In determining each such marketing policy the committee shall give due consideration to the following:

(a) Market prices of cucumbers including prices by grades, sizes, and quality in different packs, in the production area and in competing areas;

(b) Supply of cucumbers, by grade, size, and quality in the production area, and in other production areas;

(c) Trend and level of consumer income;

(d) Marketing conditions affecting cucumber prices; and

(e) Other relevant factors

§ 1015.51 Recommendations for regulations. The committee, upon complying with the requirements of §§ 1015.32 and 1015.50, may recommend regulations to the Secretary whenever it finds that such regulations, as are provided for in this subpart, will tend to effectuate the declared policies of the act.

§ 1015.52 Issuance of regulations. The Secretary shall limit the handling of cucumbers whenever he finds from the recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or from other available information, that such regulation would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Such regulation may:

(a) Limit, in any or all portions of the production area, the handling of particular grades, sizes, qualities, maturities, varieties, or packs of cucumbers during any period; or

(b) Limit the handling of particular grades, sizes, qualities, maturities, or packs of cucumbers differently, for different varieties, for different portions of the production area, for different containers, for different purposes specified in § 1015.54, or any combination of the foregoing, during any period; or

(c) Limit the handling of cucumbers by establishing, in terms of grades, or sizes, or both: (1) Minimum standards of quality and maturity which shall be effective irrespective of whether the seasonal average price of cucumbers is in excess of the parity level specified in section 2 (1) of the act; and/or (2) pack specifications for the several commercially recognized grades of equal or better quality than the said minimum standards of cucumbers which may be handled pursuant to subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; or

(d) Fix the size, weight, capacity, dimensions, or pack of the container or containers which may be used in the packaging, transportation, sale, shipment, or other handling of cucumbers.

§ 1015.53 Minimum quantities. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may establish, for any or all portions of the production area, minimum quantities below which handling will be free from regulations issued or effective pursuant to §§ 1015.42, 1015.52, 1015.54, 1015.60, or any combination thereof.

§ 1015.54 Shipments for special purposes. Upon the basis of recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or other available information, the Secretary, whenever he finds that it will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, shall modify, suspend, or terminate regulations issued pursuant to §§ 1015.42, 1015.52, 1015.53, or § 1015.60 or any combination thereof, in order to facilitate handling of cucumbers for the following purposes:

(a) For export;

(b) For relief or for charity;

(c) For conversion into pickles or relishes; or

(d) For other purposes or products which may be specified by the committee, with the approval of the Secretary.

§ 1015.55 Notification of regulation. The Secretary shall notify the committee of any regulations issued or of any modification, suspension, or termination thereof. The committee shall give reasonable notice thereof to handlers.

§ 1015.56 Safeguards. (a) The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe adequate safeguards to prevent handling of cucumbers pursuant to § 1015.54 from entering channels of trade for other than the specific purpose authorized therefore, and rules governing the issuance and the contents of Certificates or Privilege if such certificates are prescribed as safeguards by the committee. Such safeguards may include any or all requirements that:

(1) Handlers shall file applications with the committee to ship cucumbers pursuant to § 1015.54; or

(2) Handlers shall obtain inspection provided by § 1015.60, or pay the assessment levied pursuant to § 1015.42, or both, in connection with shipments made under § 1015.54; or

(3) Handlers shall obtain Certificates of Privilege from the committee to handle cucumbers pursuant to the provisions of § 1015.54.

(b) The committee may rescind or deny Certificates of Privilege to any handler if proof is obtained that cucumbers handled by him for the purposes stated in § 1015.54 were handled contrary to the provisions of this part.

(c) The Secretary shall have the right to modify, change, alter, or rescind any safeguards prescribed and any certificates issued by the committee pursuant to the provisions of this section.

(d) The committee shall make reports to the Secretary, as requested, showing the number of applications for such certificates, the quantity of cucumbers covered by such applications, the number of such applications denied and certificates granted, the quantity of cucumbers handled under duly issued certificates, and such other information as may be requested.

INSPECTION

§ 1015.60 Inspection and certification. (a) During any period in which handling of cucumbers is regulated pursuant to § 1015.52 or § 1015.54, or any combination thereof, no handler shall handle cucumbers unless each such handling is inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary shall designate, except when relieved from such requirements pursuant to § 1015.53 or § 1015.54, or both.

(b) Regrading, resorting, or repacking any lot of cucumbers shall invalidate any prior inspection certificates insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned. In such event, the person responsible shall be considered the first handler of the regraded, resorted, or repacked quantity and liable for the payment of assessments thereon pursuant to § 1015.42. No handler shall handle cucumbers after they have been regraded, resorted, repacked, or in any other way further prepared for market, unless each lot of such cucumbers is inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary shall designate: Provided, That the committee, with approval of the Secretary, may provide for waiving inspection requirements on any cucumbers in circumstances where it appears reasonably certain that, after regrading, resorting, or repacking, such cucumbers meet the applicable quality and other standards then in effect.

(c) Prior to handling any lot of cucumbers, the handler shall obtain an inspection certificate for such lot from the Federal-State Inspection Service. Upon recommendation of the committee with approval of the Secretary, every such inspection certificate shall show, in addition to such other information as the committee may specify, the name and address of the handler, the quantity, grade, size, and pack of the cucumbers in the lot, and that the cucumbers conform to the pack specifications, if any, and the minimum standards of quality and maturity prescribed pursuant to § 1015.52. Each lot so inspected and certified shall, upon recommendation of the committee with approval of the Secretary, be identified by appropriate seals, stamps, or tags affixed to each of the containers by the handler under the direction and supervision of the committee or the inspection service, showing that the minimum standards of quality and maturity have been met and, in addition, the particular pack specifications of the lot, if such pack specifications are then in effect.

(d) Insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned, the length of time for which an inspection certificate is valid may be established by the committee with the approval of the Secretary.

(e) When the cucumbers are inspected in accordance with the requirements of this section a copy of each inspection certificate issued shall be made available to the committee by the inspection service.

EXEMPTIONS

§ 1015.65 Procedure. The committee may adopt, with approval of the Secretary, the procedures pursuant to which certificates of exemption will be issued to producers or handlers.

§ 1015.66 Granting exemptions. The committee shall issue certificates of exemption to any producer who applies for such exemption and furnishes adequate evidence to the committee, that, by reason of a regulation issued pursuant to § 1015.52, he will be prevented from handling as large a proportion of his production as the average proportion of production handled during the entire season, or such portion thereof as may be determined by the committee, by all producers in said applicant's immediate production area and that the grade, size, or quality of the applicant's cucumbers have been adversely affected by acts beyond the applicant's control and by acts beyond reasonable expectation. Each certificate shall permit the producer to handle the amount of cucumbers specified thereon. Such certificate shall be transferred with such cucumbers at time of transportation or sale.

§ 1015.67 Investigation. The committee shall be permitted at any time to make a thorough investigation of any producer's or handler's claim pertaining to exemptions.

§ 1015.68 Appeal. If any applicant for exemption certificates is dissatisfied with the determination by the committee with respect to his application, said applicant may file an appeal with the committee. Such an appeal must be taken promptly after the determination by the committee from which the appeal is taken. Any applicant filing an appeal shall furnish evidence satisfactory to the committee for a determination on the appeal. The committee shall thereupon reconsider the application, examine all available evidence, and make a final determination concerning the application. The committee shall notify the appellant of the final determination, and shall furnish the Secretary with a copy of the appeal and a statement of considerations involved in making the final determination.

§ 1015.69 Records. (a) The committee shall maintain a record of all applications submitted for exemption certificates, a record of all exemption certificates issued or denied, a record of the quantity of cucumbers covered by such exemption certificates, a record of the amount of cucumbers handled under exemption certificates, a record of appeals for reconsideration of applications, and such other information as may be requested by the Secretary. Periodic reports on such records shall be compiled and issued by the committee upon request of the Secretary.

(b) The Secretary shall have the right to modify, change, alter, or rescind any procedure and any exemptions granted pursuant to §§ 1015.65, 1015.66, 1015.67, or § 1015.68, or any combination thereof.

REPORTS

§ 1015.70 Reports. Upon request of the committee, made with approval of the Secretary, each handler shall furnish to the committee, in such manner and at such time as it may prescribe, such reports and other information as may be necessary for the committee to perform its duties under this part.

(a) Such reports may include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following: (1) The quantities of cucumbers received by a handler; (2) the quantities disposed of by him, segregated as to the respective quantities subject to regulation and not subject to regulation; (3) the date of each such disposition and the identification of the carrier transporting such cucumbers; and (4) the identification of the inspection certificates and the exemption certificates, if any, pursuant to which the cucumbers were handled, together with the destination of each exempted disposition, and of all cucumbers handled pursuant to § 1015.53, or § 1015.54, or both.

(b) All such reports shall be held under appropriate protective classification and custody by the committee, or duly appointed employees thereof, so that the information contained therein which might adversely affect the competitive position of any handler in relation to other handlers will not be disclosed. Compilations of general reports from data submitted by handlers is authorized, subject to prohibition of disclosure of individual handlers identities or operations.

(c) Each handler shall maintain for at least two succeeding years after the particular fiscal period such records of the cucumbers received and disposed of by such handler as may be necessary to verify the reports he submits to the committee pursuant to this section.

EFFECTIVE TIME AND TERMINATION

§ 1015.75 Effective time. The provisions of this subpart, or any amendment thereto, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until terminated in one of the ways specified in this subpart.

§ 1015.76 Termination. (a) The Secretary may, at any time, terminate the provisions of this subpart by giving at least one day's notice by means of a press release or in any other manner which he may determine.

(b) The Secretary may terminate or suspend the operations of any or all of the provisions of this subpart whenever he finds that such provisions do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(c) The Secretary shall terminate the provisions of this subpart at the end of any fiscal period whenever he finds that such termination is favored by a majority of producers, who, during a representative period, have been engaged in the production for market of cucumbers: Provided, That such majority has, during such representative period, produced for market more than fifty percent of the volume of such cucumbers produced for market.

(d) The provisions of this subpart shall, in any event, terminate whenever the provisions of the act authorizing them cease to be in effect.

§ 1015.77 Proceedings after termination. (a) Upon the termination of the provisions of this subpart the then functioning members of the committee shall continue as joint trustees for the purpose of liquidating the affairs of the committee of all the funds and property then in the possession of or under control of the committee, including claims for any funds unpaid or property not delivered at the time of such termination. Action by said trusteeship shall require the concurrence of a majority of the said trustees.

(b) The said trustees shall continue in such capacity until discharged by the Secretary; shall, from time to time, account for all receipts and disbursements and deliver all property on hand, together with all books and records of the committee and of the trustees, to such person as the Secretary may direct; and shall, upon request of the Secretary, execute such assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to vest in such person full title and right to all of the funds, property, and claims vested in the committee or the trustees pursuant to this subpart.

(c) Any person to whom funds, property, or claims have been transferred or delivered by the committee or its members pursuant to this section, shall be subject to the same obligations imposed upon the members of the committee and upon the said trustees.

§ 1015.78 Effect of termination or amendment. Unless otherwise expressly provided by the Secretary, the termination of this subpart or of any regulation issued pursuant to this subpart, or the issuance of any amendments to either thereof, shall not (a) affect or waive any right, duty, obligation, or liability which shall have arisen or which may thereafter arise in connection with any provision of this subpart or any regulation issued under this subpart, or (b) release or extinguish any violation of this subpart or of any regulations issued under this subpart, or (c) affect or impair any rights or remedies of the Secretary or of any other person with respect to any such violations.

COMPLIANCE

§ 1015.83 Duration of immunities. The benefits, privileges, and immunities conferred upon any person by virtue of this subpart shall cease upon the termination of this subpart, except with respect to acts done under and during the existence of this subpart.

§ 1015.86 Personal liability. No member or alternate of the committee nor any employee or agent thereof, shall be held personally responsible, either individually or jointly with others, in any way whatsoever, to any handler or to any person for errors in judgment, mistakes, or other acts, either of commission or omission, as such member, alternate, agent, or employee, except for acts of dishonesty, willful misconduct, or gross negligence.

§ 1015.87 Separability. If any provision of this subpart is declared invalid, or the applicability thereof to any person, circumstance, or thing is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this subpart, or the applicability thereof to any other person, circumstance, or thing, shall not be affected thereby.

§ 1015.89 Counterparts.[1] This agreement may be executed in multiple counterparts and when one counterpart is signed by the Secretary all such counterparts shall constitute, when taken together, one and the same instrument as if all signatures were contained in one original.

CITRUS CANKER DISEASE FROM HAWAII

PROPOSED REVOCATION OF QUARANTINE

Notice is hereby given under section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003), that the Administrator of the Agricultural Research Service, pursuant to sections 8 and 9 of the Plant Quarantine Act of 1912, as amended (7 U. S. C. 161, 162), is considering the revocation of notice of quarantine No. 75 relating to the movement of citrus nursery stock from Hawaii because of the citrus canker disease (7 CFR 301.75).

Surveys by plant pathologists of the United States Department of Agriculture of citrus groves in the islands of Hawaii were conducted in 1951, 1954, and during December 1956 and January 1957. The latest survey included 5,302 trees at 93 sites. No symptons of the citrus canker disease have been observed during any of these surveys.

Since climatic conditions in Hawaii appear to be suitable for the establishment and spread of the citrus canker disease, the negative findings over a 6-year period are considered sufficient evidence that the disease does not occur in the island. Revocation of the Hawaiian Citrus Nursey Stock Quarantine would not affect the movement of citrus fruits from the island, since such fruits are subject to the provisions of Hawaiian Fruits and Vegetables Quarantine No. 13.

All persons who desire to submit written data, views, or arguments in connection with this matter should file the same with the Director of the Plant Quarantine Division, Agricultural Research Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., within 30 days after the date of the publication of this notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(Secs. 8, 9, 37 Stat. 318, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 161, 162; 7 CFR 301.75)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 13th day of March 1957.

(i) "Person" includes corporations, partnerships, and associations, existing under or authorized by the laws of the United States, or any State, Territory, District, or possession thereof, or of any foreign country.

§ 244.2 Registration. All persons who engage in business as a freight forwarder shall register with the Federal Maritime Board before engaging in such business and shall register annually thereafter on or before March 1 of each year, provided that persons who have registered under the rules and regulations in this part and received a registration number need not re-register before the next annual registration date. Registration shall be accomplished by executing and filing with the Federal Maritime Board Freight Forwarder Registration Form FMB–21 (§ 244.14) which will be furnished by the Federal Maritime Board upon request. For good cause shown, the Federal Maritime Board upon written request of the registrant, may extend the time for registration.

§ 244.3 Additional information. Registrants shall submit such additional information as the Federal Maritime Board may request from time to time, and shall notify the Federal Maritime Board of any change in facts reported to it under this part within ten days after such change occurs. Failure to comply with this section by a forwarder will be deemed sufficient reason to cancel his registration.

§ 244.4 Information available to public. Information set forth in Freight Forwarder Registration Form FMB–21 shall be public information and available for public inspection at the offices of the Federal Maritime Board.

§ 244.5 Registration numbers. (a) Each person who intends to engage in business as a forwarder and has filed the required information will be issued a registration number by the Federal Maritime Board after examination and verification of the information submitted by him and a determination that the issuance of a registration number will not be inconsistent with this part or the Shipping Act, 1916. Thereafter such registration number shall be set forth on the registrant's letterheads, invoices, advertising, and all other documents relating to his forwarding business. The issuance of a registration number by the Federal Maritime Board to a forwarder is for identification and informational purposes and does not mean that the Board has investigated and found that the forwarder is qualified. Use of these registration numbers in any manner other than to indicate the fact of registration with the Federal Maritime Board is prohibited.

(b) A forwarder's registration may be suspended or cancelled after notice and hearing, if the Federal Maritime Board finds that the registrant has violated the rules in this part or the Shipping Act, 1916.

(c) Any forwarder who fails to re-register with the Federal Maritime Board as provided in § 244.2 shall automatically lose his registration number.

(d) A forwarder may not transfer or assign his registration number.

(e) A forwarder shall not be entitled to register under more than one name or to obtain more than one registration number regardless of the number of names under which he may be doing business. Where two or more corporations are owned or controlled by substantially the same interests they shall be treated as one entity for the purpose of registration and they shall not be entitled to separate numbers.

§ 244.6 Registration lists. The Board will compile annually, and make available to the public upon request, lists of all registrants with their respective registration numbers.

§ 244.7 Billing practices. All forwarders shall use invoices or other forms of billing which state separately and specifically, as to each shipment:

(a) The amount of ocean freight assessed by the carrier;

(b) The amount of consular fees paid to consular authorities;

(c) The actual cost to the forwarder of insuring the shipment whether by a policy bought in the name of the shipper or by an open policy or otherwise;

(d) The amount charged for each accessorial service performed in connection with the shipment;

(e) Other charges;

(f) The amount of any brokerage fees which the forwarder has collected or believes that he is entitled to collect from the carrier.

Provided, however, That forwarders who offer to the public at large to forward small shipments for uniform charges available to all and duly filed with the Federal Maritime Board, shall not be required to itemize the components of such uniform charges on shipments as to which the charges shall have been stated to the shipper at time of shipment, and accepted by the shipper for payment; but if such forwarders procure marine insurance to cover such shipments, they must state their total charge for such insurance, inclusive of premiums and placing fees, separately from the aforementioned uniform charge.

§ 244.8 Consolidated shipments. In the case of individual shipments consolidated with other individual shipments, the invoice or other form of billing concerning each shipment shall state the minimum ocean freight and consular fees that would have been payable on each shipment if shipped separately, and the amounts actually charged for these items by the forwarder, on the shipment in question.

§ 244.9 Special contracts. All special agreements or contracts between forwarders and shippers or consignees shall be in writing and shall be maintained in the files of the forwarder for a period of 12 months, and submitted to the Federal Maritime Board upon request.

§ 244.10 Nondiscriminatory treatment required. To the extent that special agreements or contracts are entered into by a forwarder with individual shippers or consignees, such forwarder shall not deny to other shippers or consignees similarly situated, and whose shipments are accepted by such forwarder, equal charges for forwarding and accessorial services to be rendered by the forwarder, insofar as such forwarding and accessorial services are similar to those performed for shippers or consignees holding special contracts; and such forwarder shall advise such other shippers or consignees as to the terms under which such special contracts or agreements are available.

§ 244.11 Exceptions as to special contracts. In the case of special contracts whereby the parties have agreed in advance as to the charges for services in connection with the forwarding of a shipment, the invoice or other form of billing shall refer to the agreement, in which event the charges need not be itemized.

§ 244.12 Forwarders' receipts. Forwarders' receipts for cargo shall be clearly identified as such and shall not be in form purporting to be ocean carriers' bills of lading.

§ 244.13 Brokerage payments. (a) No common carrier by water shall pay brokerage to a forwarder or broker except as compensation for the performance of a brokerage service as defined in § 244.1, and to the extent authorized by the carrier's tariff.

(b) No forwarder or broker shall charge or receive brokerage from a common carrier by water except for the performance of a brokerage service as defined in § 244.1.

(c) No forwarder or broker shall charge or accept compensation from both a shipper and a common carrier by water in connection with the same shipment, without first advising both parties of the amount and basis for the charge or payment by the other.

(d) No forwarder may render, or offer to render, any forwarding service free of charge or at reduced rates in consideration of the shipper or carrier agreeing to allow or allowing the forwarder to receive brokerage on the shipment.

(e) Steamship lines when acting in accordance with approved section 15 agreements or an individual carrier may make rules and regulations to assure that brokerage will not be paid under circumstances which will violate the Shipping Act, 1916, or the rules in this part.

(f) No forwarder or broker or other person shall collect brokerage from a common carrier by water, and no such carrier shall pay brokerage to any forwarder or broker or other person, in cases where payment thereof would constitute a rebate, such as, for example, where the forwarder or broker or other person: (1) Is the shipper or consignee or is the seller or purchaser or purchasing agent of the shipment, (2) advances the purchase price of the goods shipped or guarantees payment therefor, or has any beneficial interest therein, (3) directly or indirectly, by stock ownership or otherwise, controls or is controlled by the shipper or consignee, or seller or purchaser or purchasing agent of the shipment or by any person having a beneficial interest in the shipment or person advancing the purchase price of the goods shipped or guaranteeing payment therefor, and (4) where the forwarder or broker and the shipper, consignee, seller or purchaser or purchasing agent, or person advancing the purchase price of the goods shipped or guaranteeing payment therefor are owned or controlled by substantially the same interests.

(g) No forwarder or broker shall share directly or indirectly any part of the brokerage received from a common carrier by water with a shipper, consignee, or an employee of a shipper or consignee or seller or purchaser or purchasing agent of the shipment or person advancing the purchase price of the goods shipped or guaranteeing payment therefor, or with any person having a beneficial interest in the shipment.

(h) After the date on which a forwarder is required to register or re-register, no forwarder shall accept brokerage from a common carrier by water and no such carrier shall pay brokerage to any forwarder before such forwarder has been assigned a registration number pursuant to the rules in this part or during any period of suspension or cancellation of the forwarder's registration number.

(i) No common carrier by water shall pay brokerage to a forwarder or broker when the receipt of such brokerage by the forwarder is prohibited by the rules in this part or the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended.

(j) No forwarder or broker shall charge or receive compensation from a common carrier by water for brokerage service performed in connection with any shipment which he owns or in which he has a material interest, or the routing of which he controls by reason of any affiliation with, or non-brokerage relationship to, the shipper, consignor, or consignee as traffic consultant or otherwise, or which he controls by reason of his performance for the shipper, consignor, or consignee of forwarding services or other non-brokerage services.

§ 244.14 Registration form. Form FMB–21 [1] is hereby prescribed for registration under § 244.2.

§ 244.15 Section 15 agreements. (a) Copies of written agreements and true and complete memoranda of oral agreements between a freight forwarder and another freight forwarder or carrier or other person subject to the Shipping Act, 1916, or modifications or cancellations thereof, which relate to one or more of the following subjects must be filed with the Board:

(1) Fixing or regulating transportation rates or fares;

(2) Giving or receiving special rates, accommodations or other special privileges or advantages;

(3) Controlling, regulating, preventing or destroying competition;

(4) Pooling or apportioning earnings, losses, or traffic (including sharing or dividing forwarding or brokerage fees with another forwarder);

(5) Allotting ports or restricting or otherwise regulating the number and character of sailings between ports;

(6) Limiting or regulating in any way the volume or character of freight or passenger traffic to be carried;

[1] Filed as part of the original document.

(7) In any manner providing for an exclusive, preferential or cooperative working arrangement.

(b) Copies of all such agreements referred to in paragraph (a) of this section are required to be filed with the Federal Maritime Board accompanied by a letter stating that they are offered for filing in compliance with section 15 of the Shipping Act, 1916, specifically requesting the Board's approval and addressed as follows:

Federal Maritime Board,
Regulation Office,
Washington 25, D. C.

(c) All copies or memoranda of agreements, modifications or cancellations thereof submitted for the Board's approval under section 15 shall clearly show (preferably in the opening paragraph), their nature, the parties, ports, and subject matter in detail, and reference to any previously filed agreements to which they may relate.

(d) Performance under a section 15 agreement, modification or cancellation thereof is not authorized until the Board has expressly approved it.

§ 244.16 Carrier performing forwarding services. Any carrier performing forwarding services shall specify in his tariff the kinds of forwarding services performed by him and the charges made for such services.

§ 244.17 Penalties for violations. Penalties for violations of this part are prescribed by section 806 (d) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, 46 U. S. C. 1228.

§ 244.18 Effective date. (To be determined by the Board after the receipt of comments.)

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[47 CFR Part 3]

RADIO BROADCAST SERVICES

MAIN STUDIO AND STATION IDENTIFICATION OF TELEVISION BROADCAST STATIONS

In the matter of amendment of Part 3 of the rules and regulations governing Main Studio and Station Identification of Television Broadcast Stations.

1. In a notice of proposed rule making adopted in this proceeding March 21, 1956, we requested comments on proposals to amend the Commission's rules so as to permit the licensing of television stations, under certain conditions, to serve, maintain main studios in, and identify themselves in their announcements of station identification with more than one principal community.

2. Under the present rules, television stations are licensed to serve and identify themselves with only one "principal community". The Table of Assignments in § 3.606 of the rules assigns television channels to single cities, except for a relatively small number of cases in which channels are assigned to two or three hyphenated cities. Under section 3.607 (a) applications may be filed only for stations on the assigned channels, in the listed communities. Section 3.607 (b) provides that a channel assigned to two or more communities in combination (i. e., cities "hyphenated" under the Table of Assignments), is available separately for each such community. Also, under § 3.607 (b), an applicant may request authorization for a station to serve any individual city lacking a commercial channel assignment, which is located within 15 miles of the city or cities listed for the particular assignment in § 3.606.

3. Section 3.613 requires that the main studio of a television station be located within the principal community the station is authorized to serve, unless another location is authorized. The requirements of § 3.652 concerning station identification relate to identification with the city which the station is authorized to serve as its principal community. Section 3.658 (b), relating to territorial exclusivity in the broadcast of network programs, refers to the single community in which a station is "located", as specified in the station's instrument of authorization. Section 3.685, relating to transmitter location and minimum city signal refers, in the singular, to the "principal community to be served".

4. Before discussing the policy considerations affecting the proposed amendments, we turn to a threshold question concerning the Commission's statutory power to license television stations to serve, maintain studios in and identify themselves in station announcements with more than one principal community. Some of the parties to this proceeding contend that this would violate section 307 (b) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. We do not agree.

5. Section 307 (b) of the act reads, as follows:

> In considering applications for licenses, and modifications and renewals thereof, when and insofar as there is demand for the same, the Commission shall make such distribution of licenses, frequencies, hours of operation, and of power among the several States and communities as to provide a fair, efficient and equitable distribution of radio service to each of the same.

This language neither contains any express prohibition against authorizing television stations to serve, maintain studios in and identify themselves with more than one principal community, nor, in our opinion, can it properly be interpreted to imply such a prohibition. For years, standard broadcast and FM stations have been authorized, under conditions specified in the rules (§§ 3.30 and 3.205, respectively), to maintain main studios in and identify themselves with more than one principal city. The fair, efficient and equitable distribution of radio service among the several States and communities within the means of section 307 (b) has never been held by the courts to preclude the maintenance by broadcast stations of main studios in, or identification with more than one principal city. Nowhere in the legislative history of section 307 (b) is there any basis for inferring Congressional intent that in applying the mandate of the section, the Commission be precluded from licensing a broadcast station to serve more than one principal city or community to maintain main studios in more than one place, or to identify itself with more than one city.

6. We believe that if Congress had intended such a marked exception from the wide latitude otherwise permitted the Commission in effectuating the fair, efficient and equitable distribution of radio service among the several States and communities, it would have embodied such a limitation in clear, express language. In the absence of such language, we construe section 307 (b) to permit the authorization of multiple principal city service and identification by stations in any of the broadcast services. Our decision therefore turns on policy rather than legal considerations.

7. Parties who support the proposed amendments have pointed out that in a number of cases a television station licensed to serve a particular city as its principal community, and required by § 3.652 to identify itself with that city in certain station announcements, in fact renders a city-grade signal throughout a neighboring city in which it maintains a separate studio. It is also pointed out that not only do such television stations render a full service to cities other than the one they are licensed to serve as their principal community, but also that they may find themselves in active competition with stations in the neighboring city. They compete for audience, for economic support and for local program sources and local talent. In some cases, moreover, the larger part of the audience served by a television station resides in or near a city other than the station's principal community. In practice, therefore, such a station is commonly identified in the minds of both listeners and advertising sponsors with more than one city or location. It is argued that in the foregoing circumstances, it would be appropriate for the Commission to broaden the rules so as to provide for the inclusion of more than one city in the required announcements of station identification.

8. In our notice of proposed rule making we raised questions concerning whether, if the proposed amendments were adopted, it would be desirable to impose certain types of conditions, such as a requirement that the cities included in the station identification announcements be hyphenated in the Table of Assignments or fall within the 15-mile rule, a provision that the amendment extend only to cities with common interests or which form part of a single overall community, and requirements concerning the provision of a minimum city-grade signal, a local studio, and a minimum amount of local live programming. The comments on these and related questions reflect a wide diversity of views, and raise serious doubts not only concerning the desirability of wide-scale departures from the present system of station identification with single city, but also concerning the feasibility of formulating fixed criteria whose application to differing local situations would reliably indicate the cases in which an exception to the general rule might be justified.

9. Concerning the first question, some parties would permit the inclusion only of cities which are "hyphenated" in the Table of Assignments. Others would broaden this to include cities within the "15-mile" rule of § 3.607 (b). It has been pointed out, however, that the purposes for which the Commission invoked the flexibility afforded by hyphenation do not necessarily relate to the considerations affecting whether it would be justifiable, in exceptional cases, to authorize the official identification of a television station with more than one city. Depending upon the circumstances, the criterion of hyphenation (whether or not extended to include cities within the 15-mile rule) might prove to be unduly restrictive in some instances, and unduly extensive in others. We have therefore concluded that hyphenation should be discarded as a possible criterion.

10. In paragraph 7 of our notice of proposed rule making we raised questions concerning the desirability and the feasibility of establishing criteria relating to the existence or absence of a community of interests between cities as one of the bases for determining whether authorization of multiple city identification would be appropriate. On this point most of the comments were in substantial agreement on the proposition that the concept of a community of interests is too broad and indefinable to permit its use as a criterion for the purposes of establishing a demarcation line between cases where multiple city identification might be justifiable and those where it would not be justified. We agree with those views, and have accordingly concluded that it is necessary to discard community of interests as a possible criterion.

11. In response to other questions raised in our notice of proposed rule making, numerous comments were directed to the question of whether authorization for multiple city identification should be conditioned on the provision of some fixed minimum amount of local live program originations from each of the individual cities included in multiple city identifications. Some parties advocate that such a condition be imposed, and some comments urged that the limitation be even more restrictive than the one posed in our notice. Other parties argued that any restriction embodied in rigid formulas would be awkward to observe in all the different circumstances which would arise. It was noted, for example, that an appropriate division of local live programming between studios located in different cities might vary according to the relative sizes of the cities, the time of year, the timing of public interest events, local campaigns and other sources of local programming, the nature and the amount of local program services provided by other stations, and other factors. Upon careful consideration of this facet of the problem we have concluded that it would be undesirable to impose rigid minimum requirements on local programming for each of the several cities with which a television station might be authorized to identify itself officially.

12. We have concluded for all the foregoing reasons that it would not be administratively feasible or desirable to adopt broad amendments to the rules embodying criteria which, if met, would automatically qualify a television station for authorization, as an exception to the general rule, to include more than one city in the announcements of station identification required under § 3.652 (a) of the rules.

13. A careful review of all the comments filed in this proceeding has persuaded us, moreover, that no justification has been shown for a general or widespread departure from the established system under which television stations are required to identify themselves officially with a single principal community to which their channel is assigned and which is designated as the location of the station in the station's instrument of authorization. Both because of this fact, and because of the difficulties, already discussed, of drafting amendments for general application which would automatically determine when the authorization of multiple city identification would be justified, we have concluded that the petitions for amendment of the rules filed in this proceeding should be denied.

14. We recognize, at the same time, that in exceptional cases the limitations of the present rules may be unnecessarily restrictive, and may preclude official identification of television stations with the communities they actually serve. As urged by some of the parties, this may very well be the case in some circumstances where the station provides a minimum city signal to more than one city, maintains well-equipped studios in more than one city and renders a full service to more than one city. Thus, although we do not believe that blanket exceptions should be permitted under specific amendments to the rules, we do not on the other hand conclude that it would necessarily be in the public interest to deny all requests for the authorization of official multiple city identification. We believe, therefore, that it would be desirable to consider requests for authorizations to include the name of more than one city in the announcements of station identification required under § 3.652, on the basis of requests for waiver of the limitation in the present rules. We will review any such requests in the light of all the relevant local circumstances, including the provision of a minimum city signal throughout the cities concerned, the applicant's proposals for the provision of studio facilities, the programming services to the cities concerned, other available television services, if any, the hardships, if any, which may be unjustifiably imposed by the present rules, and all other circumstances bearing on a decision as to whether the authorization would be justifiable in the individual case as an exception to the general rule.

15. Accordingly, it is ordered, That the petitions for amendment of the rules filed by Peninsula Broadcasting Corporation on July 22, 1955, and by Northwest Publications, Inc. on November 14, 1955, are denied and this proceeding is terminated.

Adopted: March 13, 1957.

STATIONS ON LAND AND ON SHIPBOARD IN THE MARITIME SERVICES

MISSISSIPPI RIVER SYSTEM RADIO-TELEPHONE FREQUENCIES

In the matter of amendment of Parts 7 and 8 of the Commission's rules to make Mississippi River System radio-telephone frequencies available for assignment to one or more coast stations in the vicinity of Mobile, Alabama and to ship stations on the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway and the Alabama River System and connecting inland waters.

At a session of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C. on the 13th day of March 1957;

The Commission having under consideration its notice of proposed rule making in the above-entitled proceeding which was adopted on November 8, 1956, in response to a petition filed on December 22, 1955, by Mobile Marine Radio, Mobile, Alabama;

It appearing that comments in opposition were filed by Warner and Tamble Radio Service, Inc., Aeronautical Radio, Inc. (ARINC), The Central Committee on Radio Facilities of the American Petroleum Institute, American Waterways Operators, Inc. (except one member, Warrior and Gulf Navigation Company which favored the proposal), American Telephone and Telegraph Company and RCA Communications, Inc.; and that two comments were filed supporting the proposal—one, by Mobile Marine Radio, and the other by the aforementioned Warrior and Gulf Navigation Company; and that, Mobile Marine Radio filed a reply comment in rebuttal to the objections field by Warner and Tamble Radio Service, Inc.; and

It further appearing that if the Mississippi River frequencies were authorized in the Gulf Coast area, adjacent channel interference would be received from and caused to an aeronautical fixed station licensed to operate on 2784 kc at Miami, Florida; and

It further appearing that of the potential users of the service who commented on the proposal only one company alleged a need for additional service while the other users who commented stated in effect that there was no such need and opposed the proposed extended service, and

It further appearing that The Gulf of Mexico coastline area is now being served by existing public coast stations, including a series of VHF public coast stations along the Gulf Coastline from Panama City, Florida to La Marque (Galveston) Texas; and

It further appearing that no facts have been submitted in this proceeding which show a substantial need for the proposed extension of ship-shore service on the Mississippi River frequencies; and

It further appearing that in view of the potential disadvantages of such an extension and the lack of sufficient specific benefits to be derived therefrom that the proposed extended service would not be warranted;

It is ordered, That, in view of the foregoing, the Notice of Proposed Rule Making in this proceeding is withdrawn and Docket 11867 is closed;

It is further ordered, That that portion of Mobile Marine Radio's petition which gave rise to the issuance of the proposal in the subject docket is hereby denied.

Released: March 14, 1957.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[17 CFR Parts 240, 249]

USE OF REGISTRATION STATEMENT UNDER SECURITIES ACT OF 1933

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given that the Securities and Exchange Commission has under consideration a proposed revision of § 240.12b-35 of its general rules and regulations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and a proposed amendment to Form 10-K (§ 249.310) for annual reports under that act.

Section 240.12b-35 permits registrants under the Securities Act of 1933 to file an application for registration of securities on a national securities exchange consisting principally of its registration statement under the Securities Act and any annual, semi-annual or current reports filed pursuant to section 15 (d) of the Securities Exchange Act. The principal purpose of the proposed revision is to conform the rule to the requirements of the Commission's existing forms and to provide that the rule may not be resorted to unless the registration statement filed as a part of the application for registration contains substantially all of the information which would be required by the appropriate application form. The revised rule would also limit its use to registrants under the Securities Act which are subject to the reporting requirements under the Securities Exchange Act.

Form 10-K is the principal form used for annual reports by listed companies and Securities Act registrants which are subject to the reporting requirements under sections 13 and 15 (d) of the Securities Exchange Act. The proposed amendment to this form consists of a new instruction to item 4, which would provide that in case of an extractive enterprise the registrant shall furnish such material information in regard to its production, reserves, etc., as may be necessary to keep reasonably current the information previously reported in regard thereto.

I. Section 240.12b-35 would be revised to read as follows:

§ 240.12b-35. Use of registration statement under Securities Act of 1933. (a) Any registrant which has effective under the Securities Act of 1933 a registration statement containing substantially all of the information required by the appropriate application form may file an application for registration of any class of securities on a national securities exchange in accordance with the provisions of this section, provided (1) the registration statement is not subject to any proceeding under section 8 (d) of that act or to an order entered thereunder, and (2) the registrant is required to file reports pursuant to section 15 (d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

(b) An application for registration filed pursuant to this section shall consist of the following information and documents:

(1) The registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933, including financial statements and exhibits and all amendments to such statement, or a composite of such statement as amended. However, any financial statements or exhibits not called for by the appropriation application form may be omitted.

(2) A description of any class of securities being registered, as required by the appropriate application form, unless securities of such class were registered pursuant to the above registration statement.

(3) All annual, semi-annual and current reports, including all amendments thereto, filed by the registrant pursuant to section 15 (d) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 since the effective date of the above registration statement.

(4) Any financial statements or exhibits required by the appropriate application form which are not contained in the above registration statement or reports.

(5) The total number of stockholders as of the latest practicable date.

(c) The application for registration shall be filed under cover of the facing sheet of the appropriate application form and shall be signed in accordance with the requirements of that form. Except as otherwise provided in this section, all pertinent provisions of these general rules and regulations relating to the preparation and filing of applications for registration shall apply to applications filed pursuant to this section. The following statement and list of contents shall be set forth on the first page of the application immediately following the facing page thereof:

This application is filed pursuant to § 240.12b-35 of the general rules and regulations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 and consists of the following information and documents: (List the contents of the application for registration, commencing with the registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933, identifying it by file number and effective date.)

(d) In copies of the application for registration filed with the Commission, the registrant may incorporate by reference the registration statement or any reports required by paragraph (a) of this section. Section 240.12b-36 shall apply to financial statements filed as a part of, or incorporated by reference in, applications for registration filed pursuant to this section.

II. Form 10-K (§ 249.310) would be amended by adding to Item 4 thereof a new instruction 5 reading as follows:

5. In the case of an extractive enterprise, furnish such material information as to production, reserves, locations, development and the nature of the registrant's interest, as may be necessary to keep reasonably current the information previously reported in regard to such matters.

The foregoing action would be taken pursuant to the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, particularly sections 12 (b) and 23 (a) thereof.

All interested persons are invited to submit views and comments on the foregoing proposals in writing to the Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C., on or before April 10, 1957. Except where it is requested that such communications not be disclosed, they will be considered available for public inspection.

By the Commission.

C. F. BAU & CIE, K. G.

ORDER INDEFINITELY DENYING EXPORT PRIVILEGES

In the matter of C. F. BAU & CIE, K. G., 14/25 Hindenburg Street, Offenburg/BW, Western Germany; respondent.

The Agent-in-Charge of the Investigation Staff, having applied for an order indefinitely denying export privileges to C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G., of 14/25 Hindenburg Street, Offenburg, Western Germany, alleging that it has failed and refused to answer interrogatories duly propounded to it with respect to its intended disposition of 1,000 tons of borax, technical granular, which it ordered from a United States supplier and in connection with its specific written representations to its U. S. supplier of its intention to import said borax into the Federal Republic of Germany for processing;

And said application having been referred to the Compliance Commissioner who has reported (a) that trade information was reasonably accepted as evidence of the improbability that the Federal Republic of Germany would permit importation of so large a quantity of borax in this form, (b) that a formal interrogatory in the form contemplated in § 382.15 of the export regulations was duly served upon C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G. and notice given to it that failure to answer such interrogatory could be followed by denial of export privileges until such time as the answers are furnished and (d) that C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G. failed to make a reply that was responsive to the interrogatories or that answered the questions propounded by the interrogatory;

And the Compliance Commissioner having recommended that this order be entered;

Now, upon receipt of the Compliance Commissioner's recommendation, after reviewing and considering the evidence submitted in support of the application and, having concluded (a) that, by failing and refusing to answer the specific questions propounded to it by the interrogatory, the respondent, C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G., has violated section 6 (a) of the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, and § 381.5 of the regulations promulgated thereunder and (b) that this order is necessary and reasonable to protect the public interest and to achieve effective enforcement of the Export Control Act: It is hereby ordered:

(1) All outstanding validated export licenses held by or issued in the name of the respondent, C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G., or in which it appears or participates as purchaser, intermediate or ultimate consignee, or otherwise, are hereby revoked and shall be returned forthwith to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for cancellation;

(2) The respondent, C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G., its directors, officers, partners, representatives, agents, and employees, are hereby denied all privileges of participating directly or indirectly in any manner, form or capacity in an exportation of any commodity or technical data from the United States to any foreign destination including Canada. Without limitation of the generality of the foregoing, participation in an exportation shall include and prohibit said respondent's and such other persons' and firms' participation (a) as a party or as a representative of a party to any validated export license application; (b) in the obtaining or using of any validated or general export license or other export control document; (c) in the receiving, ordering, buying, selling, using, or disposing in any foreign country of any commodities in whole or in part exported from the United States; and (d) in the financing, forwarding, transporting, or other servicing of exports from the United States;

(3) This denial of export privileges shall apply not only to the named respondent, but also to any person, firm, corporation, or business organization with which it may be now or hereafter related by ownership, control, position of responsibility, or other connection in the conduct of trade involving exports from the United States or services connected therewith;

(4) This order shall be effective forthwith and shall remain in effect until such time as respondent, C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G., shall respond to the interrogatories heretofore propounded to it or shall give adequate reasons to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for its failure or refusal to respond; or unless amended or modified hereafter in accordance with Part (8) hereof;

(5) If within ten (10) days after receipt of this order, respondent C. F. Bau & Cie, K. G. has not responded to the interrogatories or given adequate reasons to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce for its failure or refusal to respond and has not made a motion to the Compliance Commissioner to vacate or modify this denial order in accordance with the provisions of Part (8) hereof, this order shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

(6) No person, firm, corporation, or other business organization, within the United States or elsewhere, and whether or not engaged in trade relating to exports from the United States, without prior disclosure of the fact to, and specific authorization from the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, shall directly or indirectly in any manner, form, or capacity (a) apply for, obtain, transfer, or use any license, shipper's export declaration, bill of lading, or other export control document relating to any exportation of commodities from the United States, or (b) order, receive, buy, use, dispose of, finance, transport, forward, or otherwise service or participate in an exportation from the United States, or in a reexportation of any commodity exported from the United States, with respect to which any of the persons or companies within the scope of paragraphs (2) and (3) hereinabove have any interest or participation of any kind or nature, direct or indirect;

(7) A certified copy of this order shall be served upon the named respondent by registered mail or hand delivery;

(8) In accordance with the provisions of § 382.11 (c) of the export control regulations, the respondent may move the Compliance Commissioner at any time prior to the entry of a final order to vacate or modify this denial order by filing with him an appropriate motion therefor, supported by evidence or answers to the interrogatories heretofore propounded, and it may request an oral hearing thereon, which, if requested, shall be held before the Compliance Commissioner at Washington, D. C., at the earliest possible date.

Dated: December 18, 1956.

Director,

NOTICE OF INVESTIGATION AND OF HEARING

On March 11, 1957, the Federal Maritime Board entered the following order:

It appearing that pursuant to section 1 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended, any person operating a marine terminal which provides a link service with a common carrier by water is an "other person subject to this act" insofar as such link service includes the furnishing of wharfage, dock, warehouse, or other terminal facility; the term "person" as used herein includes, but without limitation, individuals, corporations, partnerships, associations, steamship lines, railroads, and state, municipal and other governmental entities;

It further appearing that parties named in Appendix A are carrying on the business of furnishing wharfage, dock, warehouse or other terminal facilities in connection with common carriers by water, at ports located on the United States Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, and are therefore subject to the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended; and

It further appearing that certain charges, rules, regulations or practices of such aforesaid terminal operators pertaining to Dockage, Free Time, Wharf Demurrage, Wharfage, Handling, or other accessorial services may constitute unjust or unreasonable practices within the meaning of section 17 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended (46 U. S. C. 816) or may result in violation of section 16 First (46 U. S. C. 815) of said act; and

It further appearing that the present tariff terminology covering aforesaid terminal services offered and performed by said terminal operators vary in content, form definition and nomenclature to an extent which may cause doubt and confusion to users of these services and therefore may result in unjust or unreasonable regulations or practices within the meaning of section 17; and

It further appearing that rail carriers shown as participants in Southern Freight Tariff Bureau Freight Tariff S–326–N, Agent C. A. Spaninger's ICC No. 1511, and various other persons with whom the said rail carriers have arrangements or contracts or leases may have entered into agreements with each other and with said various other persons covering the establishment of terminal charges, rules, regulations and practices at Atlantic and Gulf ports which are subject to section 15 of the Shipping Act, 1916, but which were not filed with the Federal Maritime Board pursuant to the requirements of section 15 of the Shipping Act, 1916 (46 U. S. C. 814);

It is ordered, That the Board, on its own motion enter upon a proceeding of inquiry and investigation pursuant to section 22 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended (46 U. S. C. 821), to determine

(a) Whether the charges, regulations and practices of terminal operators at U. S. Atlantic and Gulf ports are just and reasonable within the meaning of section 17 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended;

(b) Whether the charges, regulations and practices of terminal operators at U. S. Atlantic and Gulf ports are in violation of section 16, First, of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended; and

(c) Whether rail carriers participating in Southern Freight Tariff Bureau Freight Tariff S–326–N, Agent C. A. Spaninger's I. C. C. No. 1511 governing Demurrage, Handling, Storage, Weighing and Wharfage at Virginia, South Atlantic, Florida and Gulf Ports (other than New Orleans, La.) have entered into and carried out agreements with each other and with other persons covering the establishment of terminal charges, rules, regulations or practices

at such ports in violation of section 15 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended;

It is further ordered, That pursuant to sections 16 and 17 of the Shipping Act, 1916, as amended, section 19 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1920, section 204 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 and section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act, the Board institute a rule-making proceeding for the purpose of prescribing uniform definitions of terminal services offered by all persons carrying on the business of furnishing wharfage, dock, warehouse or other terminal facilities in connection with a common carrier by water at U. S. Atlantic and Gulf ports; and

It is further ordered, That all persons carrying on the business of furnishing wharfage, dock, warehouse or other terminal facilities in connection with a common carrier by water at any port located on the Atlantic or Gulf Coast of the United States be, and they are hereby, named respondents in this proceeding; that copies of this order be served upon each of them (listed in Appendix A), and that notice of this proceeding be given to all other persons and the general public by publishing this order in the FEDERAL REGISTER; and

It is further ordered, That this proceeding be assigned for hearing before an examiner of the Hearing Examiners Office at a date and place to be fixed by the Chief Examiner.

[File No. 24FW-956]

HARDY-GRIFFIN ENGINEERING CORP.

ORDER TEMPORARILY SUSPENDING EXEMPTION, STATEMENT OF REASONS THEREFOR, AND NOTICE OF OPPORTUNITY FOR HEARING

MARCH 12, 1957.

I. Hardy-Griffin Engineering Corporation, a Texas corporation, with its principal offices located at 6834 Long Drive, Houston, Texas, filed with the Commission on July 8, 1955, a notification on Form 1-A and offering circular relating to a proposed offering by Benjamin & Co., 5012 Almeda, Houston, Texas, as underwriter for the issuer of 240,000 shares of its 1 cent par value common stock at the price of $1.25 per share, an aggregate offering price of $300,000, for the purpose of obtaining an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, pursuant to the provisions of section 3 (b) thereof and Regulation A promulgated thereunder, which notification became effective August 23, 1955; and

II. The Commission having reasonable cause to believe that:

(1) The notification on Form 1-A is false and misleading in the following respects:

(a) In response to Item 2 thereof, it is stated that neither the issuer nor any of its affiliates presently contemplates the offering or sale of any securities in addition to the 240,000 shares covered by this notification, whereas the records of the issuer's transfer agent indicate that sales in excess of 400,000 shares were effected, including 50,000 shares of the personally-owned stock of the principal underwriter.

(2) The offering circular contains untrue statements of material facts and omits to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances under which they are made, not misleading, in the following respects:

(a) Under the caption "Offering and Offering Terms," the offering circular states that if all shares offered are sold, there will be a total of 540,000 shares outstanding, of which 300,000 shares will be owned by the officers, directors and promoters of the issuer and 240,000 shares will be owned by the public investors purchasing the shares being offered under this notification. As a result of the sale of the 50,000 shares of personally-owned stock of the underwriter and the sale and issuance of additional shares by the issuer, the records of the issuer's transfer agent indicate that in excess of 300,000 shares were held by public investors at the completion of the offering of the 240,000 shares covered by this notification.

(b) The offering circular failed to disclose that in addition to the 240,000 shares shown by the Letter of Notification and the offering circular as comprising the public offering in this case, 50,000 shares shown in the offering circular as being owned by David J. Benjamin, the underwriter, were to be, and in fact were, offered to the public for his personal account.

(3) The exemption pursuant to Regulation A was not available for the offering of the issue of securities covered by the Letter of Notification and offering circular in that the amount offered exceeded the $300,000 maximum for which an exemption under Regulation A is available.

(4) Hardy-Griffin Engineering Corporation filed an interim Form 2-A report dated July 10, 1956, reflecting the status of the offering as of June 25, 1956, but failed to file a final Form 2-A report disclosing the completion of the public offering, as required by Rule 224.

(5) The offering of securities under this notification and offering circular was made in such a manner as to operate as a fraud or deceit upon the purchaser.

III. It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule 223 of the general rules and regulations under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, that the exemption under Regulation A be, and it hereby is, temporarily suspended.

Notice is hereby given that any person having any interest in the matter may file with the Secretary of the Commission a written request for hearing; that, within twenty days after receipt of such request, the Commission will, or at any time upon its own motion may, set the matter down for hearing at a place to be designated by the Commission for the purpose of determining whether this order of suspension shall be vacated or made permanent, without prejudice, however, to the consideration and presentation of additional matters at the hearing; and that notice of the time and place for said hearing will be promptly given by the Commission.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

DEUTSCHE RENTENBANK-KREDITANSTALT (LANDWIRT-SCHAFTLICHE ZENTRALBANK) GERMAN CENTRAL BANK FOR AGRICULTURE

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR EXEMPTION

MARCH 13, 1957.

Notice is hereby given that Deutsche Rentenbank-Kreditanstalt (the Bank), a corporation organized and existing under the laws of Germany, has filed an application pursuant to section 304 (d) of the Trust Indenture Act of 1939 for an order exempting the Bank's Series A and Series B Debt Adjustment Debentures due January 1, 1973 to be issued under an indenture to be dated as of January 1, 1953 between the Bank and the The First National City Bank of New York as Trustee, from the provisions of section 306 (c) of the Act to the extent necessary to permit the Bank, prior to the filing by the Bank of an application for qualification of the Indenture under the Act, to sumbit to the holders of its outstanding bonds an offer of settlement to be made pursuant to Annex II of the London Agreement on German External Debts of February 27, 1953, between the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany, the United States of America and other countries.

Section 304 (d) of the act permits the Commission, on application by the issuer and after opportunity for hearing thereon, to enter an order exempting from any one or more provisions of the act, any security proposed to be issued by a person organized and existing under the laws of a foreign government if and to the extent it finds that compliance with such provision or provisions is not necessary in the public interest and for the protection of investors.

The application states, with respect to the request for exemption from section 306 (c) of the act to the extent necessary to permit the exchange offer to be made prior to filing an application for qualification of the indenture, as follows:

(1) The Bank has outstanding the following four series of bonds which have been in default for many years:

(i) First Lien 7 percent Farm Loan Sinking Fund Bonds of 1925, due September 15, 1950 ("First Loan");

(ii) Farm Loan Secured 6 percent Gold Sinking Fund Bonds of 1927, due July 15, 1960 ("Second Loan");

(iii) Farm Loan Secured 6 percent Gold Sinking Fund Bonds, Second Series of 1927, due October 15, 1960 ("Third Loan"); and

(iv) Farm Loan Secured Six Percent Gold Sinking Fund Bonds, Series of 1928, due April 15, 1938 ("Fourth Loan").

(2) The London Agreement provides, among other things, for the consensual settlement of foreign currency obligations of German corporate debtors by the refunding and extension of such obligations. The Bank is liable only for the repayment of bonds which may be validated pursuant to the Validation Law for German Foreign Currency Bonds of August 25, 1952.

(3) Pursuant to certain currency reforms and regulations issued thereunder the Bank is presently liable only to the extent that the proceeds of such obligations were invested in the territories now forming part of the Federal Republic of Germany or West Berlin. The respective Western Quotas applicable to the bonds of each of the four loans due are as follows:

Bonds of:	Western quota (percent)
First loan	63
Second loan	59
Third loan	63
Fourth loan	100

Claims with respect to the portions of the bonds which are not presently enforceable ("Eastern Quotas") are deferred until after reunification of Germany.

(4) The offer of settlement to be made to the holders of the outstanding bonds includes (i) a cash offer by the Bank to the holders of bonds of the Fourth Loan; (ii) an offer by Kreditanstalt für Wiederaufbau, the German Reconstruction Finance Bank ("Reconstruction Bank"), to purchase bonds and related coupons of the First, Second and Third Loans, such offer to terminate on September 30, 1957; and (iii) an offer by the Bank to refund the Western Quotas of the First, Second and Third Loans by the issuance and exchange therefor of Twenty Year Debt Adjustment Debentures, such offer not to be accepted prior to October 1, 1957.

(5) A basic condition to the use of funds of the Reconstruction Bank in the cash offer by the Bank with respect to the Fourth Loan and the purchase offer to be made by the Reconstruction Bank, is that all three offers be submitted to the bondholders not later than March 31, 1957, since funds to be used by the Reconstruction Bank will be reimbursed to it out of funds included in the budget of the Federal Republic of Germany for its current fiscal year which expires March 31, 1957, and such funds must be committed by such date.

(6) The submission of the exchange offer to the holders of bonds of the First, Second and Third Loans is effectively prohibited by section 306 (a) of the act unless prior to such submission an application for qualification of the indenture has been filed pursuant to the act. Such filing prior to the making of the exchange offer is impracticable and not necessary. If the acceptance of the purchase offer is so favorable that the aggregate proposed amount of debt adjustment debentures permitted to be outstanding at any one time can be limited by the indenture ot $1,000,000, qualification of the indenture under the act would not be required by virtue of section 304 (a) (9) of the act. If qualification should be required it can be effected in ample time for the execution and delivery of the debentures.

For a more detailed statement of the matters of fact and law asserted, all persons are referred to such application which is now on file in the offices of the Commission in Washington, D. C.

Notice is further given that an order granting the application and upon such conditions as the Commission may deem necessary or appropriate, may be issued by the Commission at any time on or after March 27, 1957, unless prior thereto a hearing is ordered by the Commission. Any interested persons may, not later than March 25, 1957, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t. submit to the Commission in writing his views or any additional facts bearing upon the application or the desirability of a hearing thereon, or request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held thereon. Any such communication or request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C., and should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person submitting such information or requesting a hearing, the reasons for such request and the issues of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert.

By the Commission.

ORDER AUTHORIZING ISSUE AND SALE OF COMMON STOCK BY SUBSIDIARY AND ACQUISITION THEREOF BY HOLDING COMPANY

MARCH 13, 1957.

Ohio Edison Company ("Ohio"), a registered holding company and a public-utility company, and its subsidiary Pennsylvania Power Company ("Pennsylvania"), a public-utility company all of whose outstanding common stock is owned by Ohio, have filed a joint application and an amendment thereto pursuant to sections 6 (b) and 10 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act") with respect to the following proposed transactions:

BINGHAMTON GAS WORKS ET AL.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED MERGER OF TWO WHOLLY-OWNED SUBSIDIARY COMPANIES

MARCH 13, 1957.

In the matter of Binghamton Gas Works, The Keystone Gas Company, Inc., The Columbia Gas System, Inc.; File No. 70-3569.

Notice is hereby given that The Columbia Gas System, Inc. ("Columbia"), a registered holding company, and its wholly-owned subsidiaries Binghamton Gas Works ("Binghamton") and The Keystone Gas Company, Inc. ("Keystone") have filed a joint application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), designating sections 6 (b), 9, 10, and 12 thereof and Rule U-43 thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions, which are summarized as follows:

It is proposed that Keystone be merged and consolidated into Binghamton and that the name of Binghamton, the surviving corporation, be changed to Columbia Gas of New York, Inc. Binghamton will acquire Keystone's assets at their recorded amounts (utility plant being recorded at original cost), and will assume Keystone's liabilities including all reserves. The merger will be consummated as follows:

1. The 72,000 outstanding shares of Binghamton common stock (par value $25.00 per share) will remain outstanding and unchanged. Binghamton will increase its authorized common stock from 80,000 shares to 140,000 shares, and will issue 22,152 of such shares to Columbia in exchange for Keystone's presently outstanding 10,000 shares of no-par common stock (plus $14.11 in cash to avoid the issuance of a fractional share). The shares will be exchanged on the basis of their respective par and stated values;

2. The promissory notes of Keystone will remain unchanged, but by virtue of the merger will become obligations of Binghamton as the surviving corporation;

3. The earned surplus of Keystone will be carried forward and become part of the earned surplus of the surviving corporation;

4. The name of the surviving corporation will be changed to Columbia Gas of New York, Inc.

Binghamton and Keystone, both New York corporations, are engaged in the business of manufacturing, purchasing, distributing and selling gas at retail in various communities in the southern part of New York State. Their distribution systems are connected through the transmission system of Home Gas Company ("Home"), an affiliate. All of Binghamton's gas requirements, and substantially all of Keystone's gas requirements, are purchased from Home. Both companies have the same officers and management, and no change in operations is required.

It is stated that the proposed merger is a part of Columbia's corporate realignment and simplification program, designed to simplify and minimize the problems of regulating the system's rates, and that the merger will result in administrative economies which will ultimately benefit the customers of both companies, but that no change in the rates for service will be made at this time.

The New York Public Service Commission, which has jurisdiction over the proposed consolidation, has approved the several provisions thereof and the filing of an appropriate certificate of consolidation with the Secretary of State of New York, pursuant to Section 86 of the New York Stock Corporation Law, reserving jurisdiction over the journal entries to reflect said consolidation and over the costs and expenses to be incurred in connection therewith.

A statement of the fees and expenses to be paid by the several companies in connection with the proposed transactions will be filed by amendment.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 27, 1957, at 5:30 p. m., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law, if any, raised by said application-declaration which he desires to controvert; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington 25, D. C. At any time after said date the application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may grant exemption from its rules as provided in Rules U-20 (a) and U-100, or take such other action as it may deem appropriate.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

PRODUCT DESCRIPTION, AND GRADES

§ 52.3481 Product description. "Concentrated grapefruit juice for manufacturing" is the concentrated product obtained from sound, mature grapefruit (Citrus paradisi). The fruit is prepared by sorting and by washing prior to extraction of the juice and the extracted juice is concentrated. The concentrated grapefruit juice is processed in accordance with good commercial practice; and may or may not require processing by heat, subsequent refrigeration, or freezing to assure preservation of the product but is not the product known as "frozen concentrated grapefruit juice." The finished product does not contain any additives except that cold-pressed oil to standardize flavor and chemical preservatives permissible under provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act may have been added.

(a) The Brix value of the finished concentrate shall comply with the following for the dilution factors indicated:

Dilution factor	Brix value of the finished concentrate
	Minimum Brix value	Maximum Brix value
	Degrees	Degrees
1 plus 3	37.5	40.1
1 plus 4	45.5	48.3
1 plus 5	52.7	56.0
1 plus 6	59.6	63.2

(b) Concentrated grapefruit juice for manufacturing of other dilution factors than "1 plus 3" to "1 plus 6," as indicated in paragraph (a) of this section, shall result in a Brix (upon reconstitution as prescribed by the processor or as prescribed by the label on the container, if labeled) of not less than 10.5 degrees.

§ 52.3482 Grades of concentrated grapefruit juice for manufacturing. (a) "U. S. Grade A for Manufacturing" or "U. S. Fancy for Manufacturing" is the quality of concentrated grapefruit juice which shows no material gelation, reconstitutes properly, and of which the reconstituted juice possesses a reasonably good color; is practically free from defects; possesses a reasonably good flavor; and scores not less than 85 points when scored in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this subpart.

(b) "U. S. Grade C for Manufacturing" or "U. S. Standard for Mahufacturing" is the quality of concentrated grapefruit juice which shows no serious gelation, reconstitutes properly, and of which the reconstituted juice possesses a fairly good color; is fairly free from defects; possesses a fairly good flavor; and scores not less than 70 points when scored in accordance with the scoring system outlined in this subpart.

(c) "Substandard for Manufacturing" is the quality of concentrated grapefruit juice that fails to meet the requirements of U. S. Grade C for Manufacturing or U. S. Standard for Manufacturing.

FILL OF CONTAINER

§ 52.3483 Recommended fill of container. The recommended fill of container is not incorporated in the grades of the finished product since fill of container, as such, is not a factor of quality for the purposes of these grades. It is recommended that each container be filled with concentrated grapefruit juice as full as practicable without impairment of quality.

FACTORS OF QUALITY

§ 52.3484 Ascertaining the grade—(a) General. The grade of concentrated grapefruit juice for manufacturing is ascertained by examining the concentrate and the reconstituted juice; and in addition to considering other requirements outlined in the standards, the following quality factors are evaluated:

(1) Factors not rated by score points. (i) Degree of gelation.

(ii) Faculty of reconstituting properly.

(2) Factors rated by score points. The relative importance of each factor which is scored is expressed numerically on the scale of 100. The maximum number of points that may be given such factors are:

Factors:	Points
Color	20
Defects	40
Flavor	40
Total score	100

§ 52.3485 Ascertaining the rating for the factors which are scored. The essential variations within each factor which is scored are so described that the value may be ascertained for each factor and expressed numerically. The numerical range within each factor which is scored is inclusive. (For example, "17 to 20 points" means 17, 18, 19, or 20 points.)

§ 52.3486 Color—(a) (A–Mfg.) classification. Concentrated grapefruit juice of which the reconstituted juice possesses a reasonably good color may be given a score of 17 to 20 points. "Reasonably good color" means that the color is reasonably bright and typical of properly processed and properly concentrated grapefruit juice and is practically free from browning due to scorching, oxidation, caramelization, or other causes.

(b) (C-Mfg.) classification. If the reconstituted juice possesses a fairly good color a score of 14 to 16 points may be given. Concentrated grapefruit juice that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C for Manufacturing or U. S. Standard for Manufacturing, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly good color" means that the color may be only fairly bright and is typical of concentrated grapefruit juice that is reasonably free from browning due to scorching, oxidation, caramelization, or other causes.

(c) (SStd-Mfg.) classification. Concentrated grapefruit juice that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (b) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 13 points and shall not be graded above Substandard for Manufacturing, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.3487 Defects—(a) General. The factor of defects refers to the degree of freedom from juice cells and pulp and from seeds or portions thereof, dark specks, and other defects in the reconstituted juice.

(b) (A-Mfg.) classification. Concentrated grapefruit juice of which the reconstituted juice is practicaly free from defects may be given a score of 34 to 40 points. "Practically free from defects" means that there may be present:

(1) Juice cells only in such amounts as do not materially detract from the appearance or drinking quality of the juice;

(2) Not more than 10 percent free and suspended pulp;

(3) Practically no seeds or portions thereof that could not pass readily through round perforations of 1/8 inch in diameter;

(4) Only such small seeds or portions thereof that could pass through round perforations of 1/8 inch in diameter as do not materially detract from the appearance or drinking quality of the juice; and

(5) Other defects that are not materially objectionable.

(d) (SStd-Mfg.) classification. Concentrated grapefruit juice that fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (c) of this section may be given a score of 0 to 27 points and shall not be graded above Substandard, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

§ 52.3488 Flavor—(a) (A-Mfg.) classification. Concentrated grapefruit juice of which the reconstituted juice possesses a reasonably good flavor may be given a score of 34 to 40 points. "Reasonably good flavor" means that the flavor is typical of reconstituted concentrated grapefruit juice from properly processed and concentrated grapefruit juice; is practically free from traces of scorching, caramelization, oxidation, or terpene; and is free from off-flavors of any kind. To score in this classification the ratio of the Brix value to acid shall be not less than 6 to 1.

(b) (C-Mfg.) classification. If the reconstituted juice possesses a fairly good flavor a score of 28 to 33 points may be given. Concentrated grapefruit juice that falls into this classification shall not be graded above U. S. Grade C for Manufacturing or U. S. Standard for Manufacturing, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule). "Fairly good flavor" means a normal flavor for reconstituted concentrated grapefruit juice, which flavor may be slightly caramelized or slightly oxidized or may possess traces of terpene, but is free from off-flavors of any kind. To score in this classification the ratio of the Brix value to acid shall be not less than 5.5 to 1.

(c) (SStd-Mfg.) classification. If the concentrated grapefruit juice fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (b) of this section a score of 0 to 27 points may be given. Concentrated grapefruit juice that falls into this classification shall not be graded above Substandard for Manufacturing, regardless of the total score for the product (this is a limiting rule).

EXPLANATIONS AND METHODS OF ANALYSES

§ 52.3489 Explanation of terms and analyses—(a) Reconstituted juice. "Reconstituted juice" means the product obtained by mixing thoroughly one part by volume of the concentrated grapefruit juice with a stated volume of water. For example, a dilution factor of "1 plus 6" means that to one part by volume of concentrated grapefruit juice 6 parts by volume of water are added to produce a reconstituted juice. In the absence of any declared dilution factor the product is diluted with water to a Brix of between 10.5 and 11.5 degrees. Distilled water is used in reconstituting the product for testing flavor.

(b) Reconstitutes properly. "Reconstitutes properly" means that the concentrate goes into solution readily; and that in approximately 250 ml. of the reconstituted juice, after standing four (4) hours at a temperature of not less than 68 degrees Fahrenheit in a clear glass cylinder (approximately 1¼ inches in diameter), there may be a noticeable separation of suspended matter but any resulting zone of greater clarity shall be definitely turbid and not clear or transparent.

(c) Acid. "Acid" means the percent by weight of total acidity, calculated as anhydrous citric acid. Total acidity is determined by titration with standard sodium hydroxide solution, using phenolphthalein as indicator.

(d) Brix value. "Brix value" is the refractometric sucrose value determined on the thawed concentrate in accordance with the refractometric method for sugars and sugar products, outlined in the "Official Methods of Analysis of the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists," and to which the applicable correction for acid is added:

TABLE I—CORRECTIONS FOR OBTAINING BRIX VALUE[1]

(e) Free and suspended pulp. "Free and suspended pulp" means particles of membrane, core, peel and other similar extraneous material that settle out on centrifuging by the following method:

(1) Skim floating fruit cells and pulp from the sample of reconstituted juice, and

(2) Fill graduated centrifuge tubes, of a capacity of 50 ml., with the skimmed reconstituted grapefruit juice and place in a suitable centrifuge. Adjust the speed according to diameter, as indicated in Table II, and centrifuge for exactly 10 minutes. As used herein, "diameter" means the overall distance between the bottoms of opposing centrifuge tubes in operating position. After centrifuging, the milliliter reading at the top of the layer of pulp in the tube is multiplied by 2 to give the percentage of pulp.

LOT CERTIFICATION TOLERANCES

§ 52.3491 Tolerances for certification of officially drawn samples. (a) When certifying samples that have been officially drawn and which represent a specific lot of concentrated grapefruit juice for manufacturing the grade for such lot will be determined by averaging the total scores of the containers comprising the sample, if, (1) such containers meet all of the applicable grade requirements of the factors of quality that are not rated by score points; (2) all containers comprising the sample meet all applicable standards of quality promulgated under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act and in effect at the time of the aforesaid certification; and (3) with respect to those factors which are rated by score points:

(i) Not more than one-sixth of the containers fails to meet the grade indicated by the average of such total scores;

(ii) None of the containers falls more than four points below the minimum score for the grade indicated by the average of such total scores;

(iii) None of the containers falls more than one grade below the grade indicated by the average of such total scores; and

(iv) The average score of all containers for any factor subject to a limiting rule is within the score range of that factor for the grade indicated by the average of the total scores of the containers comprising the sample.

Effective time. The United States Standards for Grades of Concentrated Grapefruit Juice for Manufacturing (which is the first issue) contained in this subpart shall become effective on date of publication hereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

It is hereby found and determined that it is unnecessary, impractical, and contrary to the public interest to postpone the effective date of this document later than the date of its publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER because:

(1) The packing of grapefruit juice products is now in progress;

(2) The grapefruit juice industry is aware of the nature of these standards in that notice of proposed rule making in this regard was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of February 7, 1957 (22 F. R. 760);

(3) Numerous and detailed discussions have been held with industry representatives relative to provisions included in the grade standards;

(4) The industry generally has expressed agreement with the provisions of the standards;

(5) There is an immediate need for these standards for marketing purposes; and

(6) No special preparation by the persons affected for the putting of these standards in effect will be necessary.

Dated: March 15, 1957.

Acting Deputy Administrator, Marketing Services.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 904—MILK IN GREATER BOSTON MARKETING AREA

ORDER SUSPENDING CERTAIN PROVISIONS

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act", and of the order, as amended, (7 CFR Part 904), regulating the handling of milk in the Greater Boston, Massachusetts, marketing area, hereinafter referred to as the "order", it is hereby found and determined that for the month of April 1957:

(a) The figures "1956" as they appear in § 904.21 (f) do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

Because of the wording of § 904.21 (f) of the order, the plants which became subject to the order as a result of extension of the area to include the towns of Framingham, Natick, Wayland and Weston would be denied pool status during the month of April 1957. Failure to suspend that part of the provisions quoted above will create undue hardship to producers supplying plants of newly regulated handlers and will disrupt orderly marketing conditions in the Greater Boston, Massachusetts, marketing area.

(b) Notice of proposed rule making, public procedure thereon, and 30 days notice of the effective date hereof, are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest for reasons stated under (a) above and in that:

1. The information upon which this action is based did not become available in time for such compliance.

2. This suspension order does not require of persons affected substantial or extensive preparation prior to its effective date.

Therefore good cause exists for making this order effective April 1, 1957.

It is therefore ordered, That the figures "1956" as they appear in § 904.21 (f) be and they are hereby suspended for the month of April 1957.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 15th day of March 1957.

[SEAL] EARL L. BUTZ,
Assistant Secretary.

In the Matter of Martin Gherstein (Erroneously Referred to in the Complaint as Martin Gerstein) and Daniel Harris, Individually and as Copartners Trading as M. Gerstein & Sons

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission charging a New York City furrier with violating the Fur Products Labeling Act by failing to disclose on labels that certain fur products were dyed and failing to label fur products as required by the act; by invoicing artificially colored fur as natural; and by furnishing false guaranties that certain of their fur products were not misbranded, falsely invoiced, and falsely advertised.
